Friday the 13th, of Course

Triskadekaphobes, people who believe their unlucky number comes up on Friday the 13th, could have their worst fears confirmed by this combination of black cat and drastic destruction. Traditionally the calendar coincidence is a day to be wary of all omens. To allay the qualms of the superstitious, it must be noted that it was an earlier ill wind that toppled the tree that broke the car. The Shokan family's cat is merely on an inspection tour.

Ulster Down $1 Million In The 'Game'

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON Albany's version of "Jeopardy", "Who Do You Trust" and "Let's Make a Deal" began in earnest today with the leaking by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee or projected state aid to education figures for the next fiscal year, projections that show a decrease for Ulster County's nine school districts of more than $1 million.

Gov. Carey, as is customary, opened the game on Jan. 19 with a budget message warning of deep cuts in aid to education, to the tune of $110 million, statewide.

Formulas of sorts were offered, which if carried to conclusion showed losses in aid ranging from $92,000 to over $400,000 in the Kingston Schools District. Plenty of room to bargain there. Things become "specific" today.

The loss figure for Kingston, based on Carey's formula, will be $356,230. Saugerties would lose $135,204, Rondout Valley, $136,011, Onteora, $93,380, New Paltz, $86,969, Highland, $78,669, and so on.

Efforts to confirm those figures, widely broadcast and published, bogged down in the Albany bureaucracy.

A spokesman for the governor's office was emphatically noncommittal. "Those figures do not represent the final means of allocating aid," he said. The spokesman expected the governor to issue "final figures" in a week to 10 days.

The governor's public relations person referred the Freeman to a public relations person over at the State Education Department who confirmed that the Republican minority of the Assembly's Ways and Means Committee had asked for figures.

Unfortunately, he didn't have them, referring the Freeman to Stanley Raub of the State Education Department's Office of Financial Services.

Raub had heard about the figures, he said, but didn't have them either. He referred the Freeman to Dr. John Poley, associate commissioner for planning.

Poley was "in conference" but his secretary referred the Freeman to a Dr. Malesky, director of educational finance. Malesky wasn't in. His secretary referred the Freeman to Dr. Poley.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist, offered some perspective.

"There's nothing final about these by a long shot," he said referring to figures which he said he hadn't seen.

"This is highly speculative," he added. "The legislature had a long way to go before we have a final formula."

That final formula, if history is a teacher, will reflect the realities of an election year and that has invariably meant increases, not cuts, in state aid to education.

Grim Warning to Farmers

By Jon Powers

HURLEY

Terming the farmer "America's most endangered species," the president of the New York State Farm Bureau warned Thursday that the agriculture industry in the Northeast could go bankrupt if government continues to impose controls and restrictions.

Richard McGuire, a dairy farmer in Washington County, addressed some 50 farmers Thursday at an all-day "Empire Farm Clinic" at the Hurley Fire Hall. His message was clear and simple: continued outside interference will drive more and more farmers out of business and jeopardize America's food producing capabilities.

"The rules and regulations are made by people who don't understand the problem," said McGuire. "We enjoy a challenge, but our opponents are continually refining the rules of the game. What we need is less audience participation."

McGuire, in particular, pointed to what he termed a "progressive movement of land use planning." He noted that, although most of the private land in the United States is owned by farmers, they are seldom consulted on land use planning issues.

"Farming is the largest industry in the country, it is the most important industry and it is the basis of our economy," he said, "but we are continually being overlooked. We must make an attempt to communicate with the decision makers."

McGuire said environmental regulations have also placed unnecessary restrictions on the farming industry. Pollution of New York State's waterways was once blamed on the runoff of fertilizers and insecticides from farm lands, said McGuire, until the farmers argued that they were conservationists long before the word came popular. "We have always protected our land," he said, "because without it we can't live."

"But right now we're fighting a defensive ballgame," he said, "and those who are creating the pressures will ultimately be the losers."

"We must convince the consumers that agriculture must survive in the Northeast," McGuire added. "It would be unfortunate if it takes a famine to finally get our point across."

The dairy farming industry, in particular, is facing a crisis, said McGuire. The farm bureau president predicted that the "milk dumping" incidents of last year will be repeated again this year.

"Fifteen per cent of all the milk produced in the Northeast this year may be dumped," said McGuire, "not because there aren't people who need it or want it, but because there aren't facilities available to manufacture it."

McGuire further predicted that dairy farmers threatened with losing their milk may try to sell the product at any price. That could result in a sharp decline in milk prices in May and June and could force even more dairy farmers out of business.

"Farmers are competitors," said McGuire, "and that is one of the hallmarks of success. What we need is for government to leave us alone and let us compete . . . We have the opportunity and the capability to produce all that we need. All we have to do is turn it loose."

Thursday's farm clinic also included presentations by representatives from Agway, Allis-Chalmers, MC Corp. and Chevron, and covered new developments in corn planting, fertilization, production and insecticide management. Four other clinics will be held this month in western and northern New York.

Feraca Sr. Files Lawsuit

PORT EWEN

Joseph Feraca Sr., the center of a storm of controversy one year ago when the Esopus Town Board refused to reappoint him to an 18th consecutive term on the town constabulary, has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against the town and five former or present officials.

In his lawsuit, Feraca cites three separate actions: an allegation that he was libeled by the respondents; that they denied him certain benefits to which he was entitled under the Civil Service Law; and that he was discharged without a hearing. Feraca is seeking $500,000 in damages for each action.

Named in the lawsuit, which was filed in Ulster County Supreme Court, were John Bowman, a former councilman who retired on Jan. 1; councilmen George Villiemi, Thomas Johnson and Frank Bell, all of whom served on the town board last year as well and police commissioner Frank Wiest.

Villiemi, Johnson, Bell and Bowman all voted against Feraca's reappointment in January, 1975, acting on the recommendation of police commissioners Wiest and Carl Cline. Cline was not named in the suit.

"I am not suing for my job," said Feraca today. "I am suing for what the town board did to me."

Feraca is employed as head security officer at Kingston High School and is president of the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) unit in the Kingston School District. He is represented in the lawsuit by the Poughkeepsie law firm of Miller, Moran and Spiegel, which often represents CSEA members.

The respondents are represented by town attorney Norman Kellar, who said Thursday that Feraca's claim to certain civil service benefits only pertains to permanent appointees; Ferraca was appointed on a yearly basis. And Kellar noted that Feraca was not entitled to a hearing because he was not discharged. "He simply wasn't rehired," said Kellar.

The town attorney also noted that Feraca did not specify how he was allegedly libeled by the town board members.

The dispute between Feraca and the town board erupted into a series of stormy meetings last January and February. Although a number of town residents argued for his reappointment, the town board did not relent.

New Blue Law Complaint

HIGHLAND

Another scene in the involved drama of Sunday Blue Law enforcement in being acted out in Highland, where the owner of a small grocery has filed a complaint against the local Grand Union.

Lloyd Town Justice Lewis DiStasi told the Freeman that representatives of that chain food store will be in town court Saturday morning for arraignment.

Stephen Gadaletto of Clintondale, who runs Gadaletto's Market in Highland, has filed the complaint naming Grand Union store manager Don Juhl as defendant for keeping his business open Sunday.

But the complaint is not that Gadaletto feels all businesses should be shut Sundays, just the large chains. The reasoning is that the small corner store cannot economically compete Sundays against the chain, which sells all manner of other objects besides food.

State law makes no distinction between large and small businesses in its trade restrictions for Sundays, and this point is more an emotional than legal issue.

That point was brought out at a special Dec. 29 meeting in Highland attended by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, Town of Lloyd Supervisor Jon Decker, State Senator Richard Schermerhorn, Assemblyman Emeel Betros, and about 40 other townspeople.

Vogt told the merchants et al that his position was to give blue law violations low priority because his opinion held it was impossible to enforce the law equally.

A local ordinance would probably run into the same problem of constitutionality if it discriminated against larger retail stores on the basis of sales, according to Decker.

The issue in Highland is restricted to one complaint against a company that has not yet had an arraignment on an issue that has not been widely enforced. A company spokesman has reportedly said Grand Union will ask for an adjournment, which would probably have to be granted.

For a case by Poughkeepsie merchants challenging the constitutionality of the state blue laws is even now in the State Court of Appeals, and town justice court cases from all over the state are reportedly awaiting that decision.

UPI DATELINE

Wholesale Prices Unchanged

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices were unchanged in January as the cost of food and farm products declined for a third consecutive month, the Labor Department said today.

A 1.8 per cent drop in farm and wholesale food prices last month offset an 0.4 per cent increase in the prices of manufactured goods — the smallest advance in six months.

Wholesale prices have shown little or no change since October, when they rose a substantial 1.8 per cent. They were unchanged in November and dropped a slight 0.4 per cent in December.

Boeing: Nothing Illegal

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission has alleged that Boeing Co. paid bribes to foreign government officials similar to those of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Boeing immediately denied the SEC allegations, but appealed to a federal court in Seattle Thursday to protect its internal documents from "needless disclosure."

The company said no illegal political contributions were made, but fees were paid to sales representatives and consultants to assist foreign sales. Foreign government officials were never used, it said.

Guerrilla War Vowed

LUSAKA — Pro-Western forces abandoned their makeshift military headquarters in southern Angola today and all but formally conceded defeat to the advancing Soviet-backed troops. But they vowed to strike back with guerrilla-style attacks for the next decade.

The army high command of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola ordered its troops to abandon the last southern strongholds, including Serpa Pinto — which only Thursday was named as the movement's new military base.

But the high command, in a statement released in Lusaka, Zambia, said the fighting is far from over.

A Warning to Soviets

WASHINGTON — A somber Henry A. Kissinger has called the Russian intervention in Angola "a pattern of behavior that the United States will not accept."

The Secretary of State said at a news conference Thursday the Angolan intervention, if continued, will have serious consequences which affect other relationships.

"It is a pattern of behavior that the United States will not accept," he said.

The end was not unexpected but yet it made us cry. For the saddest part of all was that she never said "Good-bye." Each time we look at her picture, she seems to smile and say, "Don't worry dear, I'm just sleeping, we'll meet again someday." She was a thoughtful mother in our hearts she will always stay. She was always here when we needed her. And we miss her more each day. So for those who still have their mother. Guard her with loving care. For you'll never know what loneliness is. Till you find she isn't there. Sadly missed, CHILDREN

Ford Few Dollars Ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because there's "a good deal of expense" connected with the office, President Ford ended his first full year in the White House with only $1,239 in the bank after earning more than $250,000.

But increasing values for property he owns pushed his net worth over the $300,000 mark, according to the financial statement he released Thursday.

The only liabilities listed were $1,200 in "general debts outstanding."

He said he paid $62,270, or 42 per cent of his $147,683 gross income, in federal, state and local taxes in 1974. Ford took office in August, 1974. The White House said his combined taxes for 1975 could exceed $115,000 once the returns are filed.

The figures were part of a breakdown of Ford's income, taxes paid and major deductions from 1966 through 1974. The White House called on GOP challenger Ronald Reagan and all other candidates to release a similar report.

Common Cause Thursday released financial statements of various sorts provided by Ford, Reagan and nine Democratic presidential candidates. Reagan's did not reveal annual income, taxes paid or net worth.

Neither Ford's report nor spokesman Ron Nessen offered a specific account of how Ford spent the $135,000 difference between his $250,000 1975 salary plus expense account and his estimated taxes of $115,000.

"There's a good deal of expense connected with being President," Nessen said. He mentioned clothing, meals and entertainment for the President and his wife, family vacations and the cost of sending their four children to college.

According to the statement, Ford's net worth was $323,489 at the end of 1975, compared with $256,378 on Sept. 30, 1973. The White House did not say what his net worth was when he became President, so it was not clear when the increase took place.

But Nessen said almost all the increase was attributable to escalating values for three properties Ford owns in Virginia, Colorado and his native Michigan. Ford is collecting rent on all three properties but Nessen didn't say how much.

"It's generally agreed he's paying a very large percentage of his income for taxes," Nessen said. "People in that income bracket normally don't pay that much. He has no interest expenses, which are normally a large deduction for most people. He owns all his property outright and his own personal philosophy is to not make any effort to find things that some people find to avoid taxes."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst fidgeted nervously and sniffled while the voice of "Tania" confessing a bank robbery floated across a courtroom still shocked by a bomb blast at her grandfather's fabulous San Simeon estate.

The prosecution climaxed its case against her by playing to the jury the tape recording in which the 21-year-old newspaper heiress bragged about her part in the holdup of a San Francisco bank.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. said he needed about one hour today to clean up the government's case, which involved 32 witnesses, a movie of the robbery and the taped admissions made by the defendant. Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said he would start the defense by calling Steven Weed, Miss Hearst's former fiancé, to the stand.

The "This is Tania" message recorded three days after the April 15, 1974, robbery highlighted Thursday's court session, but it was overshadowed by the terrorist bombing at William Randolph Hearst's San Simeon estate 160 miles south of San Francisco.

In statements outside the courtroom, the heiress' parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, said the explosion must have been in retaliation for Miss Hearst's denunciation of her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

"It's an attempt to terrorize Patty," said her mother. "It shows the vicious, terrible people Patty was with. It's no wonder Patty was afraid of them."

Randolph said the $1 million bombing of a guest house near the baronial castle built by his father was an "outrage" and a

"stupid, vicious thing to do to the people of California." The Hearst family gave the estate to the state several years ago.

A hushed, packed courtroom heard Miss Hearst's soft but firm voice on the oft-played tape recording. She nervously fingered her face while the tape was being played, then wiped her nose with a handkerchief after it had finished.

"This is Tania," she said on the tape -- which was the subject of a three-day legal battle won by the prosecution when U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter ruled Miss Hearst made the recording "voluntarily."

"On April 15, my comrades and I expropriated $10,660.02 from the Sunset Branch of Hibernia Bank."

She went on to say the idea she was brainwashed was "ridiculous to the point of being beyond belief." She scorned her parents and called Weed a "sexist pig."

"I am a soldier in the people's army," she concluded. "Patria o muerte; venceremos."

The jurors followed written transcripts of the recording. The seven women and five men knew nothing of the San Simeon bombing and had not yet heard Miss Hearst's story that she joined in the robbery.

made the tape and participated in a Los Angeles shooting incident because she feared for her life after being terrorized by her kidnapers.

Before playing the tape, Browning called to the stand eight FBI agents who told of finding weapons in the San Francisco apartments where Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris were captured.

His final witness was agent Thomas Padden, one of the two officers who arrested Miss Hearst and fugitive Wendy Yoshimura at their apartment last Sept. 18.

Fun(d) City Deficit Billion

NEW YORK (UPI) — The exact amount of New York City's deficit may exceed $1 billion, a figure that could throw askew current plans to put the financially shaky city on sound economic footing.

Mayor Abraham Beame and fiscal experts spent the Lincoln's birthday holiday Thursday trying to determine how much the city's fiscal condition had deteriorated since last fall when the original deficit estimate was formulated.

Sources said the new deficit figure was expected to surpass previous assumptions by about $300 million and may reach $1.024 billion.

The Mayor planned to brief the City Council leadership and Board of Estimate on the deficit situation today before the formal meeting of the Emergency Financial Control Board, which was created last year by the state to oversee New York's financial affairs.

The board is in the process of reviewing the city's financial state with the idea of mapping out a new fiscal plan. In addition to the deficit calculations, Beame was expected to present to the board details of his proposed cutbacks on capital projects already underway.

Since October the city has operated on the assumption that its deficit — the amount by which expenses exceeded revenues — was $724 million. The official plan to balance the city budget within three years was predicated on that assumption.

But Beame disclosed last month that revenues had fallen short of his expectations and such expenses as welfare and Medicaid had increased faster than anticipated. He said then that the $724 million

A new estimated deficit of more than $1 billion would mean even more severe city budget cuts in the remaining two fiscal years of the three-year plan, which already calls for spending cuts of $200 million in the fiscal year ending July 30 and cuts of $262 million in each of the next two fiscal years.

Beame has estimated that the city could lose $160 million a year if President Ford's proposed budget is adopted and another $202.5 million if Gov. Hugh L. Carey's state budget becomes law.

Good 'Pot' Marks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's drug abuse chief says marijuana is less dangerous to health than either tobacco or alcohol and "pot" users should not be threatened with jail.

"There is no question that alcohol and tobacco are causing us far more health problems than marijuana does," said Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) at a press conference Thursday.

"Personally, my view is that we do not have to threaten young people with imprisonment to discourage use of marijuana."

DuPont, a medical doctor, said he personally favors doing away with jail sentences for simple possession of marijuana for personal use, and substituting civil fines.

"For the first time in the five years our organization has been in business, there's no difference between the government's position and ours," responded Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

Reminded that opposition to decriminalizing marijuana still may exist in the White House or other areas of the administration, Stroup amended his response to say, "there's no difference between NIDA's position and ours." NIDA is the government's leading agency in drug abuse treatment, prevention and research.

DuPont said he did not believe his personal views were inconsistent with President Ford's drug abuse policies.

"There can't be much opposition left in the White House because Jack Ford says he smokes 'grass,'" said

Sky's Safety Favored

GUATEMALA CITY. Guatemala (UPI) — The people of Guatemala have turned their attention to rebuilding shattered lives and homes — although fear of more earthquakes still keeps many living outdoors.

Daniel Parker, the chief of the U.S. Agency for International Development, toured towns west of the capital Thursday, surveying the hardest hit areas in a country where more than one-fifth of the population now is homeless.

"I have seen earthquake damage before but it never fails to shock," Parker said. "What we saw was stark and dramatic."

The government said Thursday 18,901 persons died in the Feb. 4 earthquake and the hundreds of aftershocks that rocked the country over the last week. It listed 62,432 injured and more than one million homeless.

Fifth Marlow Charge Completed by Board

By Carl Graham

BOICEVILLE
The Ontario Board of Education hearing to unseat Dr. Frank Marlow as school superintendent gathered momentum Thursday night, completing the fifth of seven charges against him and starting on the sixth.

Bernard Lapo, an Ontario teacher who negotiated a two-year contract for the Ontario Non-Teaching Employees Association for the 1973-74 and 1974-75 school years, was called by S. James Matthews, the board's special attorney for the hearing.

The board's fifth charge against Marlow alleges that he illegally put in a beginning salary level (Step Zero) for new employees in violation of the ONTEA contract, resulting in a successful ONTEA grievance against the district and possible liability for back wages. The board eliminated Step Zero in April, 1975.

Lapo said all pay grades contained 13 steps, with all employees frozen at the step they were on when the contract was signed. Lapo said that Step Zero appeared on the 1974-75 salary schedule although it had not been negotiated and that he first became aware of it when he saw the agenda of a board meeting.

Lapo said he first talked with Dr. John Keough, the business administrator, and then Marlow, who agreed that Step Zero had not been negotiated. Lapo said he then advised Barbara Stickler, ONTEA president to file a grievance against the district. After the hearing the board eliminated Step Zero and put all new employees on Step One salary levels.

Marlow's attorney, Joseph Hill, established that during the period from July 15, 1974, to Feb. 10, 1975, the board appointed 14 persons to Step Zero salary positions, that none of them complained, and that Lapo or board members had not complained either.

Marlow took the stand and said he put Step Zero into the schedule because it was possible for persons hired after July 1, 1974, to start at the same salary as previously employed persons and that he felt it would have a deleterious effect on employees.

Marlow read from the board's April, 1975 minutes

Grant's Ordered To Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The W.T. Grant Co., the nation's third largest chain of variety stores, has been ordered to sell its assets and close its stores in two months.

Federal Bankruptcy Judge John Galgay Thursday declared Grant's, which has been in business for 70 years, officially bankrupt and told the company to liquidate its assets in an order which will put the firm out of business within 60 days.

Company President Robert H. Anderson said Grant's hopes of reorganization under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy law, which began last October, represented the best plan he had ever seen.

"If only the circumstances of the past few days could be altered," he said, "we certainly would have a good chance at success."

Ellenville Woman Killed, Driver Charged

Police Beat

By Matt Spiring
ELLENVILLE

Mrs. Arlene Sashin, 43, of 18 Sandra Street, Ellenville, was killed Thursday night when she was struck by a car on Main Street in the Village of Ellenville. Police charged the operator of the car with driving while intoxicated.

Police said Mrs. Sashin, wife of Ellenville Central School District Business manager Sol Sashin, was walking along the east side of Main Street (Route 209) shortly before 7:20 p.m. when she was hit.

The driver of the car, identified as Mrs. Julie Ann Horvath, 36, of 30 Clinton Avenue, went to a nearby MacDonald's Restaurant immediately after the crash and police were summoned.

Mrs. Sashin was rushed to Ellenville Community Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival. A ruling by Coroner Arthur C. Chipp is pending the outcome of an autopsy.

Ellenville police Chief George Sheeley said that before patrolmen reached the scene Mrs. Horvath drove off and went to a friend's house, but that she appeared at police headquarters about 15 minutes later and was not charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Mrs. Horvath was arraigned on the driving while intoxicated charge before Village Justice Ronald Elias and was released on $1,000 bail pending further court action.

The fatality was investigated by Sheeley, Lt. John Phillips, Patrolman Peter Williams and Assistant District Attorney Paul Gruner. The case will go to the grand jury, Gruner said.

Paltz Altercation

A call to the New Paltz emergency communications center early today requesting an ambulance at Pat and George's Restaurant, 91 Main Street, where a woman had reportedly broken her ankle while dancing on platform shoes led to the arrest of two persons—not because the report was unfounded, but because two onlookers gave police problems when they attempted to move the crowd back so emergency personnel could get to the injured woman.

Police said Frank E. Stanley, 20, of the Village Arms Apartments not only allegedly refused to move after police were asked by emergency personnel to disperse the crowd, but allegedly struck a patrolman in the face. Stanley was charged with second degree assault, disorderly conduct and obstructing governmental administration. Jeremiah O'Shea, 20, also of the Village Arms Apartments was also charged with disorderly conduct after he allegedly refused to move.

The injured woman, identified by police as Marion Detel, 21, of Hasbrouck Apartments, was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie where she was listed in satisfactory condition today. Stanley was jailed in lieu of $1,250 bail. O'Shea was jailed in lieu of $250 bail.

Hurt in Crash

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car crash Thursday morning on Route 28 in the Town of Shandaken.

Ulster County Sheriff's deputies said the driver of one of the cars, Michael Corday, 18, of Miami, Fla., told them he fell asleep at the wheel. His car struck a guard rail and crossed the road where it was in collision with an auto driven by James Bracco, 35, of Wittenberg Road, Mt. Tremper.

Corday was listed in poor condition today in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital. A passenger in his car, Allen Schwartz, 18, was listed in fair condition.

Bracco was treated and released at the hospital.

Shooting Arrest

A lengthy investigation into a Jan. 21 shooting incident on Bayard Street in Port Ewen culminated in the arrest Thursday by Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives of Dennis Richard Ahearn, 26, of 163 Bayard Street on a misdemeanor charge of second degree reckless endangerment. Detectives said that during a dispute with an unidentified person Ahearn allegedly fired two slugs from a shotgun, both of which ricocheted off the pavement, one striking a car and one striking a house trailer. Ahearn was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail following arraignment.

Driver Arrested

Frederick Smith, 62, of Brooklyn, was arrested Thursday on multiple charges by sheriff's deputies after they stopped his car while on routine patrol in the New Paltz area.

Deputies said Smith was allegedly operating the car under a fictitious name. Investigation revealed that he was wanted on bench warrants issued in 1972 in Ulster County.

Regulatory Reform Bill Needed

WASHINGTON, D.C. Congressman Matthew F. McHugh, D-27th Dist., has cosponsored legislation to force the President and Congress to act on a comprehensive reform of the federal regulatory agencies over a five-year period.

"The entire federal regulatory system is in need of a thorough overhaul," McHugh said. "What passes for regulation in the public interest today is often excessive, inflationary and, on balance, counter-productive. I think a comprehensive reform of regulation can benefit consumers and businessmen alike, through greater competition, lower prices and more rational rulemaking guidelines."

"There is a great deal of talk about such reforms, but for Congress and the President to face up to the task realistically requires the kind of imposed, self-discipline outlined in this legislation," he said.

Under the terms of the bill, the President would be required to submit a separate regulatory reform proposal to the Congress by March 31 in each of the years 1977-1981. The appropriate House and Senate committees would be required to clear the President's recommendations, with or without changes, by Sept. 15 of each year. If Congress has not acted on the committee report by the end of the year, it would automatically take effect.

If either House disapproves of the reform proposal but fails to act on an alternative, the regulatory agencies covered under the proposal would go out of existence on June 31 of the following year.

The areas to be covered by each of the five regulatory reform proposals are: banking and finance, 1977; energy and environment, 1978; commerce, transportation and communication, 1979; food, health, safety, and trade practices, 1980; labor, housing government purchasing and small business, 1981. The measure spells out which agencies must be covered in the five plans, but permits the President and Congress to add to the list.

The bill is expected to be referred jointly to the Rules Committee and the Government Operations Committee. An identical measure was introduced in the Senate on Dec. 18, 1975, by Senators Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Local EnCon Hearing

ALBANY Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101, announced today that the State Department of Environmental Conservation will be holding a public hearing Friday, Feb. 20 at the Department's Regional Headquarters on 21 South Putt Corners Road, New Paltz. The subject of the hearing will be proposed rules and regulations to implement New York's Mined Land Reclamation Law.

Hinchey points out that the mining industry "plays a surprisingly significant factor in New York's economy, as it employs more than 7,000 individuals and produces minerals worth more than $400 million annually."

"At this point," continued the assemblyman, "there are approximately 1,000 active mines in our state, including at least 200 town-operated gravel pits to provide materials for construction and maintenance."

"However, besides these sites, there are between 12,000 and 15,000 'orphan mines' that have been abandoned without restoration. Substantial economic benefits to the mine owner as well as land resource improvements result from the reclamation of these abandoned mines," said Hinchey.

"And besides this area, the Mined Land Reclamation Law deals with the prevention of pollution associated with mining as well as the encouragement of development of mineral resources in New York."

Hinchey encouraged the public to attend the hearing if at all possible, "as the environmental condition of our state should be everyone's concern, not just that of a few."

But Not To the Holders

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investigators have been told that at least one major credit card company divulges information about its cardholders when officially ordered to do so, but does not tell the cardholders about it.

James M. Setler, a vice president of the American Express Company, told the Privacy Protection Study Commission Wednesday that the company has furnished information about its members to private attorneys as well as official agencies, but only when it is required by subpoena to do so.

"We require a subpoena before releasing information on our members ..." Setler said. "(We) have turned over such information to the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and private attorneys, particularly in matrimonial cases."

Independent Wealth.

It didn't come EASY.

Basically, we were born broke.

So Americans got together and loaned their new government over $27,000,000 on faith alone.

Eventually, it was that faith that won the war and our freedom. Today, that faith is still alive.

Over 9½ million modern Americans buy United States Savings Bonds regularly through the Payroll Savings Plan... and others where they bank.

And while their savings grow, they're helping their country grow, too. Independently.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Support Campaign

The petition campaign launched by the reactivated Lower Esopus Waterway Committee certainly deserves support.

All that this group asks is that the area be included in the Army Corps of Engineers regional flood plan.

The Freeman personally doesn't think this is asking too much.

All one has to do is to recall the raging waters of recent weeks along the Esopus Creek, threatening many a life and home.

Ulster County Legislator Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 5), who initiated the recent meeting, in calling for such protection, has indicated a possible injunction move if the Lower Esopus area is not included in the overall project.

Kingston's Mayor Francis R. Koenig already has called for new Congressional action through a letter to Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25) to get the ball rolling on the $2 million flood control project to protect the City of Kingston.

We've already echoed support for this call and we have also echo the Lower Esopus Waterway Committee's move to have that area included in the project.

The Freeman likewise urges pressure be exerted on federal, state and county officials to include the Town of Ulster in this project.

Write to Lisa

Monday, the Freeman ran a story and picture on the front page concerning 15-year-old Lisa Fogg of Highland. Lisa is suffering from a brain tumor which is inoperable and thus, terminal unless some miracle occurs.

Reading her story, one can't help but feel a certain amount of sympathy for her, her family and friends. While some might scoff at a story like this as being a 'tear-jerker', the Freeman feels that it is a slice of life, an all too real slice, that must be reported.

The Freeman hopes that a story like this would give our readers pause from what they consider to be their own problems and would make them feel a little sympathy for Lisa and a thankfulness for their own conditions.

Lisa resides at 152 Mayer Street in Highland; send her a card, a letter, something to show you care. She and her family would greatly appreciate it and you would be doing yourself a favor.

Trial Disturbs

Dear Editor:

The present trial of Dr. Marlow now going on at the Onteora School annoys me to no end.

The school system teaches the children about the greatness of our system of government such as a fair trial by jury, freedom and democracy etc., yet the very administrators of the Onteora School System are violating the very principles which they teach. By that I mean that the whole thing is another Nuremberg Trial where by the accusers are the judges, the jury and the executioners. By this statement I don't mean to say that the Nuremberg trials should not have been held rather the trials should have been conducted by the United Nations in a more democratic manner.

Yours truly,

Improve Congress

Dear Editor:

I would like to know what your readers would think of having the Constitution of the United States amended to provide that each state have one senator, serving a four-year term instead of two who serve six-year terms.

Also, on the basis of the Internal Revenue Service's furnishing the number of individual Federal income taxpayers, by location, having the country divided into ninety-nine congressional districts without reference to population, county lines, state lines or anything else. These congressmen to serve three-year terms with one-third elected annually.

I believe this would give us a more productive congress at a greatly reduced cost.

Cordially,

'Easier Way'

Dear Editor:

All of us know that the federal loan to New York did not solve its financial problems. I believe there is an easier way to get money to save New York and other American cities like Yonkers, Buffalo, etc.

Remember when our government rushed to give (not lend) $250 billion to the anti-communist racketeers in Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia? I remember also the loss of men and money to help Dictator Park of South Korea many years ago. Our C.I.A. gave millions to General Pinochet of Chile, and right now the C.I.A. is spending millions in Portugal, Angola and Italy: all this "give-away" is to buy the anti-communist leaders of those countries.

Recently Mr. Kissinger, on his way back from negotiations in Moscow, could not refrain from visiting the King of Spain and other leaders and offer them $1.25 billion in exchange for four military bases there. I personally do not blame our leaders for squandering our resources; after all, we must prevent these countries from going communist.

Therefore, the best way to solve New York's and other cities' problems would be to have hundreds of thousands of people line up in front of the offices of the Communist Party and clamor to join. Obviously the F.B.I. and the C.I.A. would report such happenings to the president very quickly. The president and his advisers would then push a lot of money to our cities in order to keep them from joining communism.

Sincerely,
ANGELO DeLEWIS

About Lulus

(Editor's Note: This letter was addressed to Assemblyman Hinchey and a copy sent to The Freeman)

Dear Mr. Hinchey:

I have been concerned for a long time about the matter of "Lulu" payments to Legislators. This to me has never seemed to be a fair or justified payment to Legislators. I believe that only actual justified and approved expenses should be paid to Legislators. This kind of payment should only be made after submission of acceptable vouchers. The payment should come from a department of the State Government which is totally divorced from all political influence and should be accountable to the taxpayers. What is being done to accomplish this kind of accountability?

I am retired from a major business corporation and over a 30-year period I was never paid expenses in any way other than upon the submission of acceptable vouchers or explanation. I believe that the legislators should be entitled to no more than that which a normal business corporation allows to its tax-paying citizens. This is simply one way to help control expenses. I would appreciate receiving your comments and hearing of your course of action.

Very truly yours,

The 'Low Tar War'

If you are a community leader, you should have already gotten a letter from Willian D. Hobbs' computer. Mr. Hobbs is the chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem, N.C., and he's been sending people his robotwritten notes to tell them about his new cigarette called Now.

"We are proud of this technological achievement and I thought you, as a leader of your community, would want to know about it," Mr. Hobbs writes. It might seem that Mr. Hobbs has rather low standards for hailing technological achievements and a peculiar idea of what community leaders are interested in knowing about. Actually, it can be said that Mr. Hobbs probably doesn't give a fig about an expensive, arcane and wasteful advertising and merchandising war.

As with all wars, the tactics can be a mite difficult to follow, but it begins several months ago when Madison Avenue was rocked to its foundations to learn that Philip Morris was going to bring out a cigarette called Merit. Merit is supposed to contain 9 milligrams of tar and .7 milligrams of nicotine.

This was considered an invasion of the semi-low tar and low nicotine field dominated by Reynolds, which puts out Vantage, Doral, Winston Lights and Salem Lights. Formidable as that lineup may appear, cigarette marketing strategists felt that Philip Morris had to make a move. The low and intermediate—low tar and nicotine field is already 10 per cent of the market and expanding at a 14 per cent rate annually.

Philip Morris only had one cigarette in competition against Reynolds' all-star low tar lineup, Marlboro Lights, but they've 12 milligrams tar, .8 milligrams nicotine. Too much. For those who aren't yet hep to the metric system, a milligram is .015 of a grain or .002285 of an ounce, but that .002285 difference between Marlboro Lights and a ciggie like Merit can, with the right advertising, translate into millions of dollars worth of sales. Whether there is any difference in the smoker's health, or lack of it, has not been established.

Off in the sidelines and not yet ready to engage in national advertising warfare, Brown & Williamson Tobacco has been test-marketing a brand called Fact and another called Vanguard, which you ought not confuse with Vantage. Liggett & Myers is also reported ready with a brand named Vello.

Meanwhile, as its competitors are preparing to attack Reynolds in the semi-low tar field, Reynolds is on the prowl for profits in the low-low tar field. In this millimetric battle, Reynolds decided to go after Carlton down in the sub-basement of the low tar league. Hence Mr. Hobbs' introduction of Now, which tips the scales at 2 milligrams of tar and .2 milligrams of nicotine.

That would imperil Carlton's claim to be "the lowest-tar cigarette ever made." Can you imagine that panic in the corporate offices of the American Tobacco Company, the outfit which makes

Jim Bishop

He is big and leathery and lonely, like the house. He stands, head cocked, eyes squinting, looking out the back windows at the ketches and sloops and stink pots running Newport Harbor, California, prepared to wave in return for a salute.

The oriental butler says that lunch is served. The big man walks back, a rocking-horse, pigeon-toed gait, as though he is doing a second-rate imitation of John Wayne. The Duke is home. He has completed his 20th Western, "The Shootist," and he has himself to himself once more.

Wayne has invited some friendly strangers to share a 35-pound fresh salmon and a goblet of wine. He talks neutral. No politics. He has seven children ranging in age from 9 to 40. He has 20 grandchildren. He has had three wives. Duke will talk about two of those.

He is 68, perhaps the last of the great movie cowboys. He has walls of trophies and ornate rifles and bronze cowhands rearing their mounts. There is an Oscar for "True Grit," but nothing for the $700 million his movies earned.

The man isn't broke. But he has been fleeced twice by friends, and he finds it difficult to work harder. In the cold tawny mountains around Carson City, Nevada, he repeated his lines and waited with numb hands for the lights, the cameras, the dry runs.

Sometimes he is racked by spasms of coughing. He lost a lung to cigarettes 12 years ago. When the tickle hits him, he doubles down and punches trees. John Wayne has learned to live with fear.

When "The Shootist" was completed, he hurried back to Newport Beach for chest X-rays. Negative. The old man began to smile again. Nice word, negative.

He is the ultimate master of an archaic art form. There were others—Tom Mix, William S. Hart, Hopalong Cassidy, Gene Autry and Roy Rogers. Wayne was a top box-office draw for 20 years. Last year he fell off the list. In "The Shootist" it is an irony that he plays a gunfighter facing his final shootout. A doctor has told him that he has terminal cancer.

Wayne used to drink well. This has been cut to a few tequilas. "It doesn't give you a hangover," he says with that wry smile, "but you must watch your back because you fall a lot."

NASA's Fishing Trip

WASHINGTON—A top space official, who went salmon fishing last year with Boeing bigwigs, tried afterward to award his fishing companions a "wasteful" contract.

The inside story is told in confidential memos from the files of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The memos identify the obliging space official as Jack A. Jones, a quality control chief based in Houston. He was taken fishing by corporate executives during a visit to Boeing's Seattle headquarters.

Another space official, Joseph H. Levine, was included on the fishing trip but played no part in seeking the $200,000 contract for his hosts.

The incident was turned into stark drama when the complainant, James Maxwell, suddenly died of a heart attack after he brought the scandal to the attention of NASA investigators. Friends say his diligence in pressing the investigation helped bring on the fatal attack.

Maxwell was upset because his name was listed as the NASA engineer who had requested the $200,000 contract. The money was supposed to be spent for research equipment that he thought was unnecessary. According to a confidential report, he saw "absolutely no need for this purchase request" and considered it "wasteful to spend (the) money."

It was Jones, not Maxwell, who sought the $200,000 contract for Boeing, the documents charge. He allegedly began pushing for the contract immediately after he returned from the fishing trip with Boeing executives.

The outraged Maxwell complained that the use of his name "implicates me in a violation of law." He died before NASA completed its investigation, which resulted in canceling the contract. Jones and Levine got off, however, with a mild reprimand.

Footnote: A NASA spokesman confirmed that Jones and Levine were entertained by Boeing on the fishing trip and acknowledged that Jones had sought a $200,000 contract for Boeing after his return. Norman Wynn, one of the Boeing hosts on the salmon excursion, confirmed that it took place, called the affair "insignificant" and hung up on our reporter, Marc Smolonsky. Jones and Levine did not return our calls.

SURVEILLANCE SUBSIDY: When local policemen or prosecutors need special help to spy on alleged criminals, they turn to Uncle Sam for help. During the past seven years, the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) has responded with unusual generosity.

The agency has distributed a staggering total of $160.8 million to support 1,929 intelligence-related projects around the country. The figures were provided to Chairwoman Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., whose Government Information subcommittee is investigating federal snooping.

Approximately $2.5 million dollars was earmarked directly for the "purchase of electronic surveillance equipment," according to the LEAA report provided to Abzug.

Incredibly, $1.3 million of the bugging equipment went to states which prohibited wiretaps or had no specific laws on bugging.

California Department of Justice acquired among other things, ten "beeper" systems, which allow police to follow vehicles at a distance, 15 voice-activated tape recorders, 36 miniature microphones and headsets, and five "intelligence kits" at $2,500 apiece.

Other states which prohibited wiretaps at the time they received their LEAA grants—Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan and North Carolina—were supplied with body transmitters, auto tracking devices, and other unspecified "technical surveillance equipment."

Even when money is doled out to states where wire tapping is legal, there is little method to LEAA's mad giveaway. Official bugging is legal for example, in New Jersey. There state authorities spent $206,093 in federal funds to buy eavesdropping equipment to handle 808 authorized wiretaps.

But, the report noted, there was "no correlation between the number of wire-taps authorizations and the amount of funds expended for electronic surveillance equipment."

Clearly, LEAA exhibits little control over the local spending and use of the equipment. The report points out, in fact, that 25 states simply refused to provide LEAA with an itemized breakdown for the bugging equipment bought with LEAA money.

PRESIDENTIAL ODDS: Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, our political oddsmaker, rates President Ford a runaway favorite to win the Republican nomination, with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., his most likely opponent.

Ford's nomination is such a safe bet, in Jimmy's book, that a betting man would have to put up $3 on the president to win $1.

Anyone wishing to take a risk on Ronald Reagan, on the other hand, could collect $7 on a $2 bet. Third in the GOP ratings, at 8 to 1 odds is Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Humphrey is a 2 to 1 favorite to win the Democratic presidential nomination. In other words, a $1 bet would be worth $2 if he is nominated.

He is followed by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., 4 to 1; Georgia's ex-Gov. Jimmy Carter, 5 to 1; Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., 8 to 1; and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., 10 to 1.

Alabama's Gov. George Wallace and Texas' Sen. Lloyd Bentsen are far behind, as Jimmy the Greek calculates the odds with only a 20 to 1 chance of winning the nomination. The other Democratic aspirants are 25 to 1 long shots, except for ex-Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., whom Jimmy gives only a 50 to 1 chance.

The Duke Is Home

Wayne snaps his fingers trying to remember names. Once he was with Jim Grant when a man approached. "I know this guy," the Duke said, "but I can't remember his name. He's gonna walk up and say, 'Bet you don't remember who I am.'"

The man did. And Wayne didn't. In a flash, the star couldn't recall Jim Grant's name. Fans try to draw him into political discussions. He doesn't appreciate it, because his thinking on all subjects is positive. Wayne sees sharp blacks and whites, but has trouble identifying gray.

He thinks he's "liberal." His few close friends think he is a bit right of Ronald Reagan. In truth, he distrusts all politicians and all union leaders. "The one overriding interest of a politician is in getting votes," he says. "They don't want to know what's good for the country and they don't represent the average American."

Wayne pushes his chair back and steps into the kitchen to tell the cook that the salmon was great. He shuffles back to the living room facing the bay with his guests. He must think of what to do. The cowboy could take a nap if the guests departed.

They prefer to sit and pump his patience. He chats a little about a converted minesweeper he owns called "The Wild Goose." He sits, blowing through his lips, squinting at the sun-spangled bay.

Suddenly, he smiles. This is not the polite one. It's big and broad. The poached blue eyes sparkle like gems. A dark-haired boy is standing in the doorway.

"Folks," he says, "I would like you to meet my boy, John Ethan."

The youngster is 13. He lives with his mother, Pilar, on the far side of town. The children come to visit frequently. John Ethan shakes hands timidly, and whispers to his dad.

"Ah," says John Wayne as in a revelation, "you would like to go to the skating rink? How much will that set us back?" John Ethan holds up two fingers.

"Well," the father says, "Let's see if we can arrange it." He digs deep into his pocket and comes up with two wrinkled singles. The boy puts his arms around John Wayne and kisses his father on the mouth.

The Duke watches him go. "All my kids kiss me like that," he says . . .

Clash Peking-Style

I was fatigued from watching the Winter Olympics, but, when I read about the surprise appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as Acting Prime Minister of China, my journalistic juices began to flow. After a few days of research and reflection, I was able to work out a scenario explaining the mysterious move.

Perhaps I shouldn't use the word "explaining." As with so many news items out of China, the meaning of the bitter quarrel that I believe took place is a bit on the inscrutable side. Hua himself is so obscure that journalists don't even know whether he has a wife.

The man who failed to get the top job, Teng Hsiao-ping, the senior Deputy Prime Minister who was host to President Ford recently, once ridiculed people who try to figure out what's going on in China. He called them "readers of onion peels and chicken feathers." Actually, the task of analyzing China is more like trying to read cooked spinach leaves.

We sometimes think American politicians are tough with one another, but their speeches are love sonnets compared with the abuse Chinese politicians heap on their opponents. After studying stories of other conflicts in China, here is the kind of clash that I imagined taking place at the meeting of the Politburo:

Yin: "Comrade Teng is unfit to become Prime Minister because he has disgraced our glorious democratic revolution, which, under the dictatorship of the proletariat, must always advance along the straight road indicated by Marxism-Leninism-Mao Tse-tung thought."

Yang: "Comrade Yin, who owns four bicycles, is obviously bedazzled by reactionary materialism, which feeds on the carrion of capitalist subversion. As Comrade Teng himself has said, 'Towers are measured by their shadows; great men by those who speak evil of them.'"

Yin: "The quotation that Comrade Yang attributes to Comrade Teng is, in reality, an ancient Chinese proverb. This shows the cunning with which revisionist ideological tendencies are fomented by bourgeois bandits and other treasonable elements."

Yang: "If that is an ancient Chinese proverb, Comrade Yin, then I am Nelson Rockefeller."

Yin: "Speaking of proverbs, it was your viper-like Comrade Teng who preached ideological capitulation with the quotation, 'It doesn't matter whether a cat is black or white as long as it catches mice.'"

Yang: "That quotation, Comrade Yin, comes from the ancient seducer of pure proletarian thought, Confucius. Unlike traitors in this room who have aided the counterrevolution, Comrade Teng has worked positively in the historic struggle against feudalism and bureaucratic capitalism."

Yin: "Rats know the way of rats, Comrade Yang, or, as our American visitors say, 'It takes one to know one.' The poisonous Comrade Teng strangely resembles the very enemies of the motherland against whom he pretends to wage war."

Yang: "One should not speak of rats, Comrade Yin, when one is like a fly droning around a pile of stinking filth."

Yin: "A strong man will not capitulate to the barks of dirty hyena, Comrade Yang, so I shall only reply that you and your co-conspirator, Comrade Teng, should insert your maggots-filled heads in the largest orifice of a smelly goat."

(At this point a vote was taken and it was announced that Yang had lost the ideological dispute. Hua Kuo-feng was then unanimously elected as a compromise candidate. Everyone applauded except Yang, who mysteriously disappeared. He unfortunately died in an airplane crash a few hours later.)

Carey, Byrne Persist in Being Anti-Job

Governors Hugh Carey of New York and Brendan Byrne of New Jersey are politically motivated creatures. They play with an eye to the galleries when they denounce the decision that will presumably allow the supersonic Concorde to make limited landings at Kennedy Airport, and when they protest the leasing of offshore oil acreage in the Atlantic. They seem to think the more extreme environmentalist bloc is the source of both wisdom and votes. But they also play to another clientele, the bigger mass of people who want jobs, income and prosperity. So, disregarding their own animus against both the air transport and the oil business, they are loud in their lamentations about New York and New Jersey firms that continue to relocate in other states.

It doesn't add up. Nobody knows whether supersonic planes have any effect on the earth's cover of protective ozone; all we know is that military planes are flying hither and you beyond the speed of sound, and the incidence of skin cancer does not seem to have changed significantly. And common sense should tell Carey and Byrne that if oil can be safely pumped from beneath the waters all over the world from Indonesia to the Gulf of Mexico to the North Sea, it should not be beyond man's devising to take it with equal safety from 54 miles off the Jersey coast and 70 miles off Long Island.

Jobs in the Gulf

If Carey and Byrne had more than superficial political sense they would dispatch a study group to Louisiana, which has been living with both on- and offshore oil and gas ventures for some 40 years. Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana would tell his brother governors from the Northeast that off shore drilling in the Gulf of Mexico is responsible for 50,000 Louisiana jobs at relatively high wages. Even more important, says Edwards, is the onshore job-related industry brought into being by offshore drilling.

The environmentalists originally raised the question of what offshore drilling might do to the fishing industry of Louisiana. But the fish, it seems, like the platforms that now dot the Gulf waters. The state's fishing industry has actually increased in both output and value by more than 30 per cent since the first offshore drilling began in the 1930s. There have been some accidental oil spills, but the state has strong anti-pollution laws and the oil companies have been willing to learn from mistakes if only to avoid penalties and the loss of revenue-producing oil.

If Carey and Byrne want to forego the sort of industry that has brought more than $6 billion in investment to Louisiana for new and expanded plant facilities, they should stop hollering about the exodus of companies from their states. Incidentally, if they really cared about those Long Island and Jersey beaches, they would stop the dumping of garbage into the Atlantic. With all its offshore oil, Louisiana has created no "dead sea" in the Gulf of Mexico comparable to the one that the garbage scows are building up not far from Long Island in the Atlantic.

Wisdom Is Not Widespread
Once in awhile in this country we get some governors who understand what puts bread in people's mouths. Gov. Edwards of Louisiana is one; Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire is another; ex-Gov. Ronald Reagan of California was a third. But the wisdom of a few governors has not been catching with New York's

Carey or Jersey's Byrne. Nor does it extend to Washington. Edward Heydinger, the manager of Marathon Oil Company's Economics Division, is upset with Washington because, as he puts it, "any mandated changes of fuel type — e.g., coal directed to electricity generation — will require more energy for production, transportation and storage." Our conservation measures don't actually save energy; they just shift its use. With government controlled oil and gas prices, it is not economic to spend money for plant conversion to cut fuel costs.

Howard Blauvelt, the chief executive of Continental Oil Co., concurs in the feeling that Washington policies are counter-productive. Conoco's inability to make money from so-called downstream operations hobbles its investment policies. "Until controls are lifted," Blauvelt says, "our policy is to make the minimum investment necessary to keep operations going but no more."

Blauvelt's final warning is ominous for a country that needs energy. "We will have to think," he says, "about directing some of our investments away from the energy business and into other areas."

It's a Very Taxing Time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's your new tax guide, folks — handy hints to help you find the handle on your Form 1040:

WHO NEED NOT FILE A RETURN

Most tax guides start off with a section called "Who Must File a Return." This year, however, it's quicker to explain who doesn't have to file a return.

You need not file a return if you meet any of the following criteria:

— You have lived all of your life in the Auckland Islands.
— You were conceived within the last nine months of the 1975 calendar year but were not born within that period.

— As of Dec. 31, 1975, you had been dead for a year or longer.

There is, however, a major exception to the provision above. If income earned after death exceeds the level set by

WHAT IS TAXABLE INCOME?

Taxable income consists of wages and salaries, fees and commissions, tips and gratuities, gifts and bonuses whether or not deserved, capital gains, emoluments and allowances, bribes, grants and stipends, winnings and findings, dividends and interest, rewards and ransoms, booty and boodle, honorariums, rent, rakeoffs, pensions and royalties, perquisites and prizes, legacies, annuities, forfeits and tributes, boondoggles and other forms of money.

WHAT IS NONTAXABLE INCOME?

Nontaxable income consists of payments derived from other planets such as Mars, Venus, Mercury and Pluto.

INTEREST EXCLUSIONS

Although most interest must be counted as income, certain types of interest may be excluded from taxation.

Example: You need not pay a tax if you are interested in stamp collecting, birds, rock formations, astrology, karate, trombone solos, the history of peaches or the girl next door.

JOINT RETURNS

Some taxpayers prefer to prepare their returns at a neighborhood beer joint or while smoking a joint.

Expenses entailed in the preparation of joint returns are not deductible.

WHAT IS DEPRECIATION?

As you grow older, you may find that you don't appreciate certain things as much as you once did. For tax purposes, this is called "depreciation."

Things that may be depreciated include cold showers, books by Cornelia Otis Skinner and the sight of a well-turned ankle.

If you are paying taxes on any of these things, you may deduct the percentage that your appreciation of them has declined.

CAPITAL LOSSES

Were you a bona fide resident of a state that lost its capital in 1975? (Example: Virginia lost its capital to General Grant during the Civil War.)

If so, you may deduct a pro rata portion of the loss based on the 1970 state census.

But if the capital was merely temporarily misplaced, no deduction is permitted.

The Way to Win . . .

Analyze Situation

By Mike Rothenberger

The story is told of a young man who quit his job and ran away from home because he was not willing to do as much work as his employer felt he should. He decided that he would go to a country far away where he had heard that he could find great riches without having to work hard. So he tied his scanty possessions into a bundle, threw it over his shoulder and set out on his journey. He had not gone far when he was overtaken by a fierce storm.

He plodded along through the wind and the sleet and the snow until he was nearly exhausted. Then to his delight he saw a small cabin just a few hundred yards down the trail. As fast as he could he ran to the shack, forced the door open and went inside. In one corner of the room stood an old pot-bellied stove. He shook his fist at the stove and commanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood." He stood and waited but he could feel no heat. And again he demanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood," but no heat could he feel. He shouted his command for the stove to give him heat until his voice became hoarse but to no avail. He pulled his coat tightly around himself and sat down on the floor by the stove. He shivered as he waited for the stove to give him heat until he collapsed and froze because he didn't realize that he would have to give the wood before he could enjoy the heat.

One person may say, "Why is it that I am always so unlucky? Why can't I have a better job so I could earn more money and be able to afford a better car and a finer, more beautiful home? Why is it that the breaks always come to someone else?" And so often that person will keep right on asking "why" instead of doing something to improve his circumstances.

Another person takes an entirely different approach. This one says, "I am not satisfied with my present status in life. I want something better. I want a better job, with a higher income, so I can enjoy more of the finer things in this world." Then he sits down to analyze his situation, to determine what he will have to do in order to get what he wants. If it requires a better job he will determine what he must do, if anything, to qualify himself for it. When he realizes what has to be done he doesn't put it off, he immediately gets busy and does it. This is the man who will succeed. This is the man who may seem to be lucky, but his secret is seldom luck, it is usually deliberate and consistent action.

When we firmly resolve to face up to the price of a successful life, when we become willing to give the wood of constant and persistent effort, only then can we expect to enjoy the heat; only then can we begin to look forward to a richer, fuller and more rewarding life. "Such is the way to win."

Heart To Heart

Your Heart Association Can Help

If you are victim of rheumatic fever, your Association can help. You need daily penicillin to avoid streptococcus infections. You can register with your Heart Office and regularly obtain prescriptions for low-cost penicillin from your pharmacist.

A rheumatic heart is the cause of death for 14,000 Americans each year.

Peter D. Corsones, M.D., a Board member of the Mid-Hudson chapter of the American Heart Association, stresses that not all sore throats are strep throats, but parents should be able to recognize the signs of a strep throat. If a child complains or shows signs of hoarseness or coughing, it probably is not a streptococcal infection. But, if the child has any of the following symptoms with a severe sore throat, you should call a doctor:

- ... The sore throat came on suddenly.
  - ... The throat hurts most when the child swallows.
  - ... It hurts when you press gently under the angle of the jaw, and the glands in the neck are swollen.
  - ... There is a fever, usually 101 to 104 degrees.
  - ... The child complains of nausea.
- Dr. Corsones added that there is no "miracle drug" to cure rheumatic fever but it can be prevented if treated adequately.

Buffalo Bill At Mt. St. Mary

NEWBURGH

In a happy combination of puppetry and music, the famous Indian scout, Buffalo Bill, will be on stage when "Buffalo Bill's Rodeo and Porcupine Tales" are presented at Mount Saint Mary College Aquinas Hall Theatre, Saturday, Feb. 14 at 2:15 p.m.

Sponsored by the College Cultural Centre, the Picket Puppet Theatre tells the stories of the old West choreographed to Aaron Copeland music. Large hand puppets perform on a 20-foot-wide stage with fresh, child-like projections on a screen at the back of the stage. A little Indian boy carrying a tree for camouflage, slinky wolves and bucking broncos are part of the choreography. The Indian stories, Porcupine Tales, are about Old Man Porcupine as "tricky a trickster as ever paddled about on four paws." At the end of the performances, the puppeteers will show the children just how the puppets are operated.

Tickets for the performance may be reserved by contacting the Cultural Centre at the College.

'Gallows Humor' Plays All Weekend

WOODSTOCK Black comedy, as conceived by playwright Jack Richardson—and served up by Performing Arts of Woodstock—opened in the art colony's Town Hall last weekend . . . and will return this weekend and next.

With Paul Cooper directing, PAW presented "Gallows Humor" to enthusiastic audiences at opening performances. Audiences tonight, and, again, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 14 and 15—will have an opportunity to see what the cheering is all about.

Briefly, it's about the impending execution of a convicted murderer, awaiting his hanging in a prison cell. And about the executioner, who looks at death from another standpoint entirely in a scene that takes place in his kitchen.

Starring in "Gallows Humor" are Martin Henderson as a prison warden, Newell Parker in dual roles as the condemned man and the executioner, and Ginger Licopoli, who plays both the executioner's wife and a prostitute.

The play will also be performed next weekend, Feb. 20, 21 and 22, with tickets available at the door for all stagings.

Weekend

Don Cossacks of Rostov Head West Point Bill

Entertainment in two highly diverse fields will attract audiences to the United States Military Academy, West Point, this weekend.

The exciting and colorful "Don Cossacks of Rostov" will appear Saturday Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. in Eisenhower Hall auditorium at West Point. The "Don Cossacks" company numbers 75 members, including singers, dancers and instrumentalists from the Soviet Union's Don River region; is internationally renowned for ambitious productions highlighted by hair-raising physical daring, precise choreography, lavish costumes and resounding musical accompaniment in the energetic Cossack spirit.

On Sunday, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. the United States Military Academy Band will present the sixth concert of its 1975-76 Chamber Music Series in the Point's Cadet Chapel, Room 1924. A special feature of the program will be the performance of selections from Bozza, Dedrick and Debussy by a saxophone quartet.

Tickets will be available at the door at varying prices for the "Don Cossacks" production Saturday, and the public is invited to attend the Sunday concert at no admission charge.

Imus-in-the-morning

Imus in New Paltz Valentine's Night

NEW PALTZ Something great is coming your way At 9 p.m. and midnight on Valentine's Day.

Brought to you by The Alley Kat, Imus in the Morning in a different hat. His disc jockey mike cast aside; He'll turn nightclub comedian in full stride.

We know you'll think it is the most; The great Don Imus is the host.

We guarantee you'll have your fill Of hilarity, sharp barbs and thrill. You'll laugh and laugh for all you're worth.

Don't miss The Greatest Show on Earth.

If owner Caroline Krom of The Alley Kat, the New Paltz discotheque on South Ohioville Road, sat down to send a card for Valentine's Day to every resident of Ulster County this week, she might well have penned the verse above on the occasion of the holiday this year.

Ms. Krom is busily reading The Kat for two Saturday night appearances by the singularly named Imus, whose normal employment is on WNBC radio in a four hour show starting at 6 a.m., but who'll be moonlighting locally Feb. 14. As one of the angry men of this generation, Don Imus expresses himself in the most vigorous and frequently funny terms. He's known for doing just that as a disc jockey and, in his adventures as a nightclub comedian, he still tells it as he sees it—and spares nobody's feelings.

For his cafe stand in New Paltz this Saturday in two separate shows at 9 p.m. and midnight, the jokes will fly fast and furiously as he limns character portraits, hits out at sacred cows, conducts humorous newscasts and telephone conversations with the great and near-great.

Appearing at the Alley Kat with Imus in the Evening will be four talented vocalists who help punctuate his lines. The act has been playing successfully for close to two years in New York City night clubs, even as the irreverent, outrageous Imus has continued to be the top morning man daily on metropolitan radio.

At Paltz, Imus can be counted on to lay the entire Western world bare. Polish himself, he allows no ethnic group or political personality or organization to escape his barbs. No offensible stone is left unturned.

You can see and hear for yourself at The Alley Kat at either the early or late show (or both) this Saturday. Most of the tickets have already been purchased but owner Krom assures us that she's reserved others to be sold at the door, so as not to disappoint those among us who don't or won't plan ahead.

Stockade Concerts Group At Old Dutch Church

The Stockade Concerts Group at Old Dutch Church will present Cecelia Reed Keehn, lyric-coloratura soprano, and G. Thomas Keehn, trombonist and euphonium soloist, in a recital Saturday, Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. in Bethany Hall.

The husband and wife team of Woodstock have arranged for an impressive program of early Italian to 20th Century music including European and American composers. Joining the soloists will be Barbara Zimet at the piano, Melissa Sweet on flute, and Leonard Zimet, English horn.

A popular soloist and voice instructor, Mrs. Keehn holds a master of music from West Chester State College. She has appeared with the Lebanon Valley College TV Opera Productions and has given recitals in many major cities including Allentown, Philadelphia, New York and Oensacola, Fla. A vocal music instructor of Kingston City Schools and UCCS,

Mrs. Keehn has done a great deal of church work both as soloist and director and is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, Music Fraternity Kingston Music Society, Music Educators' National Conference and New York State Music Educators.

Mr. Keehn, instructor of instrumental music at Miller Junior High School, Kingston Consolidated Schools, and trombonist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, earned his master of music from West Chester State College. ## Dear Abby

Children Neglect Elderly Mother

DEAR ABBY: I have an elderly mother who has been in a nursing home for the last four years. (One son and two daughters.) We all live within a 45-minute drive from the nursing home, and all of us contribute equally toward the expenses, but I am the only one who visits her. I go there every day.

My brother goes once in four months. He says, "I just can't take it. That place is so depressing!" Can you believe it? He calls Mamma on the phone maybe once a week and keeps asking her if she "needs" anything. (All she needs is for him to visit once in a while.)

My sister runs over there once a month for five minutes. She doesn't even sit down. She tells me the "smell" of that place makes her sick. How is that for an excuse?

Although Mamma gets confused once in a while, she is far from senile. I know she's hurt, but there's nothing I can do about it.

Please print this. The shoe will fit both a woman, size 6, and a man, size 10. Let them wear it!

FOR MATURE AUDIENCES

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem and I need help. I have been married for six years, and my husband still acts as though we have been married only a few days.

He won't keep his hands off me. We can have marital relations for an hour straight, and he is ready to go again in 15 minutes. I don't ever reach a climax.

Should my husband see a doctor, or should I get some energy pills?

MRS. A. IN KILGORE, TEX.

DEAR MRS. A.: Energy pills won't help. You need professional help.

(P.S. Too bad your husband wasn't born during Biblical times when a man could have as many wives as he could support.)

DEAR ABBY: I am an 80-year-old man who lost his wife last year. I'm in good health, but I am lonely.

I have become attracted to my widowed sister-in-law. (She was my wife's younger sister.) I never thought I would consider marrying again, but lately I am changing my mind because of this lady.

Is it wrong to have romantic feelings about a sister-in-law? She's 74 and a lot of fun, and she reminds me of my beloved wife.

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: When your wife died, her sister ceased being your sister-in-law. She is now as eligible as any other single woman. If the romantic feelings are mutual, proceed without guilt. Neither of you needs parental consent.

Eat and Grow Younger

Lose Weight Safely and Deliciously!

By LELORD KORDEL

Number Sixteen of a Series

The nutritional folly of gorging yourself on starchy and sweet foods was fully discussed earlier. But I want to make sure that you do not confuse natural carbohydrates with the artificial, devitalized carbohydrates that find their way into "civilized" stomachs in such appalling quantities—white breads, cakes, pastries, spaghetti, white rice, processed corn meal, dry cereals (Many cooked cereals, too), candies, and carbonated beverages.

"A minimum of carbohydrates," which is my fourth commandment for nutrition, means: Eliminate all those artificial starches which bear small resemblance to carbohydrates found in natural foods.

Half your planned campaign to regain lost youthful appearance and energy will be won when you throw artificial, devitalized sugars and starches out of your daily eating. Then reward yourself for this commendable step by turning instead to the delicious, health-building natural sweets.

Reduce With Reason
My fifth commandment is "reduce with reason."

Everyone agrees these days that overweight shortens life—certainly it prevents your looking and feeling as young as you would desire. Nothing is more aging or more inimical to youthful appearance than obesity.

Therefore, if you are seriously overweight, begin a sane reducing program at once—for the sake of your health, as well as your youthful appearance. But you must reduce with reason.

High Protein Menu

The following high-protein reducing menu is designed to produce a weight loss of no more than five to eight pounds a month. To lose more quickly than this is unwise.

You may vary or adapt this menu as you wish, interchanging one high-protein meat, fish or fowl with another; and alternating eggs with cheese. But you should confine the major portion of your fruit and vegetable consumption to those listed as 5 per cent and 10 per cent carbohydrates in the list which follows this menu:

Breakfast
One small orange, or half grapefruit, unsweetened
One slice cold meat, fish or chicken; or 1 pan-broiled minute steak

Donation: $2.50 per person
B.Y.O.B. and Mix

One boiled, poached or shirred egg (also scrambled over hot water); or one-inch cube of cheese, or 1/4 cup of cottage cheese

Small bowl of whole grain porridge eaten with fortified milk

One cup hot skim milk sweetened with 1/4 teaspoon of honey; or black coffee or tea, sweetened with a little honey if desired.

Mid-Morning

One small glass skim milk, buttermilk or yogurt; or tomato juice fortified by whipping in a little cottage cheese.

Lunch

One cup clear, skimmed broth
One slice broiled or roasted meat, fish, poultry (don't overlook liver in this diet)

One green salad, dressed either with lemon juice and very little salt, or with 1/4 cup of cottage cheese, seasoned with minced chives

One serving of fresh five per cent or 10 per cent fruit

Hot beverage, sweetened with honey only.

Mid-Afternoon

One small glass of skim milk, either hot or cold and flavored with a little crushed plums, raspberries.

Dinner

One cup skimmed beef or chicken broth
One serving meat, fish or poultry

One serving cooked green, vegetable such as asparagus or broccoli; or a tossed green salad, as at lunch

One slice whole-grain bread (but only if you must)

One serving egg custard or milk sherbet made with skim milk or buttermilk, and fortified with extra powdered skim milk.

No Gnawing Feeling

This is far from being a "starvation" menu, and I promise you won't have a lank, gnawing feeling in the pit of your stomach while following this reduced diet. Nor will you suffer any loss of energy. On the contrary, you'll feel like a new person as soon as all that high-protein food begins to take hold and as the unnecessary poundage melts away.

Carbohydrate Values

Now here are the more common fruits and vegetables classified as to their carbohydrate content, that is, to the proportionate number of calories they contain:

Five per cent vegetables and fruits: Asparagus, bean sprouts, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, endive, greens, kohlrabi, leeks, lettuce, mushrooms, okra, olives, peppers, pumpkins, radishes, string beans, summer squash, Swiss chard, tomatoes, watercress, cantaloupe, honeydew melon, lemons, watermelon.

Ten per cent vegetables and fruits: Beets, carrots, onions, oyster plant (salsify), rutabagas, squash, turnips, blackberries, cranberries, currants, gooseberries, grapefruit, limes, oranges, peaches, strawberries.

Fifteen per cent vegetables and fruits: Lima beans, green parsnips, fresh peas, apples, apricots, blueberries, sour cherries, grapes, loganberries, mulberries, pears, pineapple, plums, raspberries.

Twenty per cent vegetables and fruits: Beans (dried or canned) lima, kidney, navy; corn, potatoes, bananas, cherries, sweet grape juice.

'Be My Tootsy-Wootsy—Or I'll Break Your Armsy-Warmsy'

By Tobie Geertsema

Valentine's Day is for lovers, right? Those swinging singles out there in Sweetheart Land? Those young-at-heart and young-in-age courting couples who dance the night away?

Wrong! It's odd but true—sweethearts, lovers and single people get fewer valentines on Feb. 14 than almost anyone. At least that's the way it is in America, where the vast majority of valentines end their way to mothers. Moms get three times as many valentines as sweethearts and fiancés, and they can thank their sons, daughters and husbands for the honor.

Even teachers, though privately maligned by students, do better on Valentine's Day than the object of our affections. Buttering up teacher is traditional (and an absolute necessity this one day of the year). As a result, teachers get bushels of valentines; run mom a close second in the standings. For that matter, aunts, sisters, brothers and even uncles, say card manufacturers, get more valentines than sweethearts.

Valentine's Day itself takes a back seat only to Christmas as an occasion for sending cards. This year, being Leap Year, an extra-large volume of valentines will go through the mails in this country—easily 500 million. Apparently, the women's liberation movement will have little effect on this tradition. In a year when it's OK for women to ask men to marry them, women will continue to propose to men, either in jest or not.

Nobody seems to know when that particular habit began. Leap Years like 1976, when February has 29 days, date back to 46 B.C., when Julius Caesar's astronomers inserted an extra day every four years on the Julian calendar. But the first mention researchers have found of reverse proposing appears in a Scottish law of 1288 that reads: "It is ordained that during Leap Year any maiden lady of high or low estate shall have the liberty to bespeak the man she likes. Albeit he refuses to take her to be his lawful wife, he shall be mulcted in the sum of one pound, except he can make it appear that he is betrothed to another."

And, because it's Leap Year, thousands of humorous valentines of the gal-gets-guy variety are sure to crisscross the mails this year. A local sampling turned up this thought above love: "Valentine, my heart belongs to daddy. The rest of me is up for grabs." Another notes, "I've already had 25 handsome young men ask me to be their valentine. Would you believe it?" Inside, that's amended to: "Would you believe five middle-aged gents?" Then the payoff line: "How about one dirty old man?" But the briefest Leap Year card says: "Be my tootsy

wootsy . . . or I'll break your armsy warsy."

Small wonder, then, that more cards are sent for Valentine's Day than any other occasion except Christmas. After all, it's the oldest holiday celebrated in the Western world, dating back some 1,500 years. Still, not all card senders wear their heart on their sleeve, even in Leap Years like 1976. Roughly a third of all valentines sent this year will be either unsigned or marked "guess who?"

Anonymity, however, was the furthest thing from the mind of the man who gave Valentine's Day its start. That would be a Roman priest named Valentinus, who was executed in 246 A.D. for refusing to renounce Christianity. He penned a final, affectionate note to his jailer's daughter and signed it loud and clear: "From your Valentine."

Dr. MacFarland Urges Reform At Grass Roots

KINGSTON
Are you old enough to remember America, when a nickel was worth five cents, when a boy was a boy and a girl was a girl, when you didn't have to lock your doors at night, when people knew right from wrong?

Do you realize the most awesome danger in the world for America is Russian Military Power . . . Russia's best equipped land army . . . its military budget which increases yearly?

Are you aware that an individual American citizen is sovereign only because he is created to the image of God?

Do you know the American System — economic and political — rests on a spiritual foundation; if the foundation goes, so goes the "system."

These are but a few of the thought-provoking questions from Dr. Kenneth McFarland's powerful talk Wednesday night at the 51st annual Washington Day dinner at Bethany Hall of Old Dutch Church.

Referred to as the nation's number one speaker in the country today, Dr. McFarland's moving address more than upheld that reputation as almost 300 business and civic leaders crowded into the hall to hear the noted educator who had returned to Kingston for the third time at the invitation of Old Dutch Men's Club.

Dr. McFarland of Topeka, Kansas, has been described as a man "literally living for his country by devoting his life to the preservation of its basic virtues and ideals." The demand for McFarland as a speaker caused him to be designated as America's Number One Air Passenger. He was presented with a special award by Capt. Edditt Rickenbacker for flying more than any other American on this country's domestic airlines.

Why does he work all day and fly all night? He is a man with a mission; he is trying to make Americans aware of what a great country this is.

When did flag-waving become corny?

Why are there so many hyphenated Americans: Red-Americans, Black-Americans, Chinese-Americans?

What government men have done to intelligence services comes near to treason!

Americans trust their garbagemen more than their congressmen.

Saving America is a grassroots job.

Educating the youth of America is of prime importance, says McFarland who for 24 years enjoyed an outstanding career as a school executive. College students today at age 34 are still on campus "trying to find out who they are. I knew who I was at age four."

People today are frustrated. McFarland's remedy is "putting things in perspective." National problems are national in scope, but local in solution.

"It's time for citizen participation, time to stand up and be counted." The place to solve national problems is right in our own backyard. McFarland's own daughter, a judge, reduced the rate of crime in her county 52 per cent. Her method of reducing crime is "to enforce the law."

An authority on the subject of law enforcement, McFarland's studies, achievements and speeches in this field have won the acclaim of lawmen and laymen alike. He is an honorary member of the Fraternal Order of Police, author of the Topeka Plan for Law Enforcement, a system now adopted in his home city, and recipient of the Optimist International President's Award.

The true American System, based on morality, can be taught in schools, said the world traveler. Although the System "can be improved, it is still the best in the world." Again, McFarland stressed the importance of "perspective." He referred to a talk he gave recently in connection with the canonization of Mother Seton, founder of the parochial school system in America. "Patty Hearst made the cover of Time magazine twice, Squeaky Fromme, once . . . Mother Seton never made it."

Regarding free enterprise, "There is nothing the government can do that private endeavor can't do better." The time to act is now during the country's Bicentennial. Whether the problem be crime, business, education, politics, every American citizen can do something about it. "This is the God-given time to campaign," to meet and to act, to show "faith in a system that brought us as far as it did."

Last year, McFarland was presented with the Free Enterprise Exemplar Medal by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. A national award, only one is presented each year.

Solomon-Stella

"Wind Sculpture" by Accord sculptor Beau Solomon (L) and works by photographer Frank Stella of Ellenville (R) are teamed in the current, February-long show at Kingston Trust Company's Kerhonkson branch. Solomon, who studied in Paris and New York, has shown his unique "wind sculpture" driftwood creations throughout the area. Stella, who studied photography at New York City's Germain School, has exhibited in many local shows. Their combined talents produce a show of unusual interest.

It's Not Nice To Fool Dana Dietrich . . .

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Most television commercials these days are as amusing as a head cold, but an exception is the margarine ad in which a displeased Dana Dietrich declares, "It's not nice to fool Mother Nature" and zaps the environment.

Miss Dietrich also appears as Danny Thomas' nurse in the new NBC half-hour com-

Dana Dietrich edy, "The Practice," which ranked 21st in the national Nielsen ratings in its premiere Jan. 30.

"Mother Nature has been a mixed blessing," Miss Dietrich said in an interview. "I've never stopped being grateful because it brought me instant recognition, but I lost jobs because of it, too. I'd be up for a part and I'd get turned down because I was too identified with Mother Nature."

"But over-all it's been more of a blessing. A lot of people want to see what that crazy lady is like."

Commercials were Miss Dietrich's bread and butter as an actress before her sudden fame as Mother Nature and she has made more than 200 of them. She went to test for what turned out to be her magic commercial at the end of a long day. She was in competition with a huge number of actresses.

"I just wanted to get home," she said. "I went in feeling really giddy. They presented me with an armful of artificial daisies and I started singing, 'The hills are alive with the sound of music...' and throwing the daisies around. Everyone thought I was bonkers, traipsing around like some wood sprite."

"I was not even their image of Mother Nature — I understand several of the advertising men saw her as pleasingly plump, a sort of Jewish mother type. Then I went nuts — I was just having fun with it. I never thought the commercial would go."

"I got the part and we did a test commercial in a field in Connecticut with one grip, a cameraman and a director. We did a 60 second demo, real fast, for $3,000 — which is like a nickel in that business."

"It was test marketed in a couple of small cities and when the results came back they just faint."

Miss Dietrich is delighted to be involved with Danny Thomas — discreetly, of course — in a show that is funny with medical overtones, or perhaps it's vice versa.

"We'll hit some serious themes," she said, "but we'll approach them with humor. Medical shows on television these days are all death, doom and destruction. You watch them and you take your pulse, you don't feel so good. Or else they are comedies. Shows are either comedy or not comedy today and that's not what life is. Life mixes 'em up."

TV Ignores the Working Woman

Women who work outside the home have just suffered another major setback.

It seems major advertisers have overwhelmingly rejected them for their ads in favor of the stereotyped housewife. Frankly, I believe bad breath, perspiration, dingy laundry, embarrassing itching, and dandruff should be shared. Why should women who stay at home reap all the benefits of their misery?

I just don't understand advertising. It has only been within the last 15 years that black people have enjoyed nagging backaches and been allowed to squeeze toilet tissue. (They still don't ride on the bus with Fred MacMurray or get to coat their stomachs with an antacid.)

Some of my best friends are career women. I even took one to lunch the other week on her day off and discovered some real revelations.

Other than the fact she goes to the office each day, she is like a real person. She cooks, cleans, does the laundry, and entertains.

She has colds, trouble sleeping, iron-starved blood, and occasional irregularities. She wants a bank she can trust, a wax that "wakes up your wood," a coffee that her husband doesn't smart off about and the best peanut butter for her kids.

"You know something, Wanda," I said, "if you had dry skin you'd be just like one of the girls."

"But I do," she said. "I also have chapped lips, oily hair and use a soap that doesn't get me clean."

"Don't lie to me, Wanda," I charged. "If that's true how come I never see you on TV dipping little plastic dolls in residue to see how your soap leaves a film on your entire body?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "No one ever asked."

Later, in the laundromat,

Wanda and I were folding clothes when we were approached by a man who said to Wanda, "I'll give you $50 for that raggy T-shirt."

Wanda looked at him directly in the eye and asked, "Why?"

"Because I want it," he said, "to prove something."

"You've already proved it," said Wanda. "You're not playing with a full deck, and if you don't take your little scissors and split, I'm going to call the home."

Maybe the advertisers were right. Wanda just doesn't fit the image they're looking for.

SPORTS TODAY

Canada's Kreiner
Nixes Rosi's Bid
For Third Gold

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Kathy Kreiner, a Canadian teenager with a passion for riding motorcycles, today ruined Rosi Mittermaier's bid for a triple crown of Alpine gold medals when she defeated the West German by 12-100ths of a second to win the Olympic giant slalom.

Mittermaier, attempting to become the first woman at the Olympics to win three Alpine golds following her earlier victories in the downhill and slalom, had the better time in the top half of the course, but she lost her bid for glory on the bottom half.

Kreiner, who won a World Cup giant slalom in 1974 at Pfronten, West Germany, clocked 1 minute, 29.13 seconds in her gold medal run to the 1:29.25 of Rosi. Danielle Debernard of France took the bronze in 1:29.95.

No Americans finished in the top 10 of the final Alpine race for the women. Lindy Cochran of Richmond, Vt., had the fastest U.S. time, 1:31.33, for 11th place.

Mary Seaton of Hancock, Mich., finished an unofficial 17th and Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., bronze medalist in the downhill, was 21st.

Earlier, Jan Egil Storholt won Norway his second gold of the Games when he took the men's 1,500-meter speed skating title from Russia's Yuri Kondakov and Hans Van Helden of Holland.

Dan Carroll of St. Louis, bidding for a medal in his second Olympics, finished 5th, Erich Heiden of Madison was seventh, and Mike Woods, replacing 1,000-meter gold medalist Peter Mueller, was 23rd.

The Soviet Union won the biathlon relay gold medal, with Finland taking the silver and East Germany earning the bronze.

Kreiner started first in the field of 45 and saw her time stand up as the favorites, unable to get anything out of the conditions, failed to get near her time.

Mittermaier went off fourth and the crowd was behind her as she zoomed down to the fastest intermediate time. Just as it appeared the Triple Crown was hers for the taking, Rosi, 25, seemed to lose her pace. She finished first in the Alpine Combined, although no medal is awarded for the Combination.

Mittermaier was attempting to join Austria's Toni Sailer and Frenchman Jean Claude Killy as the only athletes to win the Olympic Alpine Triple Crown. Now she has to share the women's record with Switzerland's Marie-Theres Nadig, who won the downhill and GS at Sapporo four years ago, and America's Andrea Mead Lawrence who won both slaloms at Oslo in 1952.

The United States was favored to win the women's figure skating gold medal later in the day. Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., held a commanding lead after the compulsories and barring accidents, she will join such famous U.S. skaters as Tenley Albright, Carol Heiss and Peggy Fleming as the Olympic champion.

Dorothy Stuart Hamill is 19, can hardly see without her glasses, stands 5-foot-3 and weighs 121 pounds, but on the ice she is every bit a princess.

She is the best free skater in the world. Her peers say it and the record books say it. She has won the free skating segment of the world championship for the last two years, and would have won the overall championship had her compulsory figures been half as good as her free program.

But that was in the past. Dorothy, under the watchful eye of Carlo Fassi, perfected her routine figures during the last six months, and went into tonight's final in the overall lead, a position she never enjoyed in the last two world championships in which she had to try and come from behind to win the gold medal but ended just short.

John Curry of Britain, the men's champion who is also a Fassi pupil, has no doubt Dorothy will earn the points from the judges and the bouquets from the crowd after she has taken the ice. "She will win," he said when asked how he thought Hamill would do. "No question about that, she will win."

Curry, of course, could be biased because Dorothy is his friend and training partner in Denver, but as a champion, one must respect his opinion.

"She will win, no question about that..."

California-born Dianne de Leeuw, the reigning world champion skating for the Netherlands, may not agree with Curry, but she surely must have noted how the judges scored their ordinal points (first place votes—low scoring).

After both sets of compulsories, which score 50 per cent of the overall points, Dorothy had 10.0 ordinals and 88.40 points to the 25.5-86.44 of Dianne. In lay terms, the ordinal points mean that eight of the nine judges voted for Hamill. All she requires is for five to vote her into first place.

On the face of it, John Curry is not sticking his neck out too far in tipping Dorothy Stuart Hamill to win. Tenley Albright, medical doctor, has left her patients to fend for themselves so she could see Dorothy win in person and join her, Carol and Peggy as girls who won the Olympic skating title for America.

Dorothy will skate 14th in the field of 20 finalists with de Leeuw going last.

Also in the field were Wendy Burge of Garden Grove, Calif., and Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., who placed sixth and seventh, respectively, after the compulsories.

Kathy Can't Believe It

AXAMER LIZUM, Austria (UPI) — Kathy Kreiner is 18, blonde, and still can't believe she is the Olympic giant slalom champion.

"It hasn't really hit me yet, you know," she said after staging one of the biggest upsets in Olympic Alpine skiing when she defeated Rosi Mittermaier by 12-100ths of a second to ruin the West German's bid for the first Triple Crown by a woman in the history of the Games.

Kathy, one of two skiing sisters from Timmins, a nickel mining town in northern Ontario, said she was surprised as anyone else at her victory, only her second in major international competition.

Holding the winner's bouquet of red roses, laughing and talking, she said, "It hasn't really hit me that hard yet, you know."

The women's Olympic giant slalom is something of a Canadian specialty. Nancy Greene won the title two Olympiads ago at Grenoble in 1968.

"I can only do my best and today it came out all right," she said. "I feel I haven't been trying my best all winter. I was too nervous."

Kathy said she gained confidence in Wednesday's slalom. She would have had the sixth fastest time on the first run if she had not missed a gate.

She found today's 4,022-foot course, which dropped 1,275-feet through 49 gates, perfect for her style of skiing.

"It was quite open. It was not too tight and you could really let your skis run and attack it," she said. "It was one of my better runs. It was an aggressive run."

Kathy also had the advantage of being first out among the top 15 seeded skiers. Her time was 1 minute, 29.13 seconds, 12-100ths of a second faster than Mittermaier.

Kreiner said she did not feel bad about spoiling Rosi's Triple Crown bid.

"Well, she has three (medals) and I have only one—three is better than one," she said.

Kathy is in her fifth season of World Cup racing and until today her only victory was at Pfronten, West Germany, where she won a GS in 1974. She is a very nervous racer, which has impeded her progress.

Her older sister, Laurie, 21, also skis for Canada and finished in 27th place today. Laurie's specialty is the downhill, but she was disappointed at her placing today after finishing fourth in the event at Sapporo four years ago.

KATHY KREINER STORMS DOWN OLYMPIC GIANT SLALOM COURSE

Nothing Bashful About Jensen

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — This will say something about the brash attitude of the U.S. Olympic hockey team:

Following the impressive 7-2 rout over Poland Thursday that put the U.S. within one victory of a medal, Steve Jensen was asked to compare the aggressive attitude of the Americans to that of the Philadelphia Flyers.

"You can't compare us to the Flyers," said the 20-year-old wing from Michigan Tech. "We're a lot better skating team and we pass the puck as well or better."

"I'm not saying we could go out and beat them, but we play a different game."

It was this kind of cockiness that could have got the Yanks in trouble Thursday. They are seeded below Poland in the Olympic tournament, yet they almost took the Poles for granted.

"The guys had built up their confidence so much that we felt Poland was the underdog," Jensen said. "Because of this, maybe we tightened up a little and the guys were getting on each other."

"We had a tough time getting mentally adjusted, but after two periods we loosened up."

With a medal in sight after six months of intensive preparation, the U.S. wasn't about to kick it away. Jensen and linemate Bob Dobek notched two goals each and the Americans capitalized on four of seven power-play opportunities.

Dobek, who also set up Jensen's first score, got both of his on power plays. Other goals were scored by Gary Ross and Buzz Schneider.

Jim Warden, playing his fourth consecutive game, was credited with 40 saves and one of the two goals he allowed, to Leszek Kokoszka, came on a Polish power play late in the second period. Wieslaw Jobczyk got the other goal for Poland.

With Czechoslovakia beating West Germany, 7-4, in the second game Thursday, U.S. hopes for a silver medal were wiped out. But the Americans can claim the bronze by beating West Germany in their final game of the round robin championship Saturday afternoon.

"We're looking straight ahead," Warden said. "Some of the guys were saying could lose today and still get the bronze by beating Germany. But that's not the way we wanted to do it. We made up our minds to win the last two games for ourselves and the people who have backed us all season."

Russia leads the pack with a 4-0 record following a 7-2 victory over Finland Thursday night.

Pete Tells It

Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., tells news conference in Innsbruck how he won the 1,000 meter speed skating event in the XII Olympic Games, giving U.S. its second Gold Medal. Looking on with happy smile is fiancée, Leah Poulos (L) who won a silver medal in the women's 1,000-meter event. (UPI)

Swede Leads Skaters

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Jan Egil Storholt won Norway his second gold medal of the Winter Olympics today when he took the men's 1,500-meter speed skating title despite very cold weather conditions and winds gusting up to 45 miles per hour.

The weather was so bad racing had to be held up for a half hour and before the competition was concluded, four of the 34 entrants, including 1,000-meter gold medalist Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., withdrew from the race. Yuri Kondakov of the Soviet Union finished second with Dutchman Hans van Helden, third.

Dan Carroll of St. Louis, skating in his second Olympics, finished fifth, but he has been hampered all week with the after effects of the flu.

Storholt, skating in the fourth pair with Kondakov, clocked 1 minute, 59.97 seconds to the 1:59.38 of the Russian. Both times bettered the Olympic record of 2:02.96 posted by former Dutch star Ard Schenk, who clocked 2:02.96 at Sapporo, Japan, four years ago en route to his triple gold medal performance. But the time was just short of Schenk's world figure of 1:58.70.

Carroll, 26, skating in the fourth pair with van Helden, looked dejected when he finished in 2:02.26, the Dutchman being caught at 2:00.87.

Eric Heiden of Madison, Wis., who made the race after his teammates decided he should run and not Charles Gilmore of Anaheim, Calif., finished seventh in 2:02.40 and Mike Woods of Milwaukee, replacing Mueller, was 23rd in 2:08.77.

Dave Marcis Was 'Flat Flying'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Buddy Baker summed up Dave Marcis' drive Thursday afternoon in the first of two 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's Daytona 500 about as well as anyone could: "He was flat flying."

Marcis, a Dodge driver from Wausau, Wisc., was lagging more than six seconds behind Baker's Ford with two-thirds of the race gone. But he put on a show of speed that brought the estimated 40,000 fans to their feet, cheering.

Zippering past Baker in turn 3 less than 5 miles from the checkered flag, Marcis opened up a handsome 5-car-length space that Baker was never able to make up, despite a last-lap challenge that left the two drivers only inches apart as the race ended.

"Our car was handling better and running better," said Marcis after the race. "I had put on a set of tires during my last pit stop and I think that was probably what made the difference."

A. J. Foyt, who turned the fastest lap in qualifying for the pole last Sunday at 187.477 miles per hour, ran in the second 125-mile event Thursday, but was forced out with mechanical problems. Nonetheless, he will start 31st Sunday.

Foyt, Marcis and Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn. were disqualified during last week's competition because NASCAR officials allegedly found illegal equipment on each driver's car. They were permitted to run, however, in Thursday's events which decided starting positions 3-40.

The ruckus put little-known Ramo Stott of Iowa on the coveted inside pole with Terry Ryan, another Iowa driver, sitting alongside.

It was Waltrip that bested Richard Petty by 23 seconds in the second event Thursday, edging out the famed Randleman, N.C. driver for the 4th starting spot and knocking him back to 6th.

Flashing his famous ear-to-ear grin, Petty said "Ole Blue didn't run too bad considering."

In the first of Thursday's two events, John Banks, a Canadian, lost control of his Dodge as he passed the start-finish line and headed into turn one with only four laps gone. His vehicle skidded onto the apron, began tumbling end-over-end, and bounced back into the track scattering debris over a wide area. He was pulled from the mass of tangled metal apparently unharmed, but taken to a local hospital for observation.

Deadline in Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mayor Wes Uhlman and the City Council faced a Saturday deadline to decide whether to go along with King County and the State of Washington in exchanging a lawsuit for a 1977 American League expansion team.

The city's officials were meeting today to begin final discussions on a request by league owners to drop the legal action.

The state and county are willing to halt the trial of the suit they and the city filed against the league after Seattle's only entry into big league baseball — the 1969 Pilots — were moved to Milwaukee in 1970.

However, Uhlman and some council members have expressed doubts about dropping the suit which could cost the league and its owners $32.5 million in damages.

The trial, in recess this week, has had four weeks of testimony at nearby Everett and would run an estimated six additional weeks if carried to a conclusion.

The AL offered the 1977 expansion franchise as a settlement and has signed a contract to award the franchise to a group of five Seattle businessmen and entertainer Danny Kaye. League owners have given the plaintiffs in the trial until Saturday to decide if they will drop the suit.

State Attorney General Slade Gorton said the trial would be resumed Tuesday if the city does not agree to the settlement.

Uhlman, who said of baseball owners, "I trust them as far as I can throw them," indicated the city might drop the suit without a cash settlement if there are ironclad assurances the new franchise is protected from transfer.

Cleveland
Upgrades
Modzy

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Veteran defensive line coach Dick Modzelewski of the Cleveland Browns today was named the NFL club's defensive coordinator, replacing Richie McCabe, who quit two weeks ago to become a defensive backfield coach with the Buffalo Bills.

"I'm thrilled, I welcome the position because it's a good challenge and I can't wait to get started," said Modzelewski, whose entire nine-year coaching career has been with the Browns. "It's more responsibility, too, because not only will I be coaching the defensive line, but I'll also be overseeing the linebacker coach and the secondary coach."

"The title 'defensive coordinator' is just that, a title. It's not a one man job because you work with two other coaches and discuss the whole defensive game plan. We'll have to agree with one another before we do anything. We'll discuss it, work hard together and do what we believe is best because any championship team definitely has to have a damn good defense."

Head Coach Forrest Gregg, who, along with owner Art Modell, made the choice to elevate "Mo," said the move would "really help the morale of this defensive team."

Modzelewski is well respected by all the players, especially those who have played for him," Gregg said. "I'm talkin' about the defensive linemen."

"The remainder of that defensive football team respects him because they know what type of man he is. He demands the most from those people, he expects the most and I think he gets the most from them."

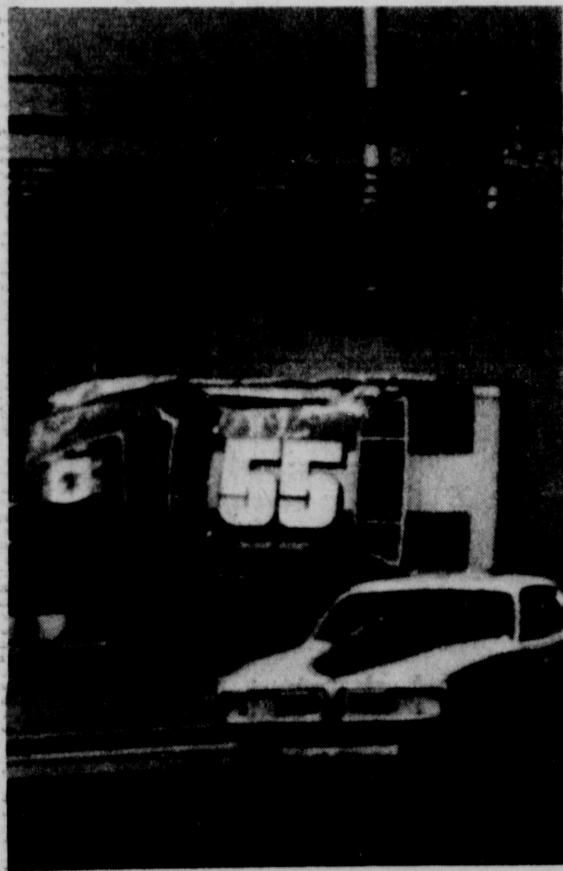

In many respects, Gregg and Modzelewski, who has a one-year contract, share the same coaching philosophy—you gotta have guts, play hard by putting out 'till it hurts and then go one step further because you want to be the best.

"Exactly!" Gregg emphasized. "When you put somebody (like Modzelewski) in a position like that it's always best if they believe in the same type of things you do."

"Some people, even though they don't believe it, will teach whatever you ask them to teach. But it always helps if you don't have to do a selling job on that man who, in turn, has to do a selling job on the players. Believe me, Mo's well qualified to direct our entire defense."

Modzelewski, twice passed over for the Browns' defensive coordinator post in favor of McCabe and before him Howard Brinker, was one of the better tackles in the NFL despite his being somewhat smaller than most of the men who played the position. He was drafted out of Maryland in 1953 by the Washington Redskins, went to Pittsburgh two years later, then found his real niche with the New York Giants starting in 1956. He became part of the famed "Fearsome Foursome" and did much to help the Giants win a league crown and four conference titles in seven years.

The Browns acquired him in 1964 (when Cleveland won the NFL Championship) in exchange for wide receiver Bob Crespino. Mo ran his consecutive game playing streak to 180 games before retiring after the 1966 season. He scouted for Cleveland the following year, then was appointed to the Browns' coaching staff for the 1968 season.

Ulster Nearer Regional Berth

STONE RIDGE
Ulster County Community College survived a potentially dangerous foul situation in the Senate Gym Thursday night and held off visiting Orange CCC, 86-70 to take a big step toward clinching second place in the Mid Hudson Conference basketball race.

"This pretty well clinches it for us," said UCCC coach Mike Perry whose squad improved to 6-2 in the MHC with only two games remaining.

A berth in the Region XV tournament is usually tendered to the conference runner-up, but as Perry was quick to point out that honor is not automatic.

"We have to go to Kingsboro next... I don't ever remember winning a game in Brooklyn, and then we have to play at Nassau after that. If one of those teams knocks us off we might not get selected."

At least Perry can think about the future now. The Colts, despite a 3-15 record before the game against Ulster, were by no means a pushover victim.

"That's what happens when you have to play six guys all the way. They get tired, and they start fouling," Perry said. "We had to go to a zone, and we didn't get the one and one until the last three minutes."

After controlling the first half of the contest, rolling to a 42-31 halftime lead behind a 22 point outburst by Joe McCall, the Senators began to struggle in the second half. McCall cooled off, and the fouls began to build until five Ulster players carried four personal apiece.

Phil Blount got inside and carried Ulster for awhile, but Orange came out shooting at a devastating 76 per cent clip and whittled the UCCC lead down to eight points.

The switch to the zone enabled all the Senators to stay in the contest. The winners shook off the threat with five minutes remaining on key steals and easy layups by Bill Bellamy and Ray Younger.

Turnovers marred the contest on both sides. "It was a sloppy game," Perry said. But the coach wasn't refusing the win. "I'm glad we got it. We're now, and I said before the season started that I'd be happy to be .500."

McCall topped the scoring list with 28 markers, and Blount's total came to 21, 15 of which he sunk in the second half. Newton Medder led the Colts with 25 points.

FREE THROWS... Game was 45 minutes late in starting because referees went to Dutchess instead of Ulster first... Ulster currently ranked sixth in regional poll... next opponent Kingsboro right behind in seventh position... Recent regional developments have included a close loss by Orange to Farmingdale and a Dutchess victory over the Aggies. They influenced Perry to say, "This is the weakest I've ever seen Region XV since I've been coaching."

Snead Credits Four-Leaf Clover

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — In his money clip, firmly pressed between a couple of $20 bills, J.C. Snead carries a four-leaf clover.

Ordinarily Sammy Snead's nephew isn't a superstitious man, but he is now.

Snead claims that had it not been for the fact he found the four-leaf clover Thursday, he wouldn't have shot a seven-under-par 65 that gave him the lead by a shot over ailing Curtis Sifford, improving Peter Oosterhuis and Jerry Pate and steady Bruce Crampton.

Picture the situation. Snead has hit his second shot on the par-four 11th hole at Torrey Pines North Course into the top or back lip of a bunker fronting the green. It is going to take a near miracle for him to lift the ball onto the green.

Snead is only two-under to this point, and all he can see is a five or six for the hole. Studying his lie in the sand, Jesse spots a

Riessen Says He's Underdog

TORONTO (UPI) — Marty Riessen had just finished polishing off Tony Roche in the quarterfinals of the World Championship Tennis even when match officials urgently needed a substitute to play an exhibition match.

"Sure I need the practice," said Riessen, whose 6-1, 6-4 victory over the fourth-seeded Australian Thursday vaulted him into Saturday's semifinal against Swedish star Bjorn Borg.

The top-seeded Borg defeated Vijay Amritraj of India, 6-3, 6-4, to take his spot in the semis. He used a strong serve and long rallies from the baseline to force the Indian into mistakes.

For Borg, who has defeated virtually every big name in the game since he crashed the international tennis fraternity three years ago, it was his first ever win over the Indian. They had played twice before, in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills in 1974 and last year in Charlotte, N.C.

The 19-year-old Swede will indeed be a challenge for the 34-year old Riessen, of Amelia Island Plantation, Fla., who has failed to beat Borg in three tries.

"I'm really the underdog," Riessen said to no one's surprise as he looked ahead to Saturday's match. "He (Borg) does everything well. But if you're going to win a tournament you have to beat the best players."

He said he'd play the same kind of aggressive game that already has carried him past South African Frew McMillan and Roche in this $64,000 tournament.

"I'm gonna do the same thing I did tonight against Roche. Chip to his backhand, stay away from his forehand. There'll be a lot of rallies and I guess something will happen."

The second round of the quarterfinals is to decide the other set of semifinalists will be played tonight at the CNE Coliseum when second ranked Ilie Nastase of Romania meets Czechoslovakian Jiri Hrebec and another Czech, Jan Kodes, plays Vitas Gerulaitis, the third-seed.

Saturday's semifinal winners will compete for the top prize of $17,000 Sunday. The runner-up will win $7,000.

Sentence Due Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Sentencing is scheduled today for former University of Kentucky football player Elmore Stephens and two other men in a case that triggered an investigation of the University of Kentucky football team.

Fayette Circuit Judge Charles Tackett will issue sentences for Stephens, 23, of Lexington, former UK student football manager John Bishop, 22, of Louisville and Robert Channels, 22, of Lexington. The three were convicted Jan. 24, of kidnapping and reckless homicide in the October abduction and death of Luron Eugene Taylor, 24, of Lexington.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated more than 11 hours and recommended sentences of 21 years in prison.

Defense attorney Henry Hughes tried unsuccessfully last week for a new trial for the three and asked for their release on bond. Hughes indicated he would appeal to the state supreme court for a new trial.

Stephens, Bishop and Channels were accused of kidnapping Taylor shortly before midnight Oct. 11, 1975. His body was found 10 days later in the Ohio River at Louisville, the victim of strangulation.

Dudley Was the Key

By United Press International

It was fitting that reserve guard Charles Dudley should play a key part in the Golden State Warriors' triumph over Atlanta, the only team in the National Basketball Association they hadn't whipped this season.

Dudley's three-point play with 1:53 left helped Golden State pull away to a 113-104 win Thursday night, in what had been a see-saw contest.

Coach Al Attles' timely use of Dudley and other reserves was a hallmark of the 1975 championship drive and is, in part, responsible for the Warriors' current 38-15 record, the best in the NBA.

Dudley's key play Thursday night came after he swiped a rebound.

"I go for the boards a lot for a guard," he said. "It just is an instinct."

Phil Smith, who scored 30 points, said Dudley "is a vicious rebounder for a guard and he has a tremendous instinct for the ball. This tremendous instinct for rebounding is what keyed the Warrior victory."

Jamaal Wilkes kept Golden State even with Atlanta en route to his game-high 34 points. The score was tied at 99-99 with 4:06 left before the Warriors bolted into the lead to stay with eight unanswered points, three of them by Dudley.

The Hawks rallied from a 32-25 first-quarter deficit to take a 59-57 halftime lead behind the scoring of John Drew, who had 33 points. At the third period break it was tied at 82-82 and Tom Van Arsdale kept the Hawks even for most of the duration with 13 fourth-period points.

In other NBA games, Cleveland stopped Chicago, 86-83, and Washington whipped Portland, 92-81. There were no games scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

Cavaliers 86, Bulls 83:

Jim Clemons scored 17 points, including a key foul shot with only 34 seconds left, to lift Cleveland over Chicago. The victory kept the defense-minded Cavaliers, who have now held opponents to less than 100 points in 12 of their last 13 games, on top in the Central Division. Bob Love, John Laskowski and Jack Marin got 18 points each for Chicago.

Bullets 92, Trail Blazers 81

Elvin Hayes scored half his 24 points in the third period to lead Washington past Portland. The Blazers, down 76-57 after three periods, ran off an 18-2 spurt to close the gap to three points, but could get no closer. Dan Anderson and Larue Martin led Portland with 14 points each.

Danbury Stops Hawks, 103-98

DANBURY, Conn. — The New Paltz State basketball team will have to wait until Saturday to try to become the first Hawk squad in 13 years to notch ten victories in a season.

The bid to achieve that distinction Thursday night failed in the face of a hot shooting Western Connecticut club which sent the Hawks home with a 103-98 setback.

Torrid shooting boosted the winners out to a 15 point bulge halfway through the contest. Even though Keith Yizar dumped in a game high 29 points and sparked New Paltz to a 57 point explosion in the second half, the rally wasn't enough to catch the home team.

Western Connecticut put three shooters over the 20 point mark and four in double figures. Ken Hudak had 24, Kevin Nowlin had 23 and Levi Jackson added 20 to power the Indians who connected on well over 50 per cent of their attempts from the field. Scoring in bunches the winners zoomed to a 56-41 halftime advantage and ran up a lead as big as 23 points in the second half.

New Paltz made a move, but it simply came too late. Down by 17 with just three minutes remaining, the Hawks surged to within five before time ran out. Gary Fisher helped the late spurt by scoring all ten of his points in the last eight minutes.

Tom Booker had 15 for New Paltz, and teammate Ron Monroe added 14 points and 11 rebounds.

The Hawks, now 9-9 on the year, host York College Saturday.

Haig Award To Chris

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charming Chris Evert, a 21-year-old tennis pro who earned a record $352,227 for one season last year, was named today the first winner of the Haig and Haig Woman Athlete of the World award.

Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., numbered the United States, French and Italian Opens among her tennis titles in 1975.

She collected 620 points in balloting by an international panel of sports writers to win a $10,000 prize and a sterling silver trophy. Evert will receive the awards at a luncheon here March 19.

Francie Larrieu, the 22-year-old UCLA junior from Los Angeles who set American outdoor and indoor records in the 1,500 meters and mile run, was second in the balloting with 318 points.

Swimmer Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., who distinguished herself in the 1975 Pan American Games with six medals, including two gold, was third with 219 points. Austrian skier Annemarie Proell Moser turned in brilliant performances on the slopes last winter and received 137 points for fourth place.

Coach Bartow's Critics Will Be Eating Crow

By UPI

Critics of UCLA Coach Gene Bartow will be eating crow before the end of the season, according to Washington State mentor George Raveling.

The Cougars, who fell victim to UCLA at Pullman, Wash., last Saturday, traveled to Pauley Pavilion Thursday night — only to be beaten again.

And according to Bartow, his team has finally begun to peak after the Bruins smashed the Cougars, 104-78.

"We're extremely pleased with our play tonight," said Bartow. "I feel that we are starting to peak. There is no time to relax in the next six games. Tomorrow we will start preparing for Washington, our biggest game of the year."

The Huskies are in second place behind UCLA in Pacific-8 play with a 6-2 record after a 93-75 victory over Southern California Thursday night. UCLA and USC switch opponents Saturday.

UCLA's Marques Johnson, who scored 19 points and grabbed six rebounds, said, "We are starting to play the kind of basketball that is synonymous with UCLA."

Seven-foot junior center James Edwards scored 20 points, hitting 10-of-12 shots, to lead Washington past Southern Cal. The Huskies are now 19-2 overall.

It was Washington's second win in a week over the Trojans, whose record fell to 0-8 in conference play and 11-10 overall.

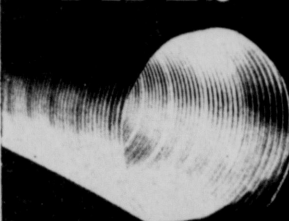

"It's always good to win in Los Angeles," said Coach Marv Harshman. "We felt if we played hard for the first five minutes of the second half, then we could make them play to us — and that's exactly what happened. I was surprised they didn't zone us. UCLA gave us fits with a zone last week."

Edwards was helped by Kim

Stewart and Ken Lombard, who each had 15 points, and Lars Hansen with 14. Greg White and Casey Jones led the Trojans with 16 and 13 points.

In other major action Thursday night, South Carolina downed Fordham, 75-65, Drake edged Bradley, 96-94, and Southern Illinois upended 19th-ranked West Texas State, 66-57.

Q. Who makes the only club cab pickup with 4-wheel drive?

A. Dodge. You can get a Dodge club cab with an extra 34 cubic feet behind the seat and rugged 4-wheel drive down below.

Q. Which full-size pickup has the biggest standard payload?

A. Dodge. The Dodge conventional pickup has the biggest standard payload of any pickup going. Bigger than Ford's. Bigger than Chevy's. Without beefing it up one bit, you can haul off a whopping 1,505 pounds.

Q. Which full-size pickup got the best gas mileage?

A. Dodge. In the latest EPA tests, a '76 Dodge D 100 — powered by a 225/6 cylinder engine with a manual transmission — turned in an estimated 25 miles a gallon on the highway. And 18 in the city. Of course, the actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your truck's condition and optional equipment. In California, see your dealer for mileage data for California equipped vehicles.

Q. What's the lowest-priced, full-sized pickup?

A. Dodge. Manufacturer's suggested retail price for a Dodge D 100 conventional pickup is only $3,677. And that beats both Ford and Chevy. (Based on a comparison of manufacturers' suggested retail prices for 6 cylinder half-ton pickups excluding optional equipment, state and local taxes, destination charges.)

Mahoney Is Speechless After Historic Victory

By UPI

The Vancouver Canucks surprised everyone by winning their first regular season game ever against the powerful Montreal Canadiens and Coach Phil Mahoney was nearly speechless.

"What can you say after a great victory like that? I feel like a bridegroom. It's the first time we've beaten them and it's been a long time coming," he said Thursday night after the Canucks dashed to a 4-0 first-period lead and drubbed the Canadiens, 6-2.

Canuck goalie Ken Lockett, who inherited the regular spot when Gary Smith was suspended, shared Mahoney's sentiments—but had a little more to say.

"Anytime you get two points in here (Montreal), it's great. These are two points you don't figure on getting when they make the schedule," he said. Lockett also predicted that Smith, who got the boot when he walked out after being pulled midway through a game, would return to the club.

"There's no way they're going to let a good goalie like him sit out the rest of the season," he said.

Ron Sedelbauer scored two goals and Dennis Ververgaert and Mike Robitaille got one each as the Canucks opened up a 4-0 lead. They extended it to 5-0 early in the second period on Ververgaert's second goal—a 60-foot drive past goaltender Ken Dryden.

Peter Mahovich scored a pair of goals for Montreal.

In other NHL action, Philadelphia trounced the New York Rangers, 6-1, and New York Islanders tied Kansas City, 2-2.

In the World Hockey Association, Minnesota stopped Quebec, 6-4, and Houston beat Phoenix, 4-1.

Flyers 6, Rangers 1

Rookie Mel Bridgman and Bill Barber scored two goals each as Philadelphia overpowered the Rangers. Bridgman's first goal put the Flyers ahead, 1-0, in the first period and they increased their lead to 3-0 in the first 25 seconds of the second period on scores by Barber and Bobby Clarke.

Islanders 2, Scouts 2

Denis Potvin took advantage of a two-man power play to score at 9:52 of the third period and give the Islanders their tie with Kansas City. The Scouts, winners of only one of their last 18 games, have now gone four games without a loss, three of them ties. It is the longest non-losing streak in the club's two-year history.

WHA

Minnesota spotted high-scoring Quebec a three-goal lead, then roared back with five straight goals to beat the Nordiques. Quebec's Marc Tardif, the league's leading scorer, had two goals and an assist to boost his point total to 103. Houston got first-period goals from Mark Howe, Murray Hall and Larry Lund and coasted past Phoenix.

Ali Is Stung Like a Bee

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali was floatin' like a butterfly down Interstate 94 Thursday until State Police Trooper Douglas Murphy stung him like a bee with a traffic ticket.

Ali, who owns an 80-acre farm in this far southwest Michigan area, was clocked at more than 105 miles per hour in his 1971 Rolls Royce convertible.

Murphy, undaunted in the presence of the world heavyweight boxing champion, promptly wrote out a summons and let Ali resume his trip.

The trooper said Ali took the ticket with uncharacteristic stoicism. It was the second time Murphy, 28, of Coloma, Mich., has given the champ a ticket.

"I stopped him for the same thing last September," Murphy said. "I told him once was plenty, but twice was time to take action. He was very courteous."

The trooper said he spotted Ali's car and a Datsun 240Z driven by John Demas, 24, of Chicago, apparently racing in the eastbound lanes of the interstate at midday. He chased after both and they both pulled over for him.

"I don't know what made them start racing. But I think the young guy egged Ali on a little bit. The kid was completely flabbergasted by the whole thing, mainly seeing Ali driving down the road. Kinda like I was the first time around."

Murphy added that Demas "stood there babbling" so much Ali never had a chance to say much to the trooper. He said last time Ali was much more talkative and the boxer apparently recognized Murphy from their previous encounter.

A local court will mail Ali and Demas a notification of the fines they face for their speeding. They can plead guilty and pay the fine by mail or contest the ticket and appear in court.

Maximum penalty for the violation is $100 and 90 days in jail, but Murphy said the judgments against both drivers probably would not reach the maximum.

Arnsperger Named

OXFORD, Ohio (UPI) — New York Giants' head Coach Bill Arnsperger heads a list of four Miami University graduates selected for induction into the school's Athletic Hall of Fame.

Chosen along with Arnsperger were Jeff Gehring, the second highest basketball scorer in Miami history; Dick Klitch, a standout in tennis and basketball; and Arthur Thatcher, football center and hurdler in track.

Cruyff Quits in Huff

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Soccer star Johan Cruyff Thursday announced he was leaving the Barcelona club as a result of a dispute with coach Hennes Weisweiler.

"I have asked to be released," the Dutch hero of the 1974 World Cup told reporters. "I'm definitely leaving Barcelona."

A spokesman for the club said Cruyff will be released, but only after his contract expires on June 30 this year.

Cruyff made his announcement after club officials vainly attempted to bring about a reconciliation between the star forward and his coach.

Weisweiler succeeded Barcelona's Dutch coach Rinus Michels this season.

Last Sunday, Weisweiler retired Cruyff from the field in mid-game when Barcelona was losing against Seville.

BEACON Kingston High girls trounced Beacon High 70-49 in a Dutchess County Scholastic League contest Wednesday, but Coach Pat Burke of Kingston was quick to point out that the Tigers' margin of victory was misleading.

"It wasn't the runaway it seems," said the KHS coach. "We didn't break away from them until the fourth quarter." Kingston led 33-27 at the half and 46-39 before racking up a 24-10 margin in the fourth quarter.

Ertha Burris led Kingston with 22 points, 11 steals and 3 assists. Lori Eaton was runnerup with 16 points and 12 rebounds, while Lynette Byrd had 8 points and 7 steals.

The Kingston defense has yielded an average of 41 points in 12 games, while the offense has accounted for a 52.8 average.

Nets, Pistons In Jr. Finals

SAUGERTIES It will be the undefeated Nets and red hot Pistons in the championship playoff finals of the SAA Junior Basketball League. Wins in the semi-finals set up the big showdown between the 13-0 Nets and a team that after a slow start has won eight of its last nine games.

In first round action, Raiders were forced into overtime to shade the Royals, 58-52, while the Pistons stopped the Bucks 47-41. In semi-finals, Nets crushed the Raiders 64-36 and Pistons beat the Lakers, 46-39.

Chris Wilson led the Nets' semi-final win with 22 points. Mark Sinnott stuffed 20 and Bill Peetoom 18. Joe Rick hooped 11 and Mark Abeel 10 for Raiders. Pistons piled up a big early lead to coast against the Lakers, as Dave Kime led with 18 points and Chris Kerbert canned 14. Kevin Yates of the Bucks took game honors with 21 points and Eric Haun hit 10.

Raiders outscored Royals 10-3 in the overtime after a 48-48 standoff in regulation time in the first round, while Pistons wiped out a 5-point Bucks lead in the final two minutes of play.

Mark Abeel led the Raiders with 18 points, Scott Peter potted 16 and Joe Rick 11. Rich McNally led the Royals with 17 and Bruce Goble 15. Mark Edmunds was the hero for the Pistons with 24 points, including 8 in the crucial last period. Dave Kime backed him with 13. John Beckert led the Bucks with 23.

The Biddy Basketball League championship game will be played Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Cahill School gym. Then action moves to the Senior High gym for the Junior (13-15) league's title game between the Pistons and Nets at 8 p.m.

Jean Adams

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

ALMOST?: (Q.) Joe and I hang around each other a lot. I feel great when we are together, but my problem is that he has a girl friend. I know he doesn't really like her or we wouldn't spend so much time together.

Once he almost kissed me. We were at a phone booth at school. My friend came over and caught us so we didn't, but we would have.

His girl friend isn't pretty and she is fat. Joe is just feeling sorry for her. That's why he likes her. What can I do? I really like him and I know he'd be happier with me.—15 in Pennsylvania

(A.) As far as I can see from your letter, Joe hasn't told you he doesn't like his girl friend, and he hasn't told you that he does like you.

You want it to be that way, however, and you have decided that that is the way it is. Sometimes we can fool ourselves very convincingly. I believe you have done that to yourself.

Slow down; get your feet on the ground. Until Joe takes some definite step to date you, or at least to declare that he likes you better than the other girl, don't build your hopes up so high.

WRONG GIRL: (Q.) I am going out with this girl, Kim. She is nice and treats me really good. But I do not much like her. The reason is that I like this girl Shelley, and she likes me too. How do I tell Kim I don't want to bother with her anymore?—Stuck in Massachusetts

(A.) You are not stuck. You do not have a contract for life to take Kim out. When you no longer want to take her out you can stop.

You don't HAVE to explain to her but it would be kind and decent to tell her the truth—that you like someone else and want to go with her.

You don't have to tell Kim who the other person is if you don't want to.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

South won and went after hearts. West ducked the first heart lead, but had to win the second one.

Then West entered into some sort of trance. He had a feeling that somehow or other there might be something wrong with his opponents' bidding. Finally, he led a diamond and East cashed three diamond tricks.

A Case of 20th Century Practicality Versus 'Lifestyle'

By Jon Powers

WOODSTOCK
The telephone—that marvel of modern technology that brought fame to Martha Mitchell, a fortune to Ma Bell and new life to heavy breathers everywhere—has cost a Woodstock woman her job at Ulster County Community College.

Susun Swede doesn't have a telephone; can't afford one and wouldn't tolerate its presence even if she had the money. She sees the contraption as an intrusion on her own particular lifestyle that is purposefully out of step with 20th century computerized America.

UCC, however, is very much a 20th century institution. If Susun doesn't get a phone, she doesn't get a job.

From September, 1973 through December, 1975, Susun served as a continuing education instructor at the college's Stone Ridge Campus. The courses she taught—broad baking, homesteading, herbal medicine and mushroom walks—reflected both the increased popularity of an agrarian and nature-conscious lifestyle and the college's own commitment to offer unique learning opportunities to the community it serves.

Things went smoothly—except for an occasional complaint by custodians at the college after Susun used live goats and chickens to help illustrate a classroom lecture—until she received a letter on June 2 from Ronald A. Koster, associate dean for continuing education.

Koster first mentioned that Susun's students had responded enthusiastically to her courses, then dropped his bombshell.

"We do come up against a problem, however, in that as we depend on you more and more, we really need to be able to contact you quickly and easily," wrote Koster. "The lack of a home phone has so far only been inconvenient to us in working with you, but the more courses and sections that you teach, the greater potential for problems to arise."

Later in the letter, Koster wrote, "It is difficult for us to express this policy to you because we do not want you to feel that you must alter your lifestyle in order to work with us; but we cannot afford to undermine the efficiency of a 20th century office in order to be compatible with a nineteenth century mode of living."

Ignoring Koster's suggestion, Susun refused to install a telephone in her Woodstock home.

On Nov. 18, Koster wrote a second letter informing Susun that, because she still had no phone, she no longer had a job. Her courses were not renewed for the Spring, 1976 semester.

Susun says she doesn't particularly care about the job, although the $1,900 salary last year did help support herself and her daughter. She does, however, consider the college's phone rule a violation of her individual liberties and freedom of choice. To that, she objects strongly.

Koster, however, says he isn't trying to tell Susun how to live her life, but as far as the college is concerned, the issue is one of practicality, not philosophy.

"My responsibility is to the continuing education program and the people it serves," said Koster. "Susun was warned in advance that she must have a telephone. I don't have the time to negotiate with people and I don't have the time to track down people who don't have a telephone."

Susun maintains, however, that at no time has Koster ever tried unsuccessfully to reach her. She says her neighbor has a telephone and that she can also be reached at the Woodstock Health Food Center, where she works.

Koster says the continuing education office has, on several occasions, tried unsuccessfully to reach Susun by telephone, and that the possibility always exists that an emergency will arise when immediate contact with an instructor is required.

Koster emphasized that the telephone rule is not a college policy, but a practice that he alone established. "And it will remain a practice," he said, "until the college tells me to change it. If Susun objects, I think she would be better off appealing to the president or the Board of Trustees."

No use, said Susun. "It's Koster's rule," she commented, "he made it, he can change it." She is, however, considering a civil suit.

In his Nov. 18 letter, however, Koster left the door slightly ajar. "We hope that if and when you get a phone," he wrote Susun, "you will let us know, so that we may welcome you back into the program."

Triskadekaphobes, people who believe their unlucky number comes up on Friday the 13th, could have their worst fears confirmed by this combination of black cat and drastic destruction. Traditionally the calendar coincidence is a day to be wary of all omens. To allay the quails of the superstitious, it must be noted that it was an earlier ill wind that toppled the tree that broke the car. The Shokan family's cat is merely on an inspection tour.

Ulster Down $1 Million In The 'Game'

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON
Albany's version of "Jeopardy", "Who Do You Trust" and "Let's Make a Deal" began in earnest today with the leaking by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee or projected state aid to education figures for the next fiscal year, projections that show a decrease for Ulster County's nine school districts of more than $1 million.

Gov. Carey, as is customary, opened the game on Jan. 19 with a budget message warning of deep cuts in aid to education, to the tune of $110 million, statewide.

Formulas of sorts were offered, which if carried to conclusion showed losses in aid ranging from $92,000 to over $400,000 in the Kingston Schools District. Plenty of room to bargain there.

Things become "specific" today. The loss figure for Kingston, based on Carey's formula, will be $356,230. Saugerties would lose $135,204, Rondout Valley, $136,011, Onteora, $93,380, New Paltz, $86,969, Highland, $78,669, and so on.

Efforts to confirm those figures, widely broadcast and published, bogged down in the Albany bureaucracy.

A spokesman for the governor's office was emphatically noncommittal. "Those figures do not represent the final means of allocating aid," he said. The spokesman expected the governor to issue "final figures" in a week to 10 days.

The governor's public relations person referred the Freeman to a public relations person over at the State Education Department who confirmed that the Republican minority of the Assembly's Ways and Means Committee had asked for figures.

Unfortunately, he didn't have them, referring the Freeman to Stanley Raub of the State Education Department's Office of Financial Services.

Raub had heard about the figures, he said, but didn't have them either. He referred the Freeman to Dr. John Poley, associate commissioner for planning.

Poley was "in conference" but his secretary referred the Freeman to Dr. Malesky, director of educational finance. Malesky wasn't in. His secretary referred the Freeman to Dr. Poley. Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., offered some perspective. "There's nothing final about these by a long shot," he said referring to figures which he said he hadn't seen.

"This is highly speculative," he added. "The legislature had a long way to go before we have a final formula."

That final formula, if history is a teacher, will reflect the realities of an election year and that has invariably meant increases, not cuts, in state aid to education.

Grim Warning to Farmers

By Jon Powers

HURLEY

Terming the farmer "America's most endangered species," the president of the New York State Farm Bureau warned Thursday that the agriculture industry in the Northeast could go bankrupt if government continues to impose controls and restrictions.

Richard McGuire, a dairy farmer in Washington County, addressed some 50 farmers Thursday at an all-day "Empire Farm Clinic" at the Hurley Fire Hall. His message was clear and simple: continued outside interference will drive more and more farmers out of business and jeopardize America's food producing capabilities.

"The rules and regulations are made by people who don't understand the problem," said McGuire. "We enjoy a challenge, but our opponents are continually refining the rules of the game. What we need is less audience participation."

McGuire, in particular, pointed to what he termed a "progressive movement of land use planning." He noted that, although most of the private land in the United States is owned by farmers, they are seldom consulted on land use planning issues.

"Farming is the largest industry in the country, it is the most important industry and it is the basis of our economy," he said, "but we are continually being overlooked. We must make an attempt to communicate with the decision makers."

McGuire said environmental regulations have also placed unnecessary restrictions on the farming industry. Pollution of New York State's waterways was once blamed on the runoff of fertilizers and insecticides from farm lands, said McGuire, until the farmers argued that they were conservationists long before the word came popular. "We have always protected our land," he said, "because without it we can't live."

"But right now we're fighting a defensive ballgame," he said, "and those who are creating the pressures will ultimately be the losers."

"We must convince the consumers that agriculture must survive in the Northeast," McGuire added. "It would be unfortunate if it takes a famine to finally get our point across."

The dairy farming industry, in particular, is facing a crisis, said McGuire. The farm bureau president predicted that the

"milk dumping" incidents of last year will be repeated again this year.

"Fifteen per cent of all the milk produced in the Northeast this year may be dumped," said McGuire. "not because there aren't people who need it or want it, but because there aren't facilities available to manufacture it."

McGuire further predicted that dairy farmers threatened with losing their milk may try to sell the product at any price. That could result in a sharp decline in milk prices in May and June and could force even more dairy farmers out of business.

"Farmers are competitors," said McGuire, "and that is one of the hallmarks of success. What we need is for government to leave us alone and let us compete. . . . We have the opportunity and the capability to produce all that we need. All we have to do is turn it loose."

Thursday's farm clinic also included pre-entations by representatives from Agway, Allis-Chalmers, MC Corp. and Chevron, and covered new developments in corn planting, fertilization, production and insecticide management. Four other clinics will be held this month in western and northern New York.

Feraca Sr. Files Lawsuit

PORT EWEN

Joseph Feraca Sr., the center of a storm of controversy one year ago when the Esopus Town Board refused to reappoint him to an 18th consecutive term on the town constabulary, has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against the town and five former or present officials.

In his lawsuit, Feraca cites three separate actions: an allegation that he was libeled by the respondents; that they denied him certain benefits to which he was entitled under the Civil Service Law; and that he was discharged without a hearing. Feraca is seeking $500,000 in damages for each action.

Named in the lawsuit, which was filed in Ulster County Supreme Court, were John Bowman, a former councilman who retired on Jan. 1; councilmen George Villiell, Thomas Johnson and Frank Bell, all of whom served on the town board last year as well as police commissioner Frank Wiest.

Villiell, Johnson, Bell and Bowman all voted against Feraca's reappointment in January, 1975, acting on the recommendation of police commissioners Wiest and Carl Cline. Cline was not named in the suit.

"I am not suing for my job," said Feraca today. "I am suing for what the town board did to me."

Feraca is employed as head security officer at Kingston High School and is president of the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) unit in the Kingston School District. He is represented in the lawsuit by the Poughkeepsie law firm of Miller, Moran and Spiegel, which often represents CSEA members.

The respondents are represented by town attorney Norman Kellar, who said Thursday that Feraca's claim to certain civil service benefits only pertains to permanent appointees; Feraca was appointed on a yearly basis. And Kellar noted that Feraca was not entitled to a hearing because he was not discharged. "He simply wasn't rehired," said Kellar.

The town attorney also noted that Feraca did not specify how he was allegedly libeled by the town board members.

The dispute between Feraca and the town board erupted into a series of stormy meetings last January and February. Although a number of town residents argued for his reappointment, the town board did not relent.

Nuclear Leak After Warning

WATERFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Only days after a federal nuclear expert warned of potential hazard at the Millstone nuclear plant, radioactive material accidentally discharged outside the power facility on Long Island Sound.

Three experts from the federal Nuclear Regulatory Agency were investigating the leak today, while a call was made in Hartford for public hearings on the future and safety of Connecticut's nuclear power plants.

"There was no injury to any members of the staff. No member of the public was involved whatsoever," said Northeast Utilities spokesman Eugene Sturgeon.

The official account said about "three bathtubsfull" of contaminated liquid spewed outside the plant, but a Norwich Bulletin reporter on the scene said the radioactive discharge lasted for 15 minutes and spread over an acre of land east of the Millstone One reactor building.

A spokesman for Northeast Utilities said the radioactive material did not go beyond a fence surrounding the sprawling nuclear complex. Yet officials with detecting devices scoured private property outside the fence for presence of the dangerous material, according to the Bulletin.

The newspaper quoted John Opeka, manager of Northeast General Services, as blaming human error for the accident. The mistake resulted in a pipe bursting and letting loose radioactive steam which condensed in the outside atmosphere.

The Bulletin said eyewitnesses reported the vibration shock of the emergency shutdown made steam pipes tremble throughout the complex.

Before plant workers were permitted to leave, officials used Geiger counters to inspect more than 300 employee cars, the paper said.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Agency said three agency employees will investigate the accident.

Spokesman Robert Ingram said, "We generally take this kind of action when there is radioactive material released outside the reactor itself."

Since 1972, the plant has been shut down for repairs several times arising from pipe cracks, pipe vibrations and from sea water leaks into the reactor, records show. The leak, follows by three days a former federal safety engineer's warning that a third nuclear unit now under construction at Waterford is potentially unsafe.

New Blue Law Complaint

HIGHLAND

Another scene in the involved drama of Sunday Blue Law enforcement in being acted out in Highland, where the owner of a small grocery has filed a complaint against the local Grand Union.

Lloyd Town Justice Lewis DiStasi told the Freeman that representatives of that chain food store will be in town court Saturday morning for arraignment.

Stephen Gadaletto of Clintondale, who runs Gadaletto's Market in Highland, has filed the complaint naming Grand Union store manager Don Juhl as defendant for keeping his business open Sunday.

But the complaint is not that Gadaletto feels all businesses should be shut Sundays, just the large chains. The reasoning is that the small corner store cannot economically compete Sundays against the chain, which sells all manner of other objects besides food.

State law makes no distinction between large and small businesses in its trade restrictions for Sundays, and this point is more an emotional than legal issue.

That point was brought out at a special Dec. 29 meeting in Highland attended by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, Town of Lloyd Supervisor Jon Decker, State Senator Richard Schermerhorn, Assemblyman Emeel Betros, and about 40 other townspeople.

Vogt told the merchants et al that his position was to give blue law violations low priority because his opinion held it was impossible to enforce the law equally.

A local ordinance would probably run into the same problem of constitutionality if it discriminated against larger retail stores on the basis of sales, according to Decker.

The issue in Highland is restricted to one complaint against a company that has not yet had an arraignment on an issue that has not been widely enforced. A company spokesman has reportedly said Grand Union will ask for an adjournment, which would probably have to be granted.

For a case by Poughkeepsie merchants challenging the constitutionality of the state blue laws is even now in the State Court of Appeals, and town justice court cases from all over the state are reportedly awaiting that decision.

UPI DATELINE

Wholesale Prices Unchanged

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices were unchanged in January as the cost of food and farm products declined for a third consecutive month, the Labor Department said today.

A 1.8 per cent drop in farm and wholesale food prices last month offset an 0.4 per cent increase in the prices of manufactured goods — the smallest advance in six months.

Wholesale prices have shown little or no change since October, when they rose a substantial 1.8 per cent. They were unchanged in November and dropped a slight 0.4 per cent in December.

Boeing: Nothing Illegal

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission has alleged that Boeing Co. paid bribes to foreign government officials similar to those of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Boeing immediately denied the SEC allegations, but appealed to a federal court in Seattle Thursday to protect its internal documents from "needless disclosure."

The company said no illegal political contributions were made, but fees were paid to sales representatives and consultants to assist foreign sales. Foreign government officials were never used, it said.

Guerrilla War Vowed

LUSAKA — Pro-Western forces abandoned their makeshift military headquarters in southern Angola today and all but formally conceded defeat to the advancing Soviet-backed troops. But they vowed to strike back with guerrilla-style attacks for the next decade.

The army high command of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola ordered its troops to abandon the last southern strongholds, including Serpa Pinto — which only Thursday was named as the movement's new military base.

But the high command, in a statement released in Lusaka, Zambia, said the fighting is far from over.

A Warning to Soviets

WASHINGTON — A somber Henry A. Kissinger has called the Russian intervention in Angola "a pattern of behavior that the United States will not accept."

The Secretary of State said at a news conference Thursday the Angolan intervention, if continued, will have serious consequences which affect other relationships.

"It is a pattern of behavior that the United States will not accept," he said.

Memorial

In loving memory of our mother Mathilda Banks who passed away Feb. 13, 1974. Although it hasn't been so long since she has passed away, we still remember with a tear how bad we felt that day. The end was not unexpected but yet it made us cry. For the sadder part of all was that she never said "Good-bye." Each time we look at her picture, she seems to smile and say, "Don't worry dear, I'm just sleeping, we'll meet again someday." She was a thoughtful mother in our hearts she will always stay. She was always here when we needed her. And we miss her more each day. So for those who still have their mother. Guard her with loving care. For you'll never know what loneliness is. Till you find she isn't there. Sadly missed, CHILDREN

Ford Few Dollars Ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because there's "a good deal of expense" connected with the office, President Ford ended his first full year in the White House with only $1,239 in the bank after earning more than $250,000. But increasing values for property he owns pushed his net worth over the $300,000 mark, according to the financial statement he released Thursday.

The only liabilities listed were $1,200 in "general debts outstanding."

He said he paid $62,270, or 42 per cent of his $147,683 gross income, in federal, state and local taxes in 1974. Ford took office in August, 1974. The White House said his combined taxes for 1975 could exceed $115,000 once the returns are filed.

The figures were part of a breakdown of Ford's income, taxes paid and major deductions from 1966 through 1974. The White House called on GOP challenger Ronald Reagan and all other candidates to release a similar report.

Common Cause Thursday released financial statements of various sorts provided by Ford, Reagan and nine Democratic presidential candidates. Reagan's did not reveal annual income, taxes paid or net worth.

Neither Ford's report nor spokesman Ron Nessen offered a specific account of how Ford spent the $135,000 difference between his $250,000 1975 salary plus expense account and his estimated taxes of $115,000.

"There's a good deal of expense connected with being President," Nessen said. He mentioned clothing, meals and entertainment for the President and his wife, family vacations and the cost of sending their four children to college.

According to the statement, Ford's net worth was $323,489 at the end of 1975, compared with $256,378 on Sept. 30, 1973. The White House did not say what his net worth was when he became President, so it was not clear when the increase took place.

But Nessen said almost all the increase was attributable to escalating values for three properties Ford owns in Virginia, Colorado and his native Michigan. Ford is collecting rent on all three properties but Nessen didn't say how much.

"It's generally agreed he's paying a very large percentage of his income for taxes," Nessen said. "People in that income bracket normally don't pay that much. He has no interest expenses, which are normally a large deduction for most people. He owns all his property outright and his own personal philosophy is to not make any effort to find things that some people find to avoid taxes."

Fun(d) City Deficit Billion

NEW YORK (UPI) — The exact amount of New York City's deficit may exceed $1 billion, a figure that could throw askew current plans to put the financially shaky city on sound economic footing.

Mayor Abraham Beame and fiscal experts spent the Lincoln's birthday holiday Thursday trying to determine how much the city's fiscal condition had deteriorated since last fall when the original deficit estimate was formulated.

Sources said the new deficit figure was expected to surpass previous assumptions by about $300 million and may reach $1.024 billion.

The Mayor planned to brief the City Council leadership and Board of Estimate on the deficit situation today before the formal meeting of the Emergency Financial Control Board, which was created last year by the state to oversee New York's financial affairs.

The board is in the process of reviewing the city's financial state with the idea of mapping out a new fiscal plan. In addition to the deficit calculations, Beame was expected to present to the board details of his proposed cutbacks on capital projects already underway.

Since October the city has operated on the assumption that its deficit — the amount by which expenses exceeded revenues — was $724 million. The official plan to balance the city budget within three years was predicated on that assumption.

But Beame disclosed last month that revenues had fallen short of his expectations and such expenses as welfare and Medicaid had increased faster than anticipated. He said then that the $724 million

A new estimated deficit of more than $1 billion would mean even more severe city budget cuts in the remaining two fiscal years of the three-year plan, which already calls for spending cuts of $300 million in the fiscal year ending July 30 and cuts of $262 million in each of the next two fiscal years.

Beame has estimated that the city could lose $160 million a year if President Ford's proposed budget is adopted and another $202.5 million if Gov. Hugh L. Carey's state budget becomes law.

Good 'Pot' Marks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's drug abuse chief says marijuana is less dangerous to health than either tobacco or alcohol and "pot" users should not be threatened with jail.

"There is no question that alcohol and tobacco are causing us far more health problems than marijuana does," said Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) at a press conference Thursday.

"Personally, my view is that we do not have to threaten young people with imprisonment to discourage use of marijuana."

DuPont, a medical doctor, said he personally favors doing away with jail sentences for simple possession of marijuana for personal use, and substituting civil fines.

"For the first time in the five years our organization has been in business, there's no difference between the government's position and ours," responded Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

Reminded that opposition to decriminalizing marijuana still may exist in the White House or other areas of the administration, Stroup amended his response to say, "there's no difference between NIDA's position and ours."

NIDA is the government's leading agency in drug abuse treatment, prevention and research.

DuPont said he did not believe his personal views were inconsistent with President Ford's drug abuse policies.

Sky's Safety Favored

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — The people of Guatemala have turned their attention to rebuilding shattered lives and homes — although fear of more earthquakes still keeps many living outdoors.

Daniel Parker, the chief of the U.S. Agency for International Development, toured towns west of the capital Thursday, surveying the hardest hit areas in a country where more than one-fifth of the population now is homeless.

"I have seen earthquake damage before but it never fails to shock," Parker said. "What we saw was stark and dramatic."

The government said Thursday 18,901 persons died in the Feb. 4 earthquake and the hundreds of aftershocks that rocked the country over the last week. It listed 82,432 injured and more than one million homeless.

'Tania's' Bragging, Escapades Bared

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst fidgeted nervously and sniffled while the voice of "Tania" confessing a bank robbery floated across a courtroom still shocked by a bomb blast at her grandfather's fabulous San Simeon estate.

The prosecution climaxed its case against her by playing to the jury the tape recording in which the 21-year-old newspaper heiress bragged about her part in the holdup of a San Francisco bank.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. said he needed about one hour today to clean up the government's case, which involved 32 witnesses, a movie of the robbery and the taped admissions made by the defendant. Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said he would start the defense by calling Steven Weed, Miss Hearst's former fiancé, to the stand.

The "This is Tania" message recorded three days after the April 15, 1974, robbery highlighted Thursday's court session, but it was overshadowed by the terrorist bombing at William Randolph Hearst's San Simeon estate 180 miles south of San Francisco.

In statements outside the courtroom, the heiress' parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, said the explosion must have been in retaliation for Miss Hearst's denunciation of her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnappers.

"It's an attempt to terrorize Patty," said her mother. "It shows the vicious, terrible people Patty was with. It's no wonder Patty was afraid of them."

Randolph said the $1 million bombing of a guest house near the baronial castle built by his father was an "outrage" and a

"stupid, vicious thing to do to the people of California." The Hearst family gave the estate to the state several years ago.

A hushed, packed courtroom heard Miss Hearst's soft but firm voice on the oft-played tape recording. She nervously fingered her face while the tape was being played, then wiped her nose with a handkerchief after it had finished.

"This is Tania," she said on the tape — which was the subject of a three-day legal battle won by the prosecution when U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter ruled Miss Hearst made the recording "voluntarily."

"On April 15, my comrades and I expropriated $10,660.02 from the Sunset Branch of Hibernia Bank."

She went on to say the idea she was brainwashed was "ridiculous to the point of being beyond belief." She scorned her parents and called Weed a "sexist pig."

"I am a soldier in the people's army," she concluded. "Patria o muerte: venceremos."

The jurors followed written transcripts of the recording. The seven women and five men knew nothing of the San Simeon bombing and had not yet heard Miss Hearst's story that she joined in the robbery, made the tape and participated in a Los Angeles shooting incident because she feared for her life after being terrorized by her kidnappers.

Before playing the tape, Browning called to the stand eight FBI agents who told of finding weapons in the San Francisco apartments where Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris were captured.

His final witness was agent Thomas Padden, one of the two officers who arrested Miss Hearst and fugitive Wendy Yoshimura at their apartment last Sept. 18.

Fifth Marlow Charge Completed by Board

By Carl Graham

BOICEVILLE

The Ontario Board of Education hearing to unseat Dr. Frank Marlow as school superintendent gathered momentum Thursday night, completing the fifth of seven charges against him and starting on the sixth.

Bernard Lapo, an Ontario teacher who negotiated a two-year contract for the Ontario Non-Teaching Employees Association for the 1973-74 and 1974-75 school years, was called by S. James Matthews, the board's special attorney for the hearing.

The board's fifth charge against Marlow alleges that he illegally put in a beginning salary level (Step Zero) for new employees in violation of the ONTEA contract, resulting in a successful ONTEA grievance against the district and possible liability for back wages. The board eliminated Step Zero in April, 1975.

Lapo said all pay grades contained 13 steps, with all employees frozen at the step they were on when the contract was signed. Lapo said that Step Zero appeared on the 1974-75 salary schedule although it had not been negotiated and that he first became aware of it when he saw the agenda of a board meeting.

Lapo said he first talked with Dr. John Keough, the business administrator, and then Marlow, who agreed that Step Zero had not been negotiated. Lapo said he then advised Barbara Stickler, ONTEA president to file a grievance against the district. After the hearing the board eliminated Step Zero and put all new employees on Step One salary levels.

Marlow's attorney, Joseph Hill, established that during the period from July 15, 1974, to Feb. 10, 1975, the board appointed 14 persons to Step Zero salary positions, that none of them complained, and that Lapo or board members had not complained either.

Marlow took the stand and said he put Step Zero into the schedule because it was possible for persons hired after July 1, 1974, to start at the same salary as previously employed persons and that he felt it would have a deleterious effect on employees.

Marlow read from the board's April, 1975 minutes

Grant's Ordered To Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The W.T. Grant Co., the nation's third largest chain of variety stores, has been ordered to sell its assets and close its stores in two months.

Federal Bankruptcy Judge John Galgay Thursday declared Grant's, which has been in business for 70 years, officially bankrupt and told the company to liquidate its assets in an order which will put the firm out of business within 60 days.

Company President Robert H. Anderson said Grant's hopes of reorganization under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy law, which began last October, represented the best plan he had ever seen.

"If only the circumstances of the past few days could be altered," he said, "we certainly would have a good chance at success."

Police Beat

By Matt Spiring

ELLENVILLE

Mrs. Arlene Sashin, 43, of 18 Sandra Street, Ellenville, was killed Thursday night when she was struck by a car on Main Street in the Village of Ellenville. Police charged the operator of the car with driving while intoxicated.

Police said Mrs. Sashin, wife of Ellenville Central School District Business manager Sol Sashin, was walking along the east side of Main Street (Route 209) shortly before 7:20 p.m. when she was hit.

The driver of the car, identified as Mrs. Julie Ann Horvath, 36, of 30 Clinton Avenue, went to a nearby MacDonald's Restaurant immediately after the crash and police were summoned.

Mrs. Sashin was rushed to Ellenville Community Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival. A ruling by Coroner Arthur C. Chipp is pending the outcome of an autopsy.

Ellenville police Chief George Sheeley said that before patrolmen reached the scene Mrs. Horvath drove off and went to a friend's house, but that she appeared at police headquarters about 15 minutes later and was not charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Mrs. Horvath was arraigned on the driving while intoxicated charge before Village Justice Ronald Elias and was released on $1,000 bail pending further court action.

The fatality was investigated by Sheeley, Lt. John Phillips, Patrolman Peter Williams and Assistant District Attorney Paul Gruner. The case will go to the grand jury, Gruner said.

Paltz Altercation

A call to the New Paltz emergency communications center early today requesting an ambulance at Pat and George's Restaurant, 91 Main Street, where a woman had reportedly broken her ankle while dancing on platform shoes led to the arrest of two persons—not because the report was unfounded, but because two onlookers gave police problems when they attempted to move the crowd back so emergency personnel could get to the injured woman.

Police said Frank E. Stanley, 20, of the Village Arms Apartments not only allegedly refused to move after police were asked by emergency personnel to disperse the crowd, but allegedly struck a patrolman in the face. Stanley was charged with second degree assault, disorderly conduct and obstructing governmental administration. Jeremiah O'Shea, 20, also of the Village Arms Apartments was also charged with disorderly conduct after he allegedly refused to move.

The injured woman, identified by police as Marion Detel, 21, of Hasbrouck Apartments, was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie where she was listed in satisfactory condition today. Stanley was jailed in lieu of $1,250 bail. O'Shea was jailed in lieu of $250 bail.

Hurt in Crash

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car crash Thursday morning on Route 28 in the Town of Shandaken.

Ulster County Sheriff's deputies said the driver of one of the cars, Michael Corday, 18, of Miami, Fla., told them he fell asleep at the wheel. His car struck a guard rail and crossed the road where it was in collision with an auto driven by James Bracco, 35, of Wittenberg Road, Mt. Tremper.

Corday was listed in poor condition today in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital. A passenger in his car, Allen Schwartz, 18, was listed in fair condition.

Bracco was treated and released at the hospital.

Shooting Arrest

A lengthy investigation into a Jan. 21 shooting incident on Bayard Street in Port Ewen culminated in the arrest Thursday by Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives of Dennis Richard Ahearn, 26, of 163 Bayard Street on a misdemeanor charge of second degree reckless endangerment. Detectives said that during a dispute with an unidentified person Ahearn allegedly fired two slugs from a shotgun, both of which ricocheted off the pavement, one striking a car and one striking a house trailer. Ahearn was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail following arraignment.

Driver Arrested

Frederick Smith, 62, of Brooklyn, was arrested Thursday on multiple charges by sheriff's deputies after they stopped his car while on routine patrol in the New Paltz area.

Deputies said Smith was allegedly operating the car under a fictitious name. Investigation revealed that he was wanted on bench warrants issued in 1972 in Ulster County,

Regulatory Reform Bill Needed

WASHINGTON, D.C. Congressman Matthew F. McHugh, D-27th Dist., has cosponsored legislation to force the President and Congress to act on a comprehensive reform of the federal regulatory agencies over a five-year period.

"The entire federal regulatory system is in need of a thorough overhaul," McHugh said. "What passes for regulation in the public interest today is often excessive, inflationary and, on balance, counter-productive. I think a comprehensive reform of regulation can benefit consumers and businessmen alike, through greater competition, lower prices and more rational rulemaking guidelines."

"There is a great deal of talk about such reforms, but for Congress and the President to face up to the task realistically requires the kind of imposed, self-discipline outlined in this legislation," he said.

Under the terms of the bill, the President would be required to submit a separate regulatory reform proposal to the Congress by March 31 in each of the years 1977-1981. The appropriate House and Senate committees would be required to clear the President's recommendations, with or without changes, by Sept. 15 of each year. If Congress has not acted on the committee report by the end of the year, it would automatically take effect.

If either House disapproves of the reform proposal but fails to act on an alternative, the regulatory agencies covered under the proposal would go out of existence on June 31 of the following year.

The areas to be covered by each of the five regulatory reform proposals are: banking and finance, 1977; energy and environment, 1978; commerce, transportation and communication, 1979; food, health, safety, and trade practices, 1980; labor, housing government purchasing and small business, 1981. The measure spells out which agencies must be covered in the five plans, but permits the President and Congress to add to the list.

The bill is expected to be referred jointly to the Rules Committee and the Government Operations Committee. An identical measure was introduced in the Senate on Dec. 18, 1975, by Senators Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Robert C. Byrd, D-W Va.

Local EnCon Hearing

ALBANY Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101, announced today that the State Department of Environmental Conservation will be holding a public hearing Friday, Feb. 20 at the Department's Regional Headquarters on 21 South Putt Corners Road, New Paltz. The subject of the hearing will be proposed rules and regulations to implement New York's Mined Land Reclamation Law.

Hinchey points out that the mining industry "plays a surprisingly significant factor in New York's economy, as it employs more than 7,000 individuals and produces minerals worth more than $400 million annually.

"At this point," continued the assemblyman, "there are approximately 1,000 active mines in our state, including at least 200 town-operated gravel pits to provide materials for construction and maintenance.

"However, besides these sites, there are between 12,000 and 15,000 'orphan mines' that have been abandoned without restoration. Substantial economic benefits to the mine owner as well as land resource improvements result from the reclamation of these abandoned mines," said Hinchey.

"And besides this area, the Mined Land Reclamation Law deals with the prevention of pollution associated with mining as well as the encouragement of development of mineral resources in New York."

Hinchey encouraged the public to attend the hearing if at all possible, "as the environmental condition of our state should be everyone's concern, not just that of a few."

Independent Wealth.

It didn't come EASY.

Basically, we were born broke. So Americans got together and loaned their new government over $27,000,000 on faith alone.

Eventually, it was that faith that won the war and our freedom. Today, that faith is still alive.

Over 9½ million modern Americans buy United States Savings Bonds regularly through the Payroll Savings Plan... and others where they bank.

And while their savings grow, they're helping their country grow, too. Independently.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Clash Peking-Style

I was fatigued from watching the Winter Olympics, but, when I read about the surprise appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as Acting Prime Minister of China, my journalistic juices began to flow. After a few days of research and reflection, I was able to work out a scenario explaining the mysterious move.

Perhaps I shouldn't use the word "explaining." As with so many news items out of China, the meaning of the bitter quarrel that I believe took place is a bit on the inscrutable side. Hua himself is so obscure that journalists don't even know whether he has a wife.

The man who failed to get the top job, Teng Hsiao-ping, the senior Deputy Prime Minister who was host to President Ford recently, once ridiculed people who try to figure out what's going on in China. He called them "readers of onion peels and chicken feathers." Actually, the task of analyzing China is more like trying to read cooked spinach leaves.

We sometimes think American politicians are tough with one another, but their speeches are love sonnets compared with the abuse Chinese politicians heap on their opponents. After studying stories of other conflicts in China, here is the kind of clash that I imagined taking place at the meeting of the Politburo:

Yin: "Comrade Teng is unfit to become Prime Minister because he has disgraced our glorious democratic revolution, which, under the dictatorship of the proletariat, must always advance along the straight road indicated by Marxism-Leninism-Mao Tse-tung thought."

Yang: "Comrade Yin, who owns four bicycles, is obviously bedazzled by reactionary materialism, which feeds on the carrion of capitalist subversion. As Comrade Teng himself has said, 'Towers are measured by their shadows; great men by those who speak evil of them.'"

Yin: "The quotation that Comrade Yang attributes to Comrade Teng is, in reality, an ancient Chinese proverb. This shows the cunning with which revisionist ideological tendencies are fomented by bourgeois bandits and other treasonable elements."

Yang: "If that is an ancient Chinese proverb, Comrade Yin, then I am Nelson Rockefeller."

Yin: "Speaking of proverbs, it was your viper-like Comrade Teng who preached ideological capitulation with the quotation, 'It doesn't matter whether a cat is black or white as long as it catches mice.'"

Yang: "That quotation, Comrade Yin, comes from the ancient seducer of pure proletarian thought, Confucius. Unlike traitors in this room who have aided the counterrevolution, Comrade Teng has worked positively in the historic struggle against feudalism and bureaucratic capitalism."

Yin: "'Rats know the way of rats,' Comrade Yang, or, as our American visitors say, 'It takes one to know one.' The poisonous Comrade Teng strangely resembles the very enemies of the motherland against whom he pretends to wage war."

Yang: "One should not speak of rats, Comrade Yin, when one is like a fly drowning around a pile of stinking filth."

Yin: "A strong man will not capitulate to the barks of dirty hyena, Comrade Yang, so I shall only reply that you and your conspirator, Comrade Teng, should insert your maggot-filled heads in the largest orifice of a smelly goat."

(At this point a vote was taken and was announced that Yang had lost the ideological dispute. Hua Kuo-feng was then unanimously elected as a compromise candidate. Everyone applauded except Yang, who mysteriously disappeared. He unfortunately died in an airplane crash a few hours later.)

Carey, Byrne Persist in Being Anti-Job

Governors Hugh Carey of New York and Brendan Byrne of New Jersey are politically motivated creatures. They play with an eye to the galleries when they denounce the decision that will presumably allow the supersonic Concorde to make limited landings at Kennedy Airport, and when they protest the leasing of offshore oil acreage in the Atlantic. They seem to think the more extreme environmentalist bloc is the source of both wisdom and votes. But they also play to another clientele, the bigger mass of people who want jobs, income and prosperity. So, disregarding their own animus against both the air transport and the oil business, they are loud in their lamentations about New York and New Jersey firms that continue to relocate in other states.

It doesn't add up. Nobody knows whether supersonic planes have any effect on the earth's cover of protective ozone; all we know is that military planes are flying hither and you beyond the speed of sound, and the incidence of skin cancer does not seem to have changed significantly. And common sense should tell Carey and Byrne that if oil can be safely pumped from beneath the waters all over the world from Indonesia to the Gulf of Mexico to the North Sea, it should not be beyond man's devising to take it with equal safety from 54 miles off the Jersey coast and 70 miles off Long Island.

Jobs in the Gulf
If Carey and Byrne had more than superficial political sense they would dispatch a study group to Louisiana, which has been living with both on- and offshore oil and gas ventures for some 40 years. Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana would tell his brother governors from the Northeast that off shore drilling in the Gulf of Mexico is responsible for 50,000 Louisiana jobs at relatively high wages. Even more important, says Edwards, is the onshore job-related industry brought into being by offshore drilling. The environmentalists originally raised the question of what offshore drilling might do to the fishing industry of Louisiana. But the fish, it seems, like the platforms that now dot the Gulf waters. The state's fishing industry has actually increased in both output and value by more than 30 per cent since the first offshore drilling began in the 1930s. There have been some accidental oil spills, but the state has strong anti-pollution laws and the oil companies have been willing to learn from mistakes if only to avoid penalties and the loss of revenue-producing oil.

If Carey and Byrne want to forego the sort of industry that has brought more than $6 billion in investment to Louisiana for new and expanded plant facilities, they should stop hollering about the exodus of companies from their states. Incidentally, if they really cared about those Long Island and Jersey beaches, they would stop the dumping of garbage into the Atlantic. With all its offshore oil, Louisiana has created no "dead sea" in the Gulf of Mexico comparable to the one that the garbage scows are building up not far from Long Island in the Atlantic.

Wisdom Is Not Widespread
Once in awhile in this country we get some governors who understand what puts bread in people's mouths. Gov. Edwards of Louisiana is one; Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire is another; ex-Gov. Ronald Reagan of California was a third. But the wisdom of a few governors has not been catching with New York's

Carey or Jersey's Byrne. Nor does it extend to Washington. Edward Heydinger, the manager of Marathon Oil Company's Economics Division, is upset with Washington because, as he puts it, "any mandated changes of fuel type — e.g., coal directed to electricity generation — will require more energy for production, transportation and storage." Our conservation measures don't actually save energy; they just shift its use. With government controlled oil and gas prices, it is not economic to spend money for plant conversion to cut fuel costs.

Howard Blauvelt, the chief executive of Continental Oil Co., concurs in the feeling that Washington policies are counter-productive. Conoco's inability to make money from so-called downstream operations hobbles its investment policies. "Until controls are lifted," Blauvelt says, "our policy is to make the minimum investment necessary to keep operations going but no more."

Blauvelt's final warning is ominous for a country that needs energy. "We will have to think," he says, "about directing some of our investments away from the energy business and into other areas."

It's a Very Taxing Time

WHO NEED NOT FILE A RETURN

Most tax guides start off with a section called "Who Must File a Return." This year, however, it's quicker to explain who doesn't have to file a return.

You need not file a return if you meet any of the following criteria:

— You have lived all of your life in the Auckland Islands.

— You were conceived within the last nine months of the 1975 calendar year but were not born within that period.

— As of Dec. 31, 1975, you had been dead for a year or longer.

There is, however, a major exception to the provision above. If income earned after death exceeds the level set by

WHAT IS TAXABLE INCOME?

Taxable income consists of wages and salaries, fees and commissions, tips and gratuities, gifts and bonuses whether or not deserved, capital gains, emoluments and allowances, bribes, grants and stipends, winnings and findings, dividends and interest, rewards and ransoms, booty and booty, honorariums, rent, rakeoffs, pensions and royalties, perquisites and prizes, legacies, annuities, forfeits and tributes, bondodgges and other forms of money.

WHAT IS NONTAXABLE INCOME?

Nontaxable income consists of payments derived from other planets such as Mars, Venus, Mercury and Pluto. INTEREST EXCLUSIONS Although most interest must be counted as income, certain types of interest may be excluded from taxation.

Example: You need not pay a tax if you are interested in stamp collecting, birds, rock formations, astrology, karate, trombone solos, the history of peaches or the girl next door.

JOINT RETURNS

Some taxpayers prefer to prepare their returns at a neighborhood beer joint or while smoking a joint.

Expenses entailed in the preparation of joint returns are not deductible.

WHAT IS DEPRECIATION?

As you grow older, you may find that you don't appreciate certain things as much as you once did. For tax purposes, this is called "depreciation."

Things that may be depreciated include cold showers, books by Cornelia Otis Skinner and the sight of a well-turned ankle.

If you are paying taxes on any of these things, you may deduct the percentage that your appreciation of them has declined.

CAPITAL LOSSES

Were you a bona fide resident of a state that lost its capital in 1975? (Example: Virginia lost its capital to General Grant during the Civil War.)

If so, you may deduct a pro rata portion of the loss based on the 1970 state census.

But if the capital was merely temporarily misplaced, no deduction is permitted.

Heart To Heart

Your Heart Association Can Help

IF you are victim of rheumatic fever, your Association can help. You need daily penicillin to avoid streptococcus infections. You can register with your Heart Office and regularly obtain prescriptions for low-cost penicillin from your pharmacist.

A rheumatic heart is the cause of death for 14,000 Americans each year.

Peter D. Corsones, M.D., a Board member of the Mid-Hudson chapter of the American Heart Association, stresses that not all sore throats are strep throats, but parents should be able to recognize the signs of a strep throat. If a child complains or shows signs of hoarseness or coughing, it probably is not a streptococcal infection. But, if the child has any of the following symptoms with a severe sore throat, you should call a doctor:

- ... The sore throat came on suddenly.
- ... The throat hurts most when the child swallows.
- ... It hurts when you press gently under the angle of the jaw, and the glands in the neck are swollen.
- ... There is a fever, usually 101 to 104 degrees.
- ... The child complains of nausea.

Dr. Corsones added that there is no "miracle drug" to cure rheumatic fever but it can be prevented if treated adequately.

GRAFFITI

A MAN HOLDING
A MAN WITH BIFOCALS

He plodded along through the wind and the sleet and the snow until he was nearly exhausted. Then to his delight he saw a small cabin just a few hundred yards down the trail. As fast as he could he ran to the shack, forced the door open and went inside. In one corner of the room stood an old pot-bellied stove. He shook his fist at the stove and commanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood." He stood and waited but he could feel no heat. And again he demanded, "Stove, give me heat and I'll give you wood," but no heat could he feel. He shouted his command for the stove to give him heat until his voice became hoarse but to no avail. He pulled his coat tightly around himself and sat down on the floor by the stove. He shivered as he waited for the stove to give him heat until he collapsed and froze because he didn't realize that he would have to give the wood before he could enjoy the heat. One person may say, "Why is it that I am always so unlucky? Why can't I have a better job so I could earn more money and be able to afford a better car and a finer, more beautiful home? Why is it that the breaks always come to someone else?" And so often that person will keep right on asking "why" instead of doing something to improve his circumstances.

Another person takes an entirely different approach. This one says, "I am not satisfied with my present status in life. I want something better. I want a better job, with a higher income, so I can enjoy more of the finer things in this world." Then he sits down to analyze his situation, to determine what he will have to do in order to get what he wants. If it requires a better job he will determine what he must do, if anything, to qualify himself for it. When he realizes what has to be done he doesn't put it off, he immediately gets busy and does it. This is the man who will succeed. This is the man who may seem to be lucky, but his secret is seldom luck, it is usually deliberate and consistent action.

When we firmly resolve to face up to the price of a successful life, when we become willing to give the wood of constant and persistent effort, only then can we expect to enjoy the heat; only then can we begin to look forward to a richer, fuller and more rewarding life. "Such is the way to win."

Country Ski Race.

Other outdoor events will include an ice sculpturing contest from noon to 3 p.m. and a slalom race for children up to age 12 beginning at 3:30 p.m. Indoor activities at the Hall of Springs at the Center will include performances by the Saratoga Ballet Company, the Schenectady Symphony and Ballet North.

Another highlight will be the announcement of the 1976 summer season at the Center and the opportunity to purchase discount tickets and lawn passes.

SUNYA: 'American Primitive'

Weekend

ALBANY "American Primitive," the story of John and Abigail Adams, will mark the Bicentennial at the State University of New York at Albany. The play, by William Gibson, will be presented Feb. 18 to 22 as an SUNY/Albany Main Stage production directed by Jerome Hanley.

Performances are set from Wednesday through Saturday at 8 p.m., with a matinee on Sunday, Feb. 22 at 2:30 p.m. Hanley's cast will include students from SUNY and other Albany area schools. Playwright Gibson adapted "American Primitive" from the letters, diaries and books of John and Abigail Adams. The plot illuminates the devastating effect of the fight for independence on families throughout the colonies.

Jamie 'Klinger' Farr

ty will participate, according to David J. Panzer, executive director.

Among celebrities participating in the telethon are Meredith Mac Rae, Jamie Farr, 'Klinger' of M*A*S*H, John Walmsley of "The Waltons," Harry Gould of "Rhoda" and Bob Tucker of the New York Giants.

Also, Ulster County's boxing great, Floyd Patterson, Mary Stuart of "Search for Tomorrow," Liz Torres of "Phyllis" and Terry Hanratty of the Pittsburgh Steelers, among others.

CP Telethon This Weekend

KINGSTON It's United Cerebral Palsy Telethon time again and the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Kingston will participate in the broadcast Feb. 14 and 15 on WTEN-TV, Channel 10. It will be the 14th consecutive year the United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster Coun-row, Helen Oberkirch, telethon chairman, said this year's local goal is $15,000. Last year $10,302 was raised. "Due to the spiraling economy, funds for operating expenses are in great demand," she explained.

The center also plans future expansion including the appointment of a medical director and a full time social worker.

This year's honorary chairman is Douglas Masterson. The Ulster County coordinator is Randy Firmbach and the Greene County coordinator is Sybil Tannenbaum. Other committee members include Mary Keresman, Sarah Wells, Helen Holmquist and James Wells.

Telethon headquarters will be at Ulster Savings Bank on Wall Street. Volunteers will be available at the bank from 11 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 14 until 6 p.m. Sunday. Contributors can stop at the bank or phone in pledges by calling 338-6060.

In Greene County, the Greene County Savings Bank in Catskill will be open from 9 a.m., Sunday, Feb. 15 until 6 p.m. Contributions can be left at the bank or pledges can be phoned.

The 20-hour telethon will be broadcast from the Siena Alumni Recreation Center where both amateur and professional talent will be provided for viewers. Funds raised during this important yearly event are used to provide programs in the various cerebral palsy treatment centers in the state, including Children's Rehabilitation Center on Webster Street in Kingston.

Raymond Marshall, grandson of Mrs. Eva Hannibal of Rondout Gardens, has attended the Children's Rehabilitation Center in Kingston since one year of age because of major difficulty in walking. Manny's CP problem stems from premature birth. He has undergone extensive treatment of physical therapy, crutches and bracing and surgery. Now nine years old, he walks independently and is up-to-grade in public school. Manny has appeared as CRC Poster Child as well as in special events for United Way of Ulster County. (Freeman photo)

'The Red Shoes' At DCC

POUGHKEEPSIE

"The Red Shoes," the movie that's been rated E for "Everyone" and is credited with "turning on" an entire generation to ballet, will be presented this weekend by the Performing Arts Festival. This most famous of all dance films, which brought ballerina Moira Shearer instant fame, will be shown Sunday, Feb. 15 at 5 and 8 p.m. at Dutchess Theatre, Dutchess Community College, Pendell Road, Poughkeepsie.

A romantic film that dramatically portrays the total commitment a dancer must have to his art, "The Red Shoes" incorporates within its plot a full length ballet based on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tale.

The Sunday showings are free to Performing Arts Festival series subscribers, but are also open to the public at a nominal admission, with special rates for students and senior citizens.

Buffalo Bill At Mt. St. Mary

NEWBURGH

In a happy combination of puppetry and music, the famous Indian scout, Buffalo Bill, will be on stage when "Buffalo Bill's Rodeo and Porcupine Tales" are presented at Mount Saint Mary College Aquinas Hall Theatre, Saturday, Feb. 14 at 2:15 p.m.

Sponsored by the College Cultural Centre, the Picket Puppet Theatre tells the stories of the old West choreographed to Aaron Copeland music. Large hand puppets perform on a 20-foot-wide stage with fresh, child-like projections on a screen at the back of the stage. A little Indian boy carrying a tree for camouflage, slinky wolves and bucking broncos are part of the choreography. The Indian stories, Porcupine Tales, are about Old Man Porcupine as "tricky a trickster as ever paddled about on four paws." At the end of the performances, the puppeteers will show the children just how the puppets are operated.

Tickets for the performance may be reserved by contacting the Cultural Centre at the College.

The Marriage Encounter emblem so closely resembles a Valentine heart that those involved with the program are urging others to follow Valentine's Day with their information program on February 15 at 8 p.m. in St. Joseph's Hall in New Paltz.

The message from Marriage Encounter is: "Don't just bring out the sweetheart in you for one day, but for always."

The information night is not a retreat, marriage clinic or sensitivity course but a unique approach aimed at making good marriages even better.

Marriage Encounter is open to all couples regardless of age, race, religion, education or financial status. Detailed information may be obtained from Mrs. Verda Conner at 8 Huguenot Road, Tilton.

'Gallows Humor' Plays All Weekend

WOODSTOCK Black comedy, as conceived by playwright Jack Richardson—and served up by Performing Arts of Woodstock—opened in the art colony's Town Hall last weekend . . . and will return this weekend and next.

With Paul Cooper directing, PAW presented "Gallows Humor" to enthusiastic audiences at opening performances. Audiences tonight, and, again, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 14 and 15—will have an opportunity to see what the cheering is all about.

Briefly, it's about the impending execution of a convicted murderer, awaiting his hanging in a prison cell. And about the executioner, who looks at death from another standpoint entirely in a scene that takes place in his kitchen.

Starring in "Gallows Humor" are Martin Henderson as a prison warden, Newell Parker in dual roles as the condemned man and the executioner, and Ginger Licopoli, who plays both the executioner's wife and a prostitute.

The play will also be performed next weekend, Feb. 20, 21 and 22, with tickets available at the door for all stagings.

Weekend

Don Cossacks of Rostov Head West Point Bill

Entertainment in two highly diverse fields will attract audiences to the United States Military Academy, West Point, this weekend.

The exciting and colorful "Don Cossacks of Rostov" will appear Saturday Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. in Eisenhower Hall auditorium at West Point. The "Don Cossacks" company numbers 75 members, including singers, dancers and instrumentalists from the Soviet Union's Don River region; is internationally renowned for ambitious productions highlighted by hair-raising physical daring, precise choreography, lavish costumes and resounding musical accompaniment in the energetic Cossack spirit.

On Sunday, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m., the United States Military Academy Band will present the sixth concert of its 1975-76 Chamber Music Series in the Point's Cadet Chapel, Room 1924. A special feature of the program will be the performance of selections from Bozza, Dedrick and Debussy by a saxophone quartet.

Tickets will be available at the door at varying prices for the "Don Cossacks" production Saturday, and the public is invited to attend the Sunday concert at no admission charge.

Noa Ain Concert At Bard Tonight

Composer - singer Noa Ain, who will appear in concert at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York later this month, is scheduled to perform Friday, Feb. 13 at 9:30 p.m. in Bard Hall. Her "portraits" sounds are a mixture of jazz, rock and classical.

Imus-in-the-morning

Imus in New Paltz Valentine's Night

NEW PALTZ Something great is coming your way At 9 p.m. and midnight on Valentine's Day.

Brought to you by The Alley Kat, Imus in the Morning in a different hat.

His disc jockey mike cast aside; He'll turn nightclub comedian in full stride.

We know you'll think it is the most; The great Don Imus is the host.

We guarantee you'll have your fill Of hilarity, sharp barbs and thrill.

You'll laugh and laugh for all you're worth. Don't miss The Greatest Show on Earth.

If owner Caroline Krom of The Alley Kat, the New Paltz discotheque on South Ohioville Road, sat down to send a card for Valentine's Day to every resident of Ulster County this week, she might well have penned the verse above on the occasion of the holiday this year.

Ms. Krom is busily reading The Kat for two Saturday night appearances by the singularly named Imus, whose normal employment is on WNBC radio in a four hour show starting at 6 a.m., but who'll be moonlighting locally Feb. 14. As one of the angry men of this generation, Don Imus expresses himself in the most vigorous and frequently funny terms.

He's known for doing just that as a disc jockey and, in his adventures as a nightclub comedian, he still tells it as he sees it—and spares nobody's feelings.

For his cafe stand in New Paltz this Saturday in two separate shows at 9 p.m. and midnight, the jokes will fly fast and furiously as he limns character portraits, hits out at sacred cows, conducts humorous newscasts and telephone conversations with the great and near-great.

Appearing at the Alley Kat with Imus in the Evening will be four talented vocalists who help punctuate his lines. The act has been playing successfully for close to two years in New York City night clubs, even as the irreverent, outrageous Imus has continued to be the top morning man daily on metropolitan radio.

At Paltz, Imus can be counted on to lay the entire Western world bare. Polish himself, he allows no ethnic group or political personality or organization to escape his barbs. No offensible stone is left unturned.

You can see and hear for yourself at The Alley Kat at either the early or late show (or both) this Saturday. Most of the tickets have already been purchased but owner Krom assures us that she's reserved others to be sold at the door, so as not to disappoint those among us who don't or won't plan ahead.

Stockade Concerts Group At Old Dutch Church

The Stockade Concerts Group at Old Dutch Church will present Cecelia Reed Keehn, lyric-coloratura soprano, and G. Thomas Keehn, trombonist and euphonium soloist, in a recital Saturday, Feb. 14 at 8 p.m. in Bethany Hall.

The husband and wife team of Woodstock have arranged for an impressive program of early Italian to 20th Century music including European and American composers. Joining the soloists will be Barbara Zimet at the piano, Melissa Sweet on flute, and Leonard Zimet, English horn.

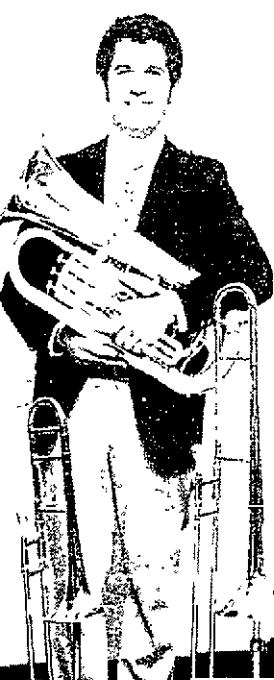

A popular soloist and voice instructor, Mrs. Keehn holds a master of music from West Chester State College. She has appeared with the Lebanon Valley College TV Opera Productions and has given recitals in many major cities including Allentown, Philadelphia, New York and Oensacola, Fla. A vocal music instructor of Kingston City Schools and UCCC,

Mrs. Keehn has done a great deal of church work both as soloist and director and is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, Music Fraternity Kingston Music Society, Music Educators' National Conference and New York State Music Educators.

Mr. Keehn, instructor of instrumental music at Miller Junior High School, Kingston Consolidated Schools, and trombonist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, earned his master of music from West Chester State College. He also studied at Oberlin Conservatory and the University of Vermont. Mr. Keehn is euphonium soloist with the Kingston Concert Band also.

Works by such composers as Durante, Bach, Rossini, Spaeth, Berg will be included in the program.

Tickets will be available at the door. A reception will be held immediately after the concert enabling the public to meet the artists.

Dear Abby

Children Neglect Elderly Mother

DEAR ABBY: I have an elderly mother who has been in a nursing home for the last four years.

I am one of her three children. (One son and two daughters.) We all live within a 45-minute drive from the nursing home, and all of us contribute equally toward the expenses, but I am the only one who visits her. I go there every day.

My brother goes once in four months. He says, "I just can't take it. That place is so depressing!" Can you believe it? He calls Mamma on the phone maybe once a week and keeps asking her if she "needs" anything. (All she needs is for him to visit once in a while.)

My sister runs over there once a month for five minutes. She doesn't even sit down. She tells me the "smell" of that place makes her sick. How is that for an excuse?

Although Mamma gets confused once in a while, she is far from senile. I know she's hurt, but there's nothing I can do about it.

Please print this. The shoe will fit both a woman, size 6, and a man, size 10. Let them wear it!

Eat and Grow Younger

Lose Weight Safely and Deliciously!

By LELORD KORDEL

Number Sixteen of a Series

The nutritional folly of gorging yourself on starchy and sweet foods was fully discussed earlier. But I want to make sure that you do not confuse natural carbohydrates with the artificial, devitalized carbohydrates that find their way into "civilized" stomachs in such appalling quantities—white breads, cakes, pastries, spaghetti, white rice, processed corn meal, dry cereals (Many cooked cereals, too), candies, and carbonated beverages.

"A minimum of carbohydrates," which is my fourth commandment for nutrition, means: Eliminate all those artificial starches which bear small resemblance to carbohydrates found in natural foods.

Half your planned campaign to regain lost youthful appearance and energy will be won when you throw artificial, devitalized sugars and starches out of your daily eating. Then reward yourself for this commendable step by turning instead to the delicious, health-building natural sweets.

Reduce With Reason

My fifth commandment is "reduce with reason."

Everyone agrees these days that overweight shortens life—certainly it prevents your looking and feeling as young as you would desire. Nothing is more aging or more inimical to youthful appearance than obesity.

Therefore, if you are seriously overweight, begin a sane reducing program at once—for the sake of your health, as well as your youthful appearance. But you must reduce with reason.

High Protein Menu

The following high-protein reducing menu is designed to produce a weight loss of no more than five to eight pounds a month. To lose more quickly than this is unwise.

You may vary or adapt this menu as you wish, interchanging one high-protein meat, fish or fowl with another; and alternating eggs with cheese. But you should confine the major portion of your fruit and vegetable consumption to those listed as 5 per cent and 10 per cent carbohydrates in the list which follows this menu:

Breakfast
One small orange, or half grapefruit, unsweetened
One slice cold meat, fish or chicken; or 1 pan-broiled minute steak

Mid-Morning
One small glass of skim milk, either hot or cold and flavored with a little crushed fresh or cooked fruit.

Dinner
One cup skimmed beef or chicken broth
One serving meat, fish or poultry
One serving cooked green, vegetable such as asparagus or broccoli; or a tossed green salad, as at lunch

One slice whole-grain bread (but only if you must)

One boiled, poached or shirred egg (also scrambled over hot water); or one-inch cube of cheese, or 1/4 cup of cottage cheese

Small bowl of whole grain porridge eaten with fortified milk

One cup hot skim milk sweetened with 1/4 teaspoon of honey; or black coffee or tea, sweetened with a little honey if desired.

Mid-Morning

One small glass skim milk, buttermilk or yogurt; or tomato juice fortified by whipping in a little cottage cheese.

Lunch
One cup clear, skimmed broth

One slice broiled or roasted meat, fish, poultry (don't overlook liver in this diet)

One green salad, dressed either with lemon juice and very little salt, or with 1/4 cup of cottage cheese, seasoned with minced chives

One serving of fresh five per cent or 10 per cent fruit
Hot beverage, sweetened with honey only.

One small glass of skim milk, either hot or cold and flavored with a little crushed fresh or cooked fruit.

One cup skimmed beef or chicken broth
One serving meat, fish or poultry
One serving cooked green, vegetable such as asparagus or broccoli; or a tossed green salad, as at lunch

One slice whole-grain bread (but only if you must)

One serving egg custard or milk sherbet made with skim milk or buttermilk, and fortified with extra powdered skim milk.

No Gnawing Feeling

This is far from being a "starvation" menu, and I promise you won't have a lank, gnawing feeling in the pit of your stomach while following this reduced diet. Nor will you suffer any loss of energy. On the contrary, you'll feel like a new person as soon as all that high-protein food begins to take hold and as the unnecessary poundage melts away.

Carbohydrate Values

Now here are the more common fruits and vegetables classified as to their carbohydrate content, that is, to the proportionate number of calories they contain:

Five per cent vegetables and fruits: Asparagus, bean sprouts, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, endive, greens, kohlrabi, leeks, lettuce, mushrooms, okra, olives, peppers, pumpkins, radishes, string beans, summer squash, Swiss chard, tomatoes, watercress, cantaloupe, honeydew melon, lemons, watermelon.

Ten per cent vegetables and fruits: Beets, carrots, onions, oyster plant (salsify), rutabagas, squash, turnips, blackberries, cranberries, currants, gooseberries, grapefruit, limes, oranges, peaches, strawberries.

Fifteen per cent vegetables and fruits: Lima beans, green beans, fresh peas, apples, apricots, blueberries, sour cherries, grapes, loganberries, mulberries, pears, pineapple, plums, raspberries.

'Be My Tootsy-Wootsy—Or I'll Break Your Armsy-Warmsy'

By Tobie Geertsema

Valentine's Day is for lovers, right? Those swinging singles out there in Sweetheart Land? Those young-at-heart and young-in-age courting couples who dance the night away? Wrong! It's odd but true—sweethearts, lovers and single people get fewer valentines on Feb. 14 than almost anyone. At least that's the way it is in America, where the vast majority of valentines wend their way to mothers. Moms get three times as many valentines as sweethearts and fiancés, and they can thank their sons, daughters and husbands for the honor.

Even teachers, though privately maligned by students, do better on Valentine's Day than the object of our affections. Butting up teacher is traditional (and an absolute necessity this one day of the year). As a result, teachers get bushels of valentines: run mom a close second in the standings. For that matter, aunts, sisters, brothers and even uncles, say card manufacturers, get more valentines than sweethearts.

Valentine's Day itself takes a back seat only to Christmas as an occasion for sending cards. This year, being Leap Year, an extra-large volume of valentines will go through the mails in this country—easily 500 million. Apparently, the women's liberation movement will have little effect on this tradition. In a year when it's OK for women to ask men to marry them, women will continue to propose to men, either in jest or not.

Nobody seems to know when that particular habit began. Leap Years like 1976, when February has 29 days, date back to 46 B.C., when Julius Caesar's astronomers inserted an extra day every four years on the Julian calendar. But the first mention researchers have found of reverse proposing appears in a Scottish law of 1288 that reads: "It is ordained that during Leap Year any maiden lady of high or low estate shall have the liberty to bespeak the man she likes. Albeit he refuses to take her to be his lawful wife, he shall be mulcted in the sum of one pound, except he can make it appear that he is betrothed to another."

And, because it's Leap Year, thousands of humorous valentines of the gal-gets-guy variety are sure to crisscross the

wootsy . . . or I'll break your armsy warsy."

Small wonder, then, that more cards are sent for Valentine's Day than any other occasion except Christmas. After all, it's the oldest holiday celebrated in the Western world, dating back some 1,500 years. Still, not all card senders wear their heart on their sleeve, even in Leap Years like 1976. Roughly a third of all valentines sent this year will be either unsigned or marked "guess who?" Anonymity, however, was the furthest thing from the mind of the man who gave Valentine's Day its start. That would be a Roman priest named Valentinus, who was executed in 246 A.D. for refus-

Dr. MacFarland Urges Reform At Grass Roots

By Joan L. Woinoski

KINGSTON • Are you old enough to remember America, when a nickel was worth five cents, when a boy was a boy and a girl was a girl, when you didn't have to lock your doors at night, when people knew right from wrong?

• Do you realize the most awesome danger in the world for America is Russian Military Power . . . Russia's best equipped land army . . . its military budget which increases yearly?

• Are you aware that an individual American citizen is sovereign only because he is created to the image of God? • Do you know the American System — economic and political — rests on a spiritual foundation; if the foundation goes, so goes the "system."

These are but a few of the thought-provoking questions from Dr. Kenneth McFarland's powerful talk Wednesday night at the 51st annual Washington Day dinner at Bethany Hall of Old Dutch Church.

Referred to as the nation's number one speaker in the country today, Dr. McFarland's moving address more than upheld that reputation as almost 300 business and civic leaders crowded into the hall to hear the noted educator who had returned to Kingston for the third time at the invitation of Old Dutch Men's Club.

Dr. McFarland of Topeka, Kansas, has been described as a man "literally living for his country by devoting his life to the preservation of its basic virtues and ideals." The demand for McFarland as a speaker caused him to be designated as America's Number One Air Passenger. He was presented with a special award by Capt. Edditt Rickenbacker for flying more than any other American on this country's domestic airlines.

Why does he work all day and fly all night? He is a man with a mission; he is trying to make Americans aware of what a great country this is. • When did flag-waving become corny?

• Why are there so many hyphenated Americans: Red-Americans, Black-Americans, Chinese-Americans?

• What government men have done to intelligence services comes near to treason! • Americans trust their gargamelen more than their congressmen.

• Saving America is a grassroots job.

Educating the youth of America is of prime importance, says McFarland who for 24 years enjoyed an outstanding career as a school executive. College students today at age 34 are still on campus "trying to find out who they are. I knew who I was at age four."

People today are frustrated. McFarland's remedy is "putting things in perspective." National problems are national in scope, but local in solution. "It's time for citizen participation, time to stand up and be counted." The place to solve national problems is right in our own backyard.

McFarland's own daughter, a judge, reduced the rate of crime in her county 32 per cent. Her method of reducing crime is "to enforce the law." An authority on the subject of law enforcement, McFarland's studies, achievements and speeches in this field have won the acclaim of lawmen and laymen alike. He is an honorary member of the Fraternal Order of Police, author of the Topeka Plan for Law Enforcement, a system now adopted in his home city, and recipient of the Optimist International President's Award.

The true American System, based on morality, can be taught in schools, said the world traveler. Although the System "can be improved, it is still the best in the world." Again, McFarland stressed the importance of "perspective." He referred to a talk he gave recently in connection with the canonization of Mother Seton, founder of the parochial school system in America. "Patty Hearst made the cover of Time magazine twice, Squeaky Fromme, once . . . Mother Seton never made it."

Regarding free enterprise, "There is nothing the government can do that private endeavor can't do better." The time to act is now during the country's Bicentennial. Whether the problem be crime, business, education, politics, every American citizen can do something about it. "This is the God-given time to campaign, to meet and to act, to show 'faith in a system that brought us as far as it did.'"

Last year, McFarland was presented with the Free Enterprise Exemplar Medal by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. A national award, only one is presented each year.

Solomon-Stella

"Wind Sculpture" by Accord sculptor Beau Solomon (L) and works by photographer Frank Stella of Ellenville (R) are teamed in the current, February-long show at Kingston Trust Company's Kerhonsk branch. Solomon, who studied in Paris and New York, has shown his unique "wind sculpture" driftwood creations throughout the area. Stella, who studied photography at New York City's Germain School, has exhibited in many local shows. Their combined talents produce a show of unusual interest.

It's Not Nice To Fool Dana Dietrich . . .

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Most television commercials these days are as amusing as a head cold, but an exception is the margarine ad in which a displeased Dana Dietrich declares, "It's not nice to fool Mother Nature" and zaps the environment.

Miss Dietrich also appears as Danny Thomas' nurse in the new NBC half-hour com-

Dana Dietrich edy, "The Practice," which ranked 21st in the national Nielsen ratings in its premiere Jan. 30.

"Mother Nature has been a mixed blessing," Miss Dietrich said in an interview. "I've never stopped being grateful because it brought me instant recognition, but I lost jobs because of it, too. I'd be up for a part and I'd get turned down because I was too identified with Mother Nature."

"But over-all it's been more of a blessing. A lot of people want to see what that crazy lady is like."

Commercials were Miss Dietrich's bread and butter as an actress before her sudden fame as Mother Nature and she has made more than 200 of them. She went to test for what turned out to be her magic commercial at the end of a long day. She was in competition with a huge number of actresses.

"I just wanted to get home," she said. "I went in feeling really giddy. They presented me with an armful of artificial daisies and I started singing. 'The hills are alive with the sound of music...' and throwing the daisies around. Everyone thought I was bonkers, traipsing around like some wood sprite."

"I was not even their image of Mother Nature — I understand several of the advertising men saw her as pleasingly plump, a sort of Jewish mother type. Then I went nuts — I was just having fun with it, I never thought the commercial would go."

"I got the part and we did a test commercial in a field in Connecticut with one grip, a cameraman and a director. We did a 60 second demo, real fast, for $3,000 — which is like a nickel in that business."

"It was test marketed in a couple of small cities and when the results came back they just fainted."

Miss Dietrich is delighted to be involved with Danny Thomas — discreetly, of course — in a show that is funny with medical overtones, or perhaps it's vice versa. "We'll hit some serious themes," she said, "but we'll approach them with humor. Medical shows on television these days are all death, doom and destruction. You watch them and you take your pulse, you don't feel so good. Or else they are comedies. Shows are either comedy or not comedy today and that's not what life is. Life mixes 'em up."

TV Ignores the Working, Woman

Women who work outside the home have just suffered another major setback.

It seems major advertisers have overwhelmingly rejected them for their ads in favor of the stereotyped housewife.

Frankly, I believe bad breath, perspiration, dingy laundry, embarrassing itching, and dandruff should be shared. Why should women who stay at home reap all the benefits of their misery?

I just don't understand advertising. It has only been within the last 15 years that black people have enjoyed nagging backaches and been allowed to squeeze toilet tissue. (They still don't ride on the bus with Fred MacMurray or get to coat their stomachs with an antacid.)

Some of my best friends are career women. I even took one to lunch the other week on her day off and discovered some real revelations.

Other than the fact she goes to the office each day, she is like a real person. She cooks, cleans, does the laundry, and entertains.

She has colds, trouble sleeping, iron-starved blood, and occasional irregularities. She wants a bank she can trust, a wax that "wakes up your wood," a coffee that her husband doesn't smart off about and the best peanut butter for her kids.

"You know something, Wanda," I said, "if you had dry skin you'd be just like one of the girls."

"But I do," she said. "I also have chapped lips, oily hair and use a soap that doesn't get me clean."

"Don't lie to me, Wanda," I charged. "If that's true how come I never see you on TV dipping little plastic dolls in residue to see how your soap leaves a film on your entire body?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "No one ever asked."

Later, in the laundromat,

Wanda and I were folding clothes when we were approached by a man who said to Wanda, "I'll give you $50 for that raggy T-shirt."

Wanda looked at him directly in the eye and asked, "Why?"

"Because I want it," he said, "to prove something."

"You've already proved it," said Wanda. "You're not playing with a full deck, and if you don't take your little scissors and split, I'm going to call the home."

Maybe the advertisers were right. Wanda just doesn't fit the image they're looking for.

Canada's Kreiner
Nixes Rosi's Bid
For Third Gold

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Kathy Kreiner, a Canadian teenager with a passion for riding motorcycles, today ruined Rosi Mittermaier's bid for a triple crown of Alpine gold medals when she defeated the West German by 12-100ths of a second to win the Olympic giant slalom.

Mittermaier, attempting to become the first woman at the Olympics to win three Alpine golds following her earlier victories in the downhill and slalom, had the better time in the top half of the course, but she lost her bid for glory on the bottom half.

Kreiner, who won a World Cup giant slalom in 1974 at Pfronten, West Germany, clocked 1 minute, 29.13 seconds in her gold medal run to the 1:29.25 of Rosi. Danielle Debernard of France took the bronze in 1:29.95.

No Americans finished in the top 10 of the final Alpine race for the women. Lindy Cochran of Richmond, Vt., had the fastest U.S. time, 1:31.33, for 11th place.

Mary Seaton of Hancock, Mich., finished an unofficial 17th and Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., bronze medalist in the downhill, was 21st.

Earlier, Jan Egil Storholt won Norway his second gold of the Games when he took the men's 1,500-meter speed skating title from Russia's Yuri Kondakov and Hans Van Helden of Holland.

Dan Carroll of St. Louis, bidding for a medal in his second Olympics, finished 5th, Erich Heiden of Madison was seventh, and Mike Woods, replacing 1,000-meter gold medalist Peter Mueller, was 23rd.

The Soviet Union won the biathlon relay gold medal, with Finland taking the silver and East Germany earning the bronze.

Kreiner started first in the field of 45 and saw her time stand up as the favorites, unable to get anything out of the conditions, failed to get near her time.

Mittermaier went off fourth and the crowd was behind her as she zoomed down to the fastest intermediate time. Just as it appeared the Triple Crown was hers for the taking, Rosi, 25, seemed to lose her pace. She finished first in the Alpine Combined, although no medal is awarded for the Combination.

Mittermaier was attempting to join Austria's Toni Sailer and Frenchman Jean Claude Killy as the only athletes to win the Olympic Alpine Triple Crown. Now she has to share the women's record with Switzerland's Marie-Theres Nadig, who won the downhill and GS at Sapporo four years ago, and America's Andrea Mead Lawrence who won both slaloms at Oslo in 1952.

The United States was favored to win the women's figure skating gold medal later in the day. Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., held a commanding lead after the compulsories and barring accidents, she will join such famous U.S. skaters as Tenley Albright, Carol Heiss and Peggy Fleming as the Olympic champion.

Dorothy Stuart Hamill is 19, can hardly see without her glasses, stands 5-foot-3 and weighs 121 pounds, but on the ice she is every bit a princess.

She is the best free skater in the world. Her peers say it and the record books say it. She has won the free skating segment of the world championship for the last two years, and would have won the overall championship had her compulsory figures been half as good as her free program.

But that was in the past. Dorothy, under the watchful eye of Carlo Fassi, perfected her routine figures during the last six months, and went into tonight's final in the overall lead, a position she never enjoyed in the last two world championships in which she had to try and come from behind to win the gold medal but ended just short.

John Curry of Britain, the men's champion who is also a Fassi pupil, has no doubt Dorothy will earn the points from the judges and the bouquets from the crowd after she has taken the ice. "She will win," he said when asked how he thought Hamill would do. "No question about that, she will win."

Curry, of course, could be biased because Dorothy is his friend and training partner in Denver, but as a champion, one must respect his opinion.

"She will win, no question about that..."

California-born Dianne de Leeuw, the reigning world champion skating for the Netherlands, may not agree with Curry, but she surely must have noted how the judges scored their original points (first place votes—low scoring).

After both sets of compulsories, which score 50 per cent of the overall points, Dorothy had 10.0 ordinands and 88.40 points to the 25.5-86.44 of Dianne. In lay terms, the ordinal points mean that eight of the nine judges voted for Hamill. All she requires is for five to vote her into first place.

On the face of it, John Curry is not sticking his neck out too far in tipping Dorothy Stuart Hamill to win. Tenley Albright, medical doctor, has left her patients to fend for themselves so she could see Dorothy win in person and join her, Carol and Peggy as girls who won the Olympic skating title for America.

Dorothy will skate 14th in the field of 20 finalists with de Leeuw going last. Also in the field were Wendy Burge of Garden Grove, Calif., and Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., who placed sixth and seventh, respectively, after the compulsories.

KATHY KREINER STORMS DOWN OLYMPIC GIANT SLALOM COURSE

Nothing Bashful About Jensen

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — This will say something about the brash attitude of the U.S. Olympic hockey team:

Following the impressive 7-2 rout over Poland Thursday that put the U.S. within one victory of a medal, Steve Jensen was asked to compare the aggressive attitude of the Americans to that of the Philadelphia Flyers.

"You can't compare us to the Flyers," said the 20-year-old wing from Michigan Tech. "We're a lot better skating team and we pass the puck as well or better."

"I'm not saying we could go out and beat them, but we play a different game."

It was this kind of cockiness that could have got the Yanks in trouble Thursday. They are seeded below Poland in the Olympic tournament, yet they almost took the Poles for granted.

"The guys had built up their confidence so much that we felt Poland was the underdog," Jensen said. "Because of this, maybe we tightened up a little and the guys were getting on each other."

"We had a tough time getting mentally adjusted, but after two periods we loosened up."

With a medal in sight after six months of intensive preparation, the U.S. wasn't about to kick it away. Jensen and linemate Bob Dobek notched two goals each and the Americans capitalized on four of seven power-play opportunities.

Dobek, who also set up Jensen's first score, got both of his on power plays. Other goals were scored by Gary Ross and Buzz Schneider.

Jim Warden, playing his fourth consecutive game, was credited with 40 saves and one of the two goals he allowed, to Leszek Kokoszka, came on a Polish power play late in the second period. Wieslaw Jobczyk got the other goal for Poland.

With Czechoslovakia beating West Germany, 7-1, in the second game Thursday, U.S. hopes for a silver medal were wiped out. But the Americans can claim the bronze by beating West Germany in their final game of the round robin championship Saturday afternoon.

"We're looking straight ahead," Warden said. "Some of the guys were saying could lose today and still get the bronze by beating Germany. But that's not the way we wanted to do it. We made up our minds to win the last two games for ourselves and the people who have backed us all season."

Russia leads the pack with a 4-0 record following a 7-2 victory over Finland Thursday night.

Swede Leads Skaters

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Jan Egil Storholt won Norway his second gold medal of the Winter Olympics today when he took the men's 1,500-meter speed skating title despite very cold weather conditions and winds gusting up to 45 miles per hour.

The weather was so bad racing had to be held up for a half hour and before the competition was concluded, four of the 34 entrants, including 1,000-meter gold medalist Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., withdrew from the race. Yuri Kondakov of the Soviet Union finished second with Dutchman Hans van Helden, third.

Dan Carroll of St. Louis, skating in his second Olympics, finished fifth, but he has been hampered all week with the after effects of the flu.

Storholt, skating in the fourth pair with Kondakov, clocked 1 minute, 59.97 seconds to the 1:59.38 of the Russian. Both times bettered the Olympic record of 2:02.96 posted by former Dutch star Ard Schenk, who clocked 2:02.96 at Sapporo, Japan, four years ago en route to his triple gold medal performance. But the time was just short of Schenk's world figure of 1:58.70.

Carroll, 26, skating in the fourth pair with van Helden, looked dejected when he finished in 2:02.26, the Dutchman being caught at 2:00.87.

Eric Heiden of Madison, Wis., who made the race after his teammates decided he should run and not Charles Gilmore of Anaheim, Calif., finished seventh in 2:02.40 and Mike Woods of Milwaukee, replacing Mueller, was 23rd in 2:08.77.

Biathlon
To Russia

SEEFELD, Austria, (UPI) — Superb shooting and powerful skiing gave Russia the gold medal in the 30-kilometer biathlon relay today at the Winter Olympics.

Finland took the silver and East Germany pulled ahead in the final moments to take the bronze.

The Russian team of Alexander Elizarov, Ivan Biakov, Alexander Tikhonov and Nikolai Kruglov were the only quartet that did not have to run a single penalty lap for missing the target. The Russians' total time was 1 hour, 57 minutes, 55.64 seconds, nearly four minutes ahead of the Finns who clocked in at 2:01:45.58.

The East Germans timed 2:04:08.61, moving into third place by about three seconds from West Germany, which had held third from the beginning. The United States finished down the field of 15 teams in which each man raced 7.5 kilometers and shot at 20 targets.

The Russian victory gave them three out of a possible four medals in the biathlon events. Kruglov and Elizarov won medals in the individual biathlon and Tikhonov redeemed his poor shooting in the individual event by not missing a shot in the relay.

Kathy Can't Believe It

AXAMER LIZUM, Austria (UPI) — Kathy Kreiner is 18, blonde, and still can't believe she is the Olympic giant slalom champion.

"It hasn't really hit me yet, you know," she said after staging one of the biggest upsets in Olympic Alpine skiing when she defeated Rosi Mittermaier by 12-100ths of a second to run the West German's bid for the first Triple Crown by a woman in the history of the Games.

Kathy, one of two skiing sisters from Timmins, a nickel mining town in northern Ontario, said she was surprised as anyone else at her victory, only her second in major international competition.

Holding the winner's bouquet of red roses, laughing and talking, she said, "It hasn't really hit me that hard yet, you know."

The women's Olympic giant slalom is something of a Canadian specialty. Nancy Greene won the title two Olympiads ago at Grenoble in 1968.

"I can only do my best and today it came out all right," she said. "I feel I haven't been trying my best all winter. I was too nervous."

Kathy said she gained confidence in Wednesday's slalom. She would have had the sixth fastest time on the first run if she had not missed a gate.

She found today's 4,022-foot course, which dropped 1,275-feet through 49 gates, perfect for her style of skiing.

"It was quite open. It was not too tight and you could really let your skis run and attack it," she said. "It was one of my better runs. It was an aggressive run."

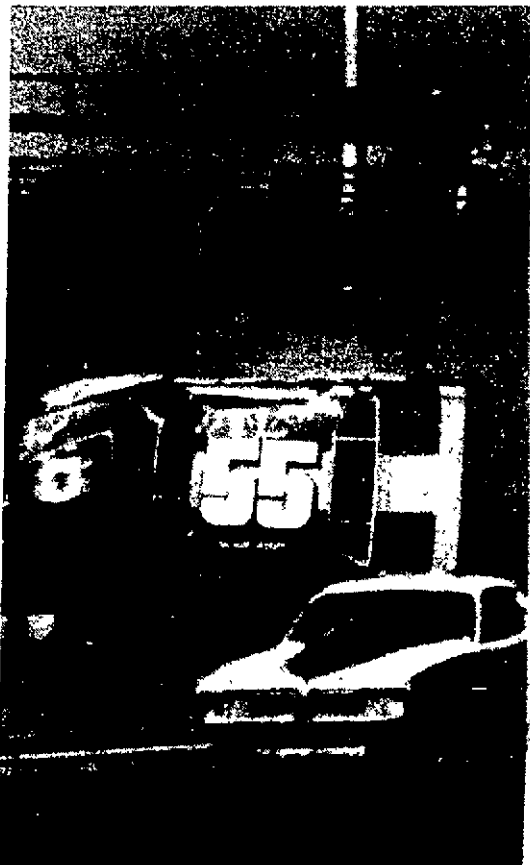

Kathy also had the advantage of being first out among the top 15 seeded skiers. Her time was 1 minute, 29.13 seconds, 12-100ths of a second faster than Mittermaier.

Kreiner said she did not feel bad about spoiling Rosi's Triple Crown bid.

"Well, she has three (medals) and I have only one—three is better than one," she said.

Kathy is in her fifth season of World Cup racing and until today her only victory was at Pfronten, West Germany, where she won a GS in 1974. She is a very nervous racer, which has impeded her progress.

Her older sister, Laurie, 21, also skis for Canada and finished in 27th place today. Laurie's specialty is the downhill, but she was disappointed at her placing today after finishing fourth in the event at Sapporo four years ago.

Cleveland
Modzy

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Veteran defensive line coach Dick Modzelewski of the Cleveland Browns today was named the NFL club's defensive coordinator, replacing Richie McCabe, who quit two weeks ago to become a defensive backfield coach with the Buffalo Bills.

"I'm thrilled, I welcome the position because it's a good challenge and I can't wait to get started," said Modzelewski, whose entire nine-year coaching career has been with the Browns. "It's more responsibility, too, because not only will I be coaching the defensive line, but I'll also be overseeing the linebacker coach and the secondary coach."

"The title 'defensive coordinator' is just that, a title. It's not a one man job because you work with two other coaches and discuss the whole defensive game plan. We'll have to agree with one another before we do anything. We'll discuss it, work hard together and do what we believe is best because any championship team definitely has to have a damn good defense."

Head Coach Forrest Gregg, who, along with owner Art Modell, made the choice to elevate "Mo," said the move would "really help the morale of this defensive team."

"Modzelewski is well respected by all the players, especially those who have played for him," Gregg said. "I'm talkin' about the defensive linemen."

"The remainder of that defensive football team respects him because they know what type of man he is. He demands the most from those people, he expects the most and I think he gets the most from them."

In many respects, Gregg and Modzelewski, who has a one-year contract, share the same coaching philosophy—you gotta have guts, play hard by putting out 'till it hurts and then go one step further because you want to be the best.

"Exactly!" Gregg emphasized. "When you put somebody (like Modzelewski) in a position like that it's always best if they believe in the same type of things you do."

"Some people, even though they don't believe it, will teach whatever you ask them to teach. But it always helps if you don't have to do a selling job on that man who, in turn, has to do a selling job on the players. Believe me, Mo's well qualified to direct our entire defense."

Modzelewski, twice passed over for the Browns' defensive coordinator post in favor of McCabe and before him Howard Brinker, was one of the better tackles in the NFL despite his being somewhat smaller than most of the men who played the position. He was drafted out of Maryland in 1953 by the Washington Redskins, went to Pittsburgh two years later, then found his real niche with the New York Giants starting in 1956. He became part of the famed "Fearsome Foursome" and did much to help the Giants win a league crown and four conference titles in seven years.

The Browns acquired him in 1964 (when Cleveland won the NFL Championship) in exchange for wide receiver Bob Crespino. Mo ran his consecutive game playing streak to 180 games before retiring after the 1966 season. He coached for Cleveland the following year, then was appointed to the Browns' coaching staff for the 1968 season.

Dave Marcis Was 'Flat Flying'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Buddy Baker summed up Dave Marcis' drive Thursday afternoon in the first of two 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's Daytona 500 about as well as anyone could: "He was flat flying."

Marcis, a Dodge driver from Wausau, Wisc., was lagging more than six seconds behind Baker's Ford with two-thirds of the race gone. But he put on a show of speed that brought the estimated 40,000 fans to their feet, cheering.

Zippering past Baker in turn 3 less than 5 miles from the checkered flag, Marcis opened up a handsome 5-car-length space that Baker was never able to make up, despite a last-lap challenge that left the two drivers only inches apart as the race ended.

"Our car was handling better and running better," said Marcis after the race. "I had put on a set of tires during my last pit stop and I think that was probably what made the difference."

A. J. Foyt, who turned the fastest lap in qualifying for the pole last Sunday at 187.477 miles per hour, ran in the second 125-mile event Thursday, but was forced out with mechanical problems. Nonetheless, he will start 31st Sunday.

Foyt, Marcis and Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn. were disqualified during last week's competition because NASCAR officials allegedly found illegal equipment on each driver's car. They were permitted to run, however, in Thursday's events which decided starting positions 3-40.

The ruckus put little-known Ramo Stott of Iowa on the coveted inside pole with Terry Ryan, another Iowa driver, sitting alongside.

It was Waltrip that bested Richard Petty by 23 seconds in the second event Thursday, edging out the famed Randleman, N.C. driver for the 4th starting spot and knocking him back to 6th.

Flashing his famous ear-to-ear grin, Petty said "Ole Blue didn't run too bad considering."

In the first of Thursday's two events, John Banks, a Canadian, lost control of his Dodge as he passed the start-finish line and headed into turn one with only four laps gone. His vehicle skidded onto the apron, began tumbling end-over-end, and bounced back into the track scattering debris over a wide area. He was pulled from the mass of tangled metal apparently unharmed, but taken to a local hospital for observation.

Deadline in Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI) — Mayor Wes Uhlman and the City Council faced a Saturday deadline to decide whether to go along with King County and the State of Washington in exchanging a lawsuit for a 1977 American League expansion team.

The city's officials were meeting today to begin final discussions on a request by league owners to drop the legal action.

The state and county are willing to halt the trial of the suit they and the city filed against the league after Seattle's only entry into big league baseball — the 1969 Pilots — were moved to Milwaukee in 1970.

However, Uhlman and some council members have expressed doubts about dropping the suit which could cost the league and its owners $32.5 million in damages.

The trial, in recess this week, has had four weeks of testimony at nearby Everett and would run an estimated six additional weeks if carried to a conclusion.

The AL offered the 1977 expansion franchise as a settlement and has signed a contract to award the franchise to a group of five Seattle businessmen and entertainer Danny Kaye. League owners have given the plaintiffs in the trial until Saturday to decide if they will drop the suit.

State Attorney General Slade Gorton said the trial would be resumed Tuesday if the city does not agree to the settlement.

Uhlman, who said of baseball owners, "I trust them as far as I can throw them," indicated the city might drop the suit without a cash settlement if there are ironclad assurances the new franchise is protected from transfer.

Riessen Says He's Underdog

TORONTO (UPI) — Marty Riessen had just finished polishing off Tony Roche in the quarterfinals of the World Championship Tennis even when match officials urgently needed a substitute to play an exhibition match.

"Sure I need the practice," said Riessen, whose 6-1, 6-4 victory over the fourth-seeded Australian Thursday vaulted him into Saturday's semifinal against Swedish star Bjorn Borg.

The top-seeded Borg defeated Vijay Amritraj of India, 6-3, 6-4, to take his spot in the semis. He used a strong serve and long rallies from the baseline to force the Indian into mistakes.

For Borg, who has defeated virtually every big name in the game since he crashed the international tennis fraternity three years ago, it was his first ever win over the Indian. They had played twice before, in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills in 1974 and last year in Charlotte, N.C.

The 19-year-old Swede will indeed be a challenge for the 34-year old Riessen, of Amelia Island Plantation, Fla., who has failed to beat Borg in three tries.

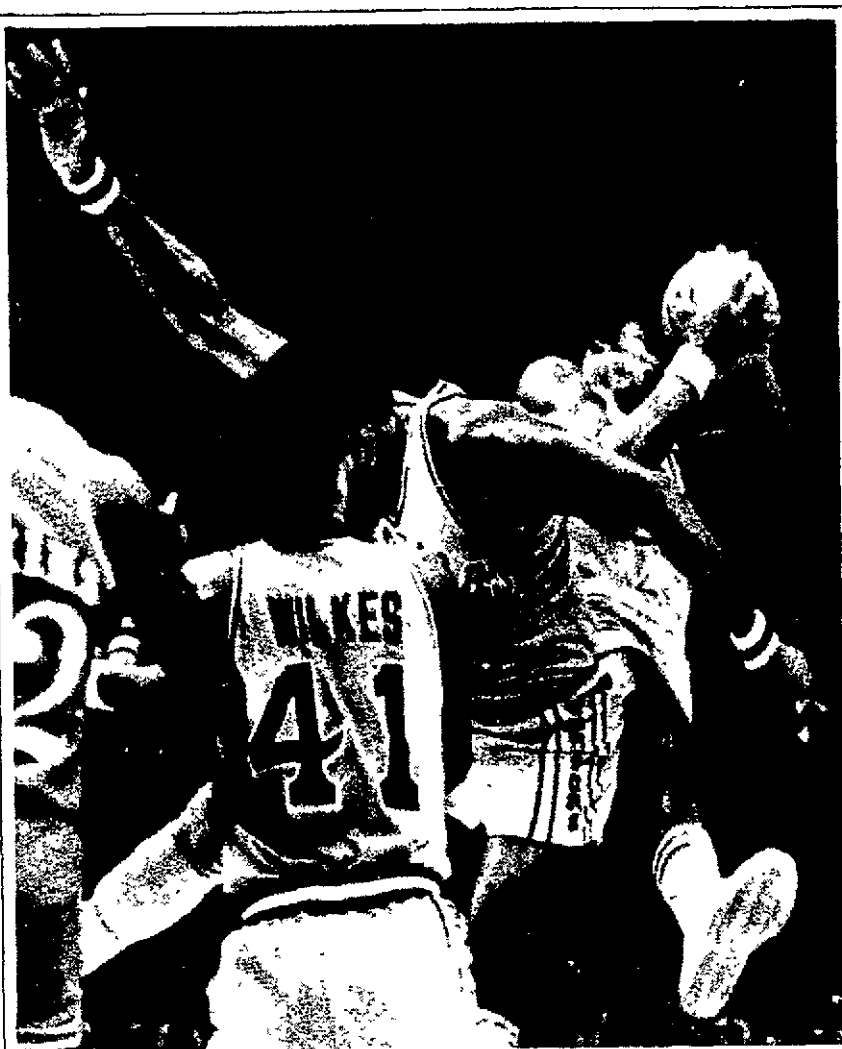

"I'm really the underdog," Riessen said to no one's surprise as he looked ahead to Saturday's match. "He (Borg) does everything well. But if you're going to win a tournament you have to beat the best players."

He said he'd play the same kind of aggressive game that already has carried him past South African Frew McMillan and Roche in this $64,000 tournament.

"I'm gonna do the same thing I did tonight against Roche. Chip to his backhand, stay away from his forehand. There'll be a lot of rallies and I guess something will happen."

The second round of the quarterfinals is to decide the other set of semifinalists will be played tonight at the CNE Coliseum when second ranked Iie Nastase of Romania meets Czechoslovakian Jiri Hrebec and another Czech, Jan Kodes, plays Vitas Gerulaitis, the third-seed.

Saturday's semifinal winners will compete for the top prize of $17,000 Sunday. The runnerup will win $7,000.

Dudley Was the Key

By United Press International

It was fitting that reserve guard Charles Dudley should play a key part in the Golden State Warriors' triumph over Atlanta, the only team in the National Basketball Association they hadn't whipped this season.

Dudley's three-point play with 1:53 left helped Golden State pull away to a 113-104 win Thursday night, in what had been a see-saw contest.

Coach Al Attles' timely use of Dudley and other reserves was a hallmark of the 1975 championship drive and is, in part, responsible for the Warriors' current 38-15 record, the best in the NBA.

Dudley's key play Thursday night came after he swiped a rebound.

"I go for the boards a lot for a guard," he said. "It just is an instinct."

Phil Smith, who scored 30 points, said Dudley "is a vicious rebounder for a guard and he has a tremendous instinct for rebounding is what keyed the Warrior victory."

Jamaal Wilkes kept Golden State even with Atlanta en route to his game-high 34 points. The score was tied at 99-99 with 4:06 left before the Warriors bolted into the lead to stay with eight unanswered points, three of them by Dudley.

The Hawks rallied from a 32-25 first-quarter deficit to take a 59-57 halftime lead behind the scoring of John Drew, who had 33 points. At the third period break it was tied at 82-82 and Tom Van Arsdale kept the Hawks even for most of the duration with 13 fourth-period points.

In other NBA games, Cleveland stopped Chicago, 86-83, and Washington whipped Portland, 92-81. There were no games scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

Cavaliers 86, Bulls 83: Jim Clemons scored 17 points, including a key foul shot with only 34 seconds left, to lift Cleveland over Chicago. The victory kept the defense-minded Cavaliers, who have now held opponents to less than 100 points in 12 of their last 13 games, on top in the Central Division. Bob Love, John Laskowski and Jack Marn got 18 points each for Chicago.

Bullets 92, Trail Blazers 81: Elvin Hayes scored half his 24 points in the third period to lead Washington past Portland. The Blazers, down 76-57 after three periods, ran off an 18-2 spurt to close the gap to three points, but could get no closer. Dan Anderson and Larue Martin led Portland with 14 points each.

Danbury Stops Hawks, 103-98

DANBURY, Conn. — The New Paltz State basketball team will have to wait until Saturday to try to become the first Hawk squad in 13 years to notch ten victories in a season. The bid to achieve that distinction Thursday night failed in the face of a hot shooting Western Connecticut club which sent the Hawks home with a 103-98 setback.

Torrid shooting boosted the winners out to a 15 point bulge halfway through the contest. Even though Keith Yizar dumped in a game high 29 points and sparked New Paltz to a 57 point explosion in the second half, the rally wasn't enough to catch the home team.

Western Connecticut put three shooters over the 20 point mark and four in double figures. Ken Hudak had 24, Kevin Nowlin had 23 and Levi Jackson added 20 to power the Indians who connected on well over 50 per cent of their attempts from the field. Scoring in bunches the winners zoomed to a 56-41 halftime advantage and ran up a lead as big as 23 points in the second half.

New Paltz made a move, but it simply came too late. Down by 17 with just three minutes remaining, the Hawks surged to within five before time ran out. Gary Fisher helped the late spurt by scoring all ten of his points in the last eight minutes.

Tom Booker had 15 for New Paltz, and teammate Ron Monroe added 14 points and 11 rebounds.

The Hawks, now 9-9 on the year, host York College Saturday.

Haig Award To Chris

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charming Chris Evert, a 21-year-old tennis pro who earned a record $352,227 for one season last year, was named today the first winner of the Haig and Haig Woman Athlete of the World award.

Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., numbered the United States, French and Italian Opens among her tennis titles in 1975.

She collected 620 points in balloting by an international panel of sports writers to win a $10,000 prize and a sterling silver trophy Evert will receive the awards at a luncheon here March 19.

Francie Larrieu, the 22-year-old UCLA junior from Los Angeles who set American outdoor and indoor records in the 1,500 meters and mile run, was second in the balloting with 318 points.

Swimmer Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., who distinguished herself in the 1975 Pan American Games with six medals, including two gold, was third with 219 points. Austrian skier Annemarie Proell Moser turned in brilliant performances on the slopes last winter and received 137 points for fourth place.

Sentence Due Today

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Sentencing is scheduled today for former University of Kentucky football player Elmore Stephens and two other men in a case that triggered an investigation of the University of Kentucky football team.

Fayette Circuit Judge Charles Tackett will issue sentences for Stephens, 23, of Lexington, former UK student football manager John Bishop, 22, of Louisville and Robert Channels, 22, of Lexington. The three were convicted Jan. 24, of kidnapping and reckless homicide in the October abduction and death of Luron Eugene Taylor, 24, of Lexington.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated more than 11 hours and recommended sentences of 21 years in prison.

Defense attorney Henry Hughes tried unsuccessfully last week for a new trial for the three and asked for their release on bond. Hughes indicated he would appeal to the state supreme court for a new trial.

Stephens, Bishop and Channels were accused of kidnapping Taylor shortly before midnight Oct. 11, 1975. His body was found 10 days later in the Ohio River at Louisville, the victim of strangulation.

Coach Bartow's Critics Will Be Eating Crow

By UPI

Critics of UCLA Coach Gene Bartow will be eating crow before the end of the season, according to Washington State mentor George Raveling.

The Cougars, who fell victim to UCLA at Pullman, Wash., last Saturday, traveled to Pauley Pavilion Thursday night — only to be beaten again.

And according to Bartow, his team has finally begun to peak after the Bruins smashed the Cougars, 104-78.

"We're extremely pleased with our play tonight," said Bartow. "I feel that we are starting to peak. There is no time to relax in the next six games. Tomorrow we will start preparing for Washington, our biggest game of the year."

The Huskies are in second place behind UCLA in Pacific-8 play with a 6-2 record after a 93-75 victory over Southern California Thursday night. UCLA and USC switch opponents Saturday.

UCLA's Marques Johnson, who scored 19 points and grabbed six rebounds, said, "We are starting to play the kind of basketball that is

synonymous with UCLA."

Seven-foot junior center James Edwards scored 20 points, hitting 10-of-12 shots, to lead Washington past Southern Cal. The Huskies are now 19-2 overall.

It was Washington's second win in a week over the Trojans, whose record fell to 0-8 in conference play and 11-10 overall.

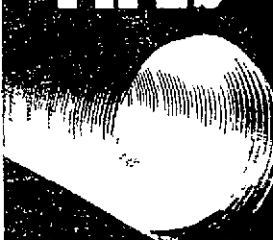

"It's always good to win in Los Angeles," said Coach Marv Harshman. "We felt if we played hard for the first five minutes of the second half, then we could make them play to us — and that's exactly what happened. I was surprised they didn't zone us. UCLA gave us fits with a zone last week."

Edwards was helped by Kim

Stewart and Ken Lombard, who each had 13 points, and Lars Hansen with 14. Greg White and Casey Jones led the Trojans with 16 and 13 points.

In other major action Thursday night, South Carolina downed Fordham, 75-65, Drake edged Bradley, 96-94, and Southern Illinois upended 19th-ranked West Texas State, 66-57.

BEACON Kingston High girls trounced Beacon High 70-49 in a Dutchess County Scholastic League contest Wednesday, but Coach Pat Burke of Kingston was quick to point out that the Tigers' margin of victory was misleading.

Ertha Burris led Kingston with 22 points, 11 steals and 3 assists. Lori Eaton was runnerup with 16 points and 12 rebounds, while Lynette Byrd had 8 points and 7 steals.

Diana Baker contributed seven points and 13 rebounds.

The Kingston defense has yielded an average of 41 points in 12 games, while the offense has accounted for a 52.8 average.

Nets, Pistons In Jr. Finals

SAUGERTIES

It will be the undefeated Nets and red hot Pistons in the championship playoff finals of the SAA Junior Basketball League. Wins in the semi-finals set up the big showdown between the 13-0 Nets and a team that after a slow start has won eight of its last nine games.

In first round action, Raiders were forced into overtime to shade the Royals, 58-52, while the Pistons stopped the Bucks 47-41. In semi-finals, Nets crushed the Raiders 64-36 and Pistons beat the Lakers, 46-39.

Chris Wilson led the Nets' semi-final win with 22 points. Mark Sinnott stuffed 20 and Bill Peetoom 18. Joe Rick hooped 11 and Mark Abeel 10 for Raiders. Pistons piled up a big early lead to coast against the Lakers, as Dave Kime led with 18 points and Chris Kerbert canned 14. Kevin Yates of the Bucks took game honors with 21 points and Eric Haun hit 10.

Raiders outscored Royals 10-4 in the overtime after a 48-48 standoff in regulation time in the first round, while Pistons wiped out a 5-point Bucks lead in the final two minutes of play.

Mark Abeel led the Raiders with 18 points, Scott Peter potted 16 and Joe Rick 11. Rich McNally led the Royals with 17 and Bruce Goble 15. Mark Edmunds was the hero for the Pistons with 24 points, including 8 in the crucial last period. Dave Kime backed him with 13. John Beckert led the Bucks with 23.

Your Astrograph

For Saturday, Feb. 14, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your warm, ingratiating manner will add lustre to your personality and enhance your image in the eyes of others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll make an excellent host or hostess today so, if it doesn't interfere with your present plans, have a small group over.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

You're fortunate today in that you'll know how to put to a worthwhile use information passed on to you. Be a good listener.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your chances for gain look very promising today. Don't close doors to situations that could increase your resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This should be a pleasant day, especially if you're involved in some group activity. You'll know how to get things jumping.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) For best results today, do that which has to be done so as not to call too much attention to yourself, or the other party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, you can absorb knowledge and ideas. Study something constructive you can later put to use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) The more challenging the situation, the better you respond to it today. Set definite goals, don't settle for second best.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Use your charm, humor and the soft sell today with others. The results may ever surprise you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is opportunity about you today, but you may have to dig for it a bit. Read between the lines of what's told you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Favors you ask of friends today are likely to be granted. Your pals are sensitive to your needs and want to help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are greater rewards than usual for tasks that you put your hands to today. Take pride in what you undertake.

Feb. 14, 1976

You will form several alliances this coming year that will help advance your hopes and wishes. One connection will be with someone who resides quite a distance from you.

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

ALMOST?: (Q.) Joe and I hang around each other a lot. I feel great when we are together, but my problem is that he has a girl friend. I know he doesn't really like her or we wouldn't spend so much time together.

Once he almost kissed me. We were at a phone booth at school. My friend came over and caught us so we didn't, but we would have.

His girl friend isn't pretty and she is fat. Joe is just feeling sorry for her. That's why he likes her. What can I do? I really like him and I know he'd be happier with me.—15 in Pennsylvania

(A.) As far as I can see from your letter, Joe hasn't told you he doesn't like his girl friend, and he hasn't told you that he does like you.

You want it to be that way, however, and you have decided that that is the way it is. Sometimes we can fool ourselves very convincingly. I believe you have done that to yourself.

Slow down; get your feet on the ground. Until Joe takes some definite step to date you, or at least to declare that he likes you better than the other girl, don't build your hopes up so high.

WRONG GIRL: (Q.) I am going out with this girl, Kim. She is nice and treats me really good. But I do not much like her. The reason is that I like this girl Shelley, and she likes me too. How do I tell Kim I don't want to bother with her anymore?—Stuck in Massachusetts

(A.) You are not stuck. You do not have a contract for life to take Kim out. When you no longer want to take her out you can stop.

You don't HAVE to explain to her but it would be kind and decent to tell her the truth—that you like someone else and want to go with her.

You don't have to tell Kim who the other person is if you don't want to.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

notrump and West opened a spade.

South won and went after hearts. West ducked the first heart lead, but had to win the second one.

Then West entered into some sort of trance. He had a feeling that somehow or other there might be something wrong with his opponents' bidding. Finally, he led a diamond and East cashed three diamond tricks.

Barbs

By PHIL PASTORET

And then there's the fellow in the Florida Everglades who buys their catches from fishermen: He's a used car salesman.

The nicest thing about Friday is that you don't have to wait it out again till next week.

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

Today's hand from the finals of the team trials shows what happens when a forcing-club system fouls up.

South couldn't open one club and was forced to start proceedings with one diamond. North's two-spade rebid was one of those bids described as fourth-suit forcing and poor South did the best he could by going to two notrump.

Now North finally showed real strength by his jump to four clubs and South jumped to six clubs. He had decided that his partner's bidding was meant to show a void of diamonds. North went to six.

Too many cooks may spoil the broth—or whatever—but they sure add to the bill the diner pays.

If the boss didn't have any troubles, what work could he shove on your desk?

Two more wobbles and a bump and we'll have the first three-wheeled car in the neighborhood.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your warm ingratiating manner today will add luster to your personality and enhance your image in the eyes of others.

FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

ALMOST?: (Q) Joe and I hang around each other a lot. I feel great when we are together, but my problem is that he has a girl friend. I know he doesn't really like her or we wouldn't spend so much time together.

Once he almost kissed me. We were at a phone booth at school. My friend came over and caught us so we didn't, but we would have.

His girl friend isn't pretty and she is fat. Joe is just feeling sorry for her. That's why he likes her. What can I do? I really like him and I know he'd be happier with me—15 in Pennsylvania.

(A) As far as I can see from your letter, Joe hasn't told you he doesn't like his girl friend, and he hasn't told you that he does like you.

You want it to be that way, however, and you have decided that that is the way it is. Sometimes we can fool ourselves very convincingly. I believe you have done that to yourself.

Slow down; get your feet on the ground. Until Joe takes some definite step to date you, or at least to declare that he likes you better than the other girl, don't build your hopes up so high.

WRONG GIRL: (Q) I am going out with this girl, Kim. She is nice and treats me really good. But I do not much like her. The reason is that I like this girl Shelley and she likes me too. How do I tell Kim I don't want to bother with her anymore?—Stuck in Massachusetts.

(A) You are not stuck. You do not have a contract for life to take Kim out. When you no longer want to take her out you can stop.

You don't HAVE to explain to her but it would be kind and decent to tell her the truth—that you like someone else and want to go with her.

You don't have to tell Kim who the other person is if you don't want to.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

You're fortunate today in that you'll know how to put to a worthwhile use information passed on to you. Be a good listener.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your chances for gain look very promising today. Don't close doors to situations that could increase your resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This should be a pleasant day especially if you're involved in some group activity. You'll know how to get things jumping.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) For best results today do that which has to be done so as not to call too much attention to yourself or the other party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) To day you can absorb knowledge and ideas. Study something constructive you can later put to use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) The more challenging the situation the better you respond to it today. Set definite goals; don't settle for second best.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Use your charm humor and the soft sell today with others. The results may ever surprise you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is opportunity about you today, but you may have to dig for it a bit. Read between the lines of what's told you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Favors you ask of friends today are likely to be granted. Your pals are sensitive to your needs and want to help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are greater rewards than usual for tasks that you put your hands to today. Take pride in what you undertake.

Feb. 14, 1976

You will form several alliances this coming year that will help advance your hopes and wishes. One connection will be with someone who resides quite a distance from you.

notrump and West opened a spade. South won and went after hearts. West ducked the first heart lead but had to win the second one.

Then West entered into some sort of trance. He had a feeling that somehow or other there might be something wrong with his opponents bidding. Finally he led a diamond and East cashed three diamond tricks.

Today's hand from the finals of the team trials shows what happens when a forcing-club system fouls up.

South couldn't open one club and was forced to start proceedings with one diamond. North's two spade rebid was one of those bids described as fourth suit forcing and poor South did the best he could by going to two notrump.

Now North finally showed real strength by his jump to four clubs and South jumped to six clubs. He had decided that his partner's bidding was meant to show a void of diamonds. North went in six.

A Case of 20th Century Practicality Versus 'Lifestyle'

By Jon Powers

WOODSTOCK The telephone—that marvel of modern technology that brought fame to Martha Mitchell, a fortune to Ma Bell and new life to heavy breathers everywhere—has cost a Woodstock woman her job at Ulster County Community College.

Susun Swede doesn't have a telephone, can't afford one and wouldn't tolerate its presence even if she had the money. She sees the contraption as an intrusion on her own particular lifestyle that is purposefully out of step with 20th century computerized America.

UCCC, however, is very much a 20th century institution. If Susun doesn't get a phone, she doesn't get a job. From September, 1973 through December, 1975, Susun served as a continuing education instructor at the college's Stone Ridge Campus. The courses she taught—bread baking, homesteading, herbal medicine and mushroom walks—reflected both the increased popularity of an agrarian and nature-conscious lifestyle and the college's own commitment to offer unique learning opportunities to the community it serves.

Things went smoothly—except for an occasional complaint by custodians at the college after Susun used live goats and chickens to help illustrate a classroom lecture—until she received a letter on June 2 from Ronald A. Koster, associate dean for continuing education.

Koster first mentioned that Susun's students had responded enthusiastically to her courses, then dropped his bombshell.

"We do come up against a problem, however, in that as we depend on you more and more, we really need to be able to contact you quickly and easily," wrote Koster. "The lack of a home phone has so far only been inconvenient to us in working with you, but the more courses and sections that you teach, the greater potential for problems to arise."

Later in the letter, Koster wrote, "It is difficult for us to express this policy to you because we do not want you to feel that you must alter your lifestyle in order to work with us, but we cannot afford to undermine the efficiency of a 20th century office in order to be compatible with a nineteenth century mode of living."

Ignoring Koster's suggestion, Susun refused to install a telephone in her Woodstock home.

On Nov. 18, Koster wrote a second letter informing Susun that, because she still had no phone, she no longer had a job. Her courses were not renewed for the Spring, 1976 semester.

Susun says she doesn't particularly care about the job, although the $1,900 salary last year did help support herself and her daughter. She does, however, consider the college's phone rule a violation of her individual liberties and freedom of choice. To that, she objects strongly.

Koster, however, says he isn't trying to tell Susun how to live her life, but as far as the college is concerned, the issue is one of practicality, not philosophy.

"My responsibility is to the continuing education program and the people it serves," said Koster. "Susun was warned in advance that she must have a telephone. I don't have the time to negotiate with people and I don't have the time to track down people who don't have a telephone."

Susun maintains, however, that at no time has Koster ever tried unsuccessfully to reach her. She says her neighbor has a telephone and that she can also be reached at the Woodstock Health Food Center, where she works.

Koster says the continuing education office has, on several occasions, tried unsuccessfully to reach Susun by telephone, and that the possibility always exists that an emergency will arise when immediate contact with an instructor is required.

Koster emphasized that the telephone rule is not a college policy, but a practice that he alone established. "And it will remain a practice," he said, "until the college tells me to change it. If Susun objects, I think she would be better off appealing to the president or the Board of Trustees."

No use, said Susun. "It's Koster's rule," she commented, "he made it, he can change it." She is, however, considering a civil suit. In his Nov. 18 letter, however, Koster left the door slightly ajar. "We hope that if and when you get a phone," he wrote Susun, "you will let us know, so that we may welcome you back into the program."
